TO THE RIGHT HONOURABLE
CHARLES MARSHAM, EARL OF ROMNEY, VISCOUNT MARSHAM,

LORD LIEUTENANT AND CUSTOS ROTULORUM
OF THE COUNTY OF KENT, AND CITY OF CANTERBURY, PRESIDENT OF THE SOCIETY FOR DISCHARGE AND RELIEF OF PERSONS IMPRISONED FOR SMALL DEBTS.

MY LORD,

WHILST the loyal Volunteers of Kent were emulously demonstrating their high esteem of your patriotic spirit ; and not only raised up a monument to perpetuate its memory, but presented you also with the insignia of your profession as their Commander* ; whilst justly they recorded your Lordship's splendid entertainment of our most gracious Sovereign, his Royal Consort, his Nobles, and his People, and bore their own animated testimony to your ability and your merits ; an humble individual rejoiced at the several occasions : he feelingly participated in the satisfaction which they could not but afford : he added his mite to the general applause of millions ; and in a former edition of this Work presumed to offer his most cordial tribute of respect for your Lordship's character and conduct.

* On the spot where their Majesties dined, a pavilion was erected in his Lordship's park, inscribed, " A Tribute of Respect from the Volunteers of Kent to the Earl of Romney, Lord Lieutenant of the County." On this occasion 5319 Volunteers were entertained at the tables, after having been reviewed by his Majesty on the 1st of August 1799, at his Lordship's seat near Maidstone. And on the 21st of April, 1802, an elegant Sword was unanimously voted at Maidstone to the noble Earl, by the officers of the West Kent Militia, " as a token of the deep sense they entertained of his Lordship's uniformly polite attention towards them, and of the zeal he has ever displayed in promoting the real interest and welfare of the regiment."

Permit me now, my Lord, the honour of presenting to you, not, as in my former dedication, “ the slowly ripening fruits of my researches and labours ;” but an ampler produce, which hath been matured from year to year, under such cultivation and assiduous management as I have been able to bestow upon the indigent soils and various states of every prison in this kingdom.

Yet while I thus address your Lordship with a degree of gratification almost inexpressible, allow

allow me to add, that in visiting those prisons I have still, and lamentably to regret, that the medical aid so generally afforded to Felons, and to other Culprits, is, in many instances, withheld from the poor Debtor. He is thus too often left to languish, without any melioration of his condition whatever; a boon, however, which, from recent circumstances, it is earnestly hoped that the humanity of our Magistrates will, in future, be zealous to supply.

Our Courts of Judicature, my Lord, were perhaps never filled with men of greater abilities for their high office, or of more approved integrity, than at the present period. May it prove a glorious addition to the dignity of their character, that under their auspices the laws received improvement, and the oppressed captive for debt his liberty, when found worthy of so inestimable a blessing. Be it their generous object, their unceasing aim, and ultimately their essential honour, to have aided the subject in the speedy re-establishment and recovery of his rights ; and at the same time to protect the unfortunate honest debtor from merciless rigour and destructive confinement in a gaol ! Thus will they diffuse the most unspeakable consolations to the mournful wife and hapless progeny of a once wretched, because inevitably necessitous, husband and father ; causing the hearts of thousands, languishing under every privation, to rejoice, and bless such venerable preservers as the authors of their restored happiness !

To your Lordship, as its rightful patron, this little Tract again presents the narrative of peculiar sufferings and hardships ; lessened, indeed, as to some interesting particulars, but still loudly calling for the alleviation of god-like Pity. It is an offering, my Lord, of gratitude, to which your well-known humanity and beneficence are most justly entitled ; and which have so long and highly exalted the noble name of ROMNEY. It includes the united suffrage

suffrage of thousands of our fellow creatures ; and inscribes on the tablet which your Lordship's own virtues have raised, those indelible characters which Horace * so splendidly portrays :

Exegi Monumentum, ære perennius †.

To the patronage of your Lordship's venerable Father, the Society of Debtors, from small beginnings, owes its first establishment. To your philanthropy, my Lord, founded on so propitious a principle, must be attributed its present and yearly increasing prosperity. You have not only aided the good work by your pecuniary services, but especially by unremitted personal attentions, and the nourishment best adapted to its advancing age.

You have brought it forward, my Lord, to public observation and general notice, as the beloved child of a large body of the community, who have generously assisted by their labours,

labours, to rear it to maturity, under your Lordship's unwearied vigilance and care.

“ I was in prison, and ye came unto me,” are words, my Lord, that dignify a coronet, and ornament a crown. The honours which they confer are truly a robe and a diadem ; and cannot be applied to your Lordship but with a striking reference to that elegant description of Job : “ When the ear heard me, “ then it blessed me ; and when the eye saw “ me, it gave witness to me : because I delivered the poor that cried, and the fatherless, and him that had none to help him : “ The blessing of him that was ready to perish came upon me ; and I caused the widow’s heart to sing for joy.”

May that pleasure and satisfaction which are the constant associates of a benevolence like your Lordship’s, accompany your humane exertions through a long old age ; and when the period shall arrive, wherein our accounts must be given, may you, my Lord, receive that

that sentence which shall then be pronounced, “ Good and faithful Servant, enter thou into
“ the joy of thy Lord.”

Such is the prayer of him, who,
with the highest respect,
has the honour to be,

My Lord,

Your Lordship's faithful, and most obedient servant,

Chelsea,
1st January, 1808.

PREFACE TO THE THIRD EDITION.

I CANNOT present to the Public another edition of this Book on Debtors, without expressing my grateful sense of the great assistance which I have derived from my benevolent friend DOCTOR LETTSOM; as also for the pecuniary support in aid of the Charity, to a considerable amount*, which appears to have been sent me in immediate consequence of my Remarks on Prisons appearing in the Gentleman's Magazine, with the introductory observations of his liberal and enlightened mind. I wish to give honour where honour is so justly due. Had it not been for his energetic strictures on my faithful communications, from time to time, I fear that the prisons, in many instances, would not only have remained without farther improvement, but, what is worse, that, in lamentable gradation, the improvement

which had commenced in some of them, would either have dwindled, or have been wholly done away.

After having tried, in various journies, and during the space of thirty years, what private conference with magistrates could effect, I had the discouragement, in some districts, to find, that the alterations I had presumed to suggest, were omitted or forgotten. The great reformation produced by HOWARD, was in several places merely temporary : Some prisons, that had been ameliorated under the persuasive influence of his kind advice, were relapsing into their former horrid state of privation, filthiness, severity, or neglect : many new dungeons had aggravated the evils, against which his sagacity could not but remonstrate : The motives for a transient amendment were become paralyzed ; and the effect had ceased with the cause.

At length, the arguments of my Friend prevailed ; and I consented to the insertion of some of my letters to Dr. Lettsom in the above Magazine, as the best channel, in order to ascertain the feelings of the publick at large, on so important a subject as IMPRISONMENT for DEBT.

The

The result was propitious and highly pleasing : Scarcely three months had elapsed, when, upon my return home, I found many letters, urging me to go on ; and success has exceeded my most sanguine expectations. The humane and considerate magistrates of various districts have cordially adopted and enforced the plan of reform. Their active energies have now, for five years past, been happily employed in effecting so salutary a change. Every journey I now take affords me the most reasonable hope that it will soon be completed. I esteem its advances among the amplest blessings of my life ; and trust that I shall be able to relish the retrospect of them even in the nearest views of Death itself.

INTRODUCTION.

THE Charity derives its origin from the beneficial consequences of a Sermon preached at Charlotte-Street Chapel, Pimlico, and afterwards at Bedford Chapel, Bloomsbury, in the month of February, 1772.

The collection made at these chapels amounted to the sum of eighty-one pounds one shilling.

To procure relief for the miseries of those unfortunate persons who were secluded from society by imprisonment for inconsiderable debts, was the design of the preacher; and it most certainly operated upon his humanity as a powerful incentive to his exertions.

exertions. His laudable endeavours engaged the attention of a set of Gentlemen to assist in the application of the money thus collected ; when the sum of ONE HUNDRED POUNDS having been sent to them by an unknown hand *, they extended their views, and formed themselves into a Committee, to search out for the objects it afterwards relieved, and to form plans for its future permanent and beneficial establishment. They visited the prisons ; and diligently, and impartially, enquired into the distresses of those miserable objects of misfortune, who had been separated from their families, rendered useless to society by a deprivation of their liberty, and had no friends to undertake their cause. In this visitation the distress and extreme wretchedness to which they were unavoidably eye-witnesses strongly affected their minds ; and they determined therefore to give the publick an account of their proceedings, and of their examination into the state of the prisons of the metropolis ; in hopes that it might operate upon the generous part of the community, as an incitement to their endeavours to forward the humane undertaking, and enable them to accomplish their design on a more extensive plan than in the commencement seemed to be suggested.

Accordingly, in April, 1772, they advertised their report, specifying the manner in which they had

expended the small sums they had thus collected ; and, “ that with these, namely, the fourscore pounds they had happily released thirty-four prisoners ; most of whom had large families, and appeared to be worthy and useful members of society ; some of whom were confined for their fees only. But the Committee expressed a great regret at the thought of leaving behind them various other imprisoned suppliants ; nineteen of whom appeared to be very great objects of compassion, and might all be discharged for less than one hundred pounds. Of the rest, many were evidently such, as well deserved to share the attention and benevolence of the Publick.” The Committee therefore solicited the aid of the liberal and well disposed, and had soon the satisfaction of finding themselves enabled to extend the charitable hand to a very large number of miserable sufferers in confinement ; for early in May 1773 (within fifteen months from the commencement of the undertaking) the following statement was published as their

Benefactions to this day - - - -	2922	11	10
Disbursements to discharge nine hundred and eighty-six prisoners - -	2892	19	4
Leaving in their hands a balance of	£.29	12	6.”

In the early infancy of their plan, the Committee were hardly sanguine enough to expect so liberal an encouragement, and therefore did not at first take an accurate account of the wives and children of the prisoners released. However, it since appears, that at the period in question, to the 986 prisoners above mentioned as discharged, there belonged 566 wives, and 2389 children, making in all 3941 souls, essentially relieved by means of this public Institution.

Far the greater number of objects released were manufacturers, seamen, and labourers, whose services, for a long time withheld from the publick by confinement, were now restored to the community. The charity, of course, was found to claim a serious attention, not merely from the avowed humanity of its purpose, but also politically, from the advantages which it afforded to society at large; and which, in a commercial country like ours, could not fail to produce conviction in every judicious mind.

In a very short time after its commencement, as appears from the books of the Society, the Committee had the satisfaction of seeing that various considerable debts, to the amount of twelve thousand pounds and upwards, had been, by this means, compounded for, and reduced; and thus a two-fold benefit was secured to the creditor and his helpless debtor, by an equal attention to them both.

The

The Committee became more animated by their success ; and their expectations were more highly raised, when they perceived what GREAT EVENTS from LITTLE CAUSES might succeed. They expand the human heart, and lift the soul in gratitude to Heaven. The rich seeds of benevolence were now largely thrown out, as upon a once barren soil, and the desert became a fruitful field !

Thus encouraged to persevere in the good work so kindly adopted, they determined to omit no means, under the blessing of Providence, of making it prosperous, and adding to it dignity, stability, and success.

At a meeting, therefore, on the 5th of May, 1773, the RULES and ORDERS hereafter mentioned were settled and confirmed.

Such were the exertions of the Members of this benevolent Institution. The little spark which was casually cast among such materials, had now kindled into a flame ; and many gentlemen, of truly philanthropic minds, stepped forward, to render it not only their pecuniary, but their personal assistance also.

By these means was the SOCIETY for Discharge and Relief of Prisoners for small Debts most completely established ; and their Office is now held (where it has been for thirty-five years,) at No. 7,

Craven-street, Strand, London, under the direction and management of the following Noblemen and Gentlemen ; viz.

OBSERVATIONS

AN esteemed Writer on the principles of Penal Law considers imprisonment, when inflicted for punishment, as not according to the principles of wise legislation. If this position be true in respect to crimes committed against positive institutions (and it seems too firm to be shaken,) how much more forcibly will it apply to civil arrests, and imprisonment for debt, when the multiplied and intricate concerns of extended society make the path of the most intelligent in matters of trade a course of considerable uncertainty. If then the political wisdom of confining the persons of debtors for debt be matter of doubt, how important is it that, whilst the practice is allowed to continue, it should be subjected to such general regulations, as are best calculated to lessen the resulting inconveniences, and prevent the necessity of resorting, at least so frequently as of late years, to the legislature, for acts of parliament to relieve insolvent debtors; which, while they do honour to the feelings of those friends of humanity who introduce and promote them, it must be admitted are too often perverted to screen a fraudulent debtor from the just demands of his injured creditors. It is the fate of whatever is human to be slow in its progress to perfection; nor is it matter of surprize, when rightly considered, that the laws of a country should move the slowest, where rectitude is their aim.

In the early ages of society the mind of man is less complicated than when advanced into the refinement of later governments. The laws at first laid down for his regulation are, like his habits, plain, and intelligible to the most ordinary capacity, being little more than moral rules or maxims, against which he is not to offend; and having few temptations to lead him astray, he readily forms himself to their government: But, when luxuries, the never-failing attendants upon successful commerce, break in upon his primitive habits, new laws become necessary to restrain the too free indulgence of his acquired propensities. These laws are not framed in the anticipation of new events, which a prospective eye may view as likely to arise in the progress of society, but to check what have already taken place, and to prevent their recurrence: Hence it follows, that laws so formed will always be somewhat behind the actual state of the people, their proneness to vice considered; and it frequently happens that laws calculated to suit one state of society, are permitted to continue in another, and to remain as law at a period, in which, if they were then introduced for the first time, they would be unanimously rejected, as impolitic, and inapplicable to the condition of the people to be governed by them. In this view of the subject, arrests for debt may be considered; and, although when England was the lowest amongst the commercial nations of Europe, arrests for debt might have been less impolitic, it can hardly therefore be argued, that their continuance should be suffered, when England, as at present, is the first trading country in the world.

In a commercial country the hazards attendant upon justifiable commerce entitle the unsuccessful adventurer to greater indulgences, than a debtor, under almost any circumstance, could have a right to expect in a country purely military. But, leaving the policy of the question, as to whether arrests for debt ought or ought not to be continued, to the judgment of those who are better able to consider it, and without venturing to anticipate what would be the decision, it seems a more useful appropriation of the time of an humble individual, to consider the law as it stands at present; and to inquire, whether whether a superstructure may not be raised, to answer many good and salutary purposes, without materially affecting the fabric, which, whatever may be its defects, has the venerable shield of time to protect it against the grasp of hasty innovation. Secondary causes, or inducements, to cast the unfortunate debtor into prison, or to continue his confinement when there, beyond what naturally arise between him and his creditor, should be watched with jealousy, and removed, if possible; and it would be desirable indeed, when a returning gleam of liberty presents itself to the prisoner, if he could be found no further encumbered with debt than when he first became an inhabitant of the gaol. At this moment of hope the debt can be arranged for; but, alas, the costs are of equal amount, and present an insuperable bar to his liberation! It would be deemed a wicked oppression, on the part of a government that transported a subject to slavery for a period of years, to say, at the end of the term, “Your labour was ours by the offence which you committed: We have now a demand upon you both for the clothing we have supplied, and for the provision you have consumed; and as you are unable to pay us, you must return again to slavery for the debt you have contracted.” His reasoning, that the origin of the debt was involuntary on his part, would be of no avail: the hand of power is against against him ; and as well might the debtor say, the costs were not incurred by his act, nor with his consent, and he ought not to be detained for them. When a disappointed and offended creditor applies to his attorney, he hardly desires his advice, but rather directs the proceedings to be taken with his debtor ; and, indeed, if he did otherwise, what answer could be expected ? Is not law the business of the attorney ? and is it found that men, generally speaking, who have the greatest temptation thrown in their way are the best ? Individuals may be, and are not unfrequently, so found ; because from temptation alone can self-denial and forbearance be discovered : but experience proves that it is not so with the great bulk of mankind. “ Just debts ought to be paid, or the laws must be enforced for their recovery,” is the language of the irritated creditor, re-echoed by his attorney ; with this only difference between them, that the one is unconscious of the result of what he directs, while the other, with the knowledge, has the satisfaction also of knowing that the plaintiff is a solvent man, and that, be the event what it may, the attorney must be paid. Thus, regardless of their operation on the unfortunate debtor, proceedings commence : in a short time considerable costs are incurred ; the already angry creditor finds himself exposed to a new loss, which he never anticipated ; and becomes becomes not only confirmed in his first resentments, but furnished with fresh occasion for their inveteracy. Is a man so circumstanced fit to judge in his own cause? Is he capable of deciding, with moderation and temper, upon the portion of imprisonment his debtor ought to endure? It will be readily answered, "Certainly, no!" The hardened creditor will triumph in the imprisonment which he has power to inflict,—regardless of the sufferings of the man, whom, perhaps, he at first solicited to take the credit he has abused, and equally unmindful of the wretched complainings of a forlorn wife and starving children; while the man less cruel, or perhaps indolent in his nature, as also the man basking in the sunshine of prosperity, will put away the prisoner from his thoughts. But, should his complaints or humble solicitations be obtruded upon him, he will endeavour to excuse his want of humanity, by the pretence that the confinement of the prisoner is an act of the law, for which he is under no responsibility. Can a more wretched state of man be conceived? Nay, more, does even the fraudulent debtor merit this perpetual, undefined punishment, in all the wantonness of its tyranny?

In further pursuit of these observations let it be supposed, that an unfortunate man, unable even to pay a debt of 10*l.* is arrested on the eve of a law term, and thrown into prison for his inability; and

and that, in the same number of days as he owes pounds, he will be involved in a fresh debt, of equal or greater amount, for the costs of his detainer in prison; what will be the exclamation of the voice of Reason? But, carry the enquiry a little further, and let us suppose, that his attachment by one creditor alarms the rest (nor is it unnatural that it should do so), and that he has ten detainers laid against him for debts of the same amount; what will then be his situation? Why, he will in a few days be encumbered with additional debts, for costs of a greater amount than all his original debts put together, at the very time that he is immured in prison, without subsistence, or the means of earning any for himself, or the wretched dependents on his affections, and, without having done a single act to occasion the expences which he is wholly unable to prevent. And what then will be the exclamation; and where, as the law now stands, is he to look for mercy? The Bankrupt Laws, which to the fair trader, who has had the good fortune to deal with humane creditors, afford relief, are not open to his assistance: he has been too modest in all his transactions in trade, to have ventured sufficiently to come within their purview; his debts are not of the required amount to entitle him to their relief. His creditors,—most probably of the same class in life with himself, and who can but ill afford afford to pay the expences that have been incurred, —will they commiserate his sufferings, and restore him to liberty? or will they not rather be acted upon, in the fulness of their resentments at the loss of their debts, and having, as they unfortunately experience, thrown away good money after bad, and (apprehensive, if they liberate the prisoner, they can have no pretence for suspending the payment of their attorney's costs,) be more likely to continue his confinement, and endeavour to throw the odium of the expences being incurred upon the pretended obstinacy of the unfortunate victim, for whom no one considers it his interest, or feels any incitement, to drop a word of kindness or mitigation? And yet, in a Country boastful of its laws and its freedom, these are the persons who are to pronounce on this imprisonment of their fellow-subjects, perhaps for the period of their lives, without the right of appeal to their country, or the hope of relief! Power in the hands of man is always subject to abuse; but what is to be expected from him, when he is suffered to judge his own cause, under the influence of conceived injuries, and agitated by resentment? The highest advocates for the dignity of human nature must admit, that, in practice, the result will not be found to elevate their subject.

In support of what is here stated, the ordinary and allowed Bills of Fees and Disbursements in cases of arrests for 10*l.* have been made out; by which it appears, that at the commencement of a term they will, within ten days, in London, amount to near 12*l.*

In the case of an arrest, where the defendant is taken to prison.

And in the country, if the arrest is made at a considerable distance from the county gaol, they will perhaps amount to 20*l.* in the same period of time.

The Lords' Act, which subjects the creditor to make his prisoners an allowance while he detains them in prison, may be considered by some as a sufficient sufficient check on the inconveniences here described ; but, upon investigation of the practical effects of this Act, it is apprehended it will not be found to possess the advantages which its humane advocates attribute to it. Five terms are allowed to the plaintiff to proceed to judgment against his debtor, and to charge him in execution ; and, until the proceedings against the prisoner are in this advanced state, he cannot apply for the benefit of the Lords' Act. The creditor, informed of this operation of the Act, instructs his attorney to do no more than comply with its directions ; and the attorney, in the course of the first ten days, having secured the greatest part of his expected harvest, is found obedient to his instructions ; and slowly protracting the remaining forms of proceeding against the unfortunate prisoner, spins out the five terms by measured distances, to retard his application for relief as long as he possibly can. Thus the prisoner pines at least a twelvemonth in prison, under the heavy afflictions of poverty and want, by the protracted course of legal proceedings, which might and would be completed against him within the first term, but for the provision (it may almost be said the tantalizing provision) made for him by this Act.

What is here stated seems chiefly applicable to the unfortunate, yet honest, sufferer. But we will

will now turn to the fraudulent and designing debtor, and see how the Act operates with respect to him and his injured plaintiff. Conscious of the time which he is aware will be consumed before he is put into a situation to seek the benefit of the Act, he takes care to retain to himself the means of subsistence during the protracted period ; then fraudulently makes over the rest of his property, to put it out of the reach of his creditors ; and when the time arrives for making his claim under the Lords' Act, he audaciously takes the prescribed oaths, and is ordered to receive its benefit.

The duty of the Judges, it is possible, may sometimes interfere with their judgments, whilst ordering the relief intended by the Legislature for the impoverished debtor, to many applicants, whose conduct, even in the face of the Court, almost amounts to a conviction, that their applications are made in the confident expectation of their plaintiffs' neglecting to make the due payments at the appointed times. It is the natural consequence attendant upon an order for the payment of an allowance to a prisoner, that it should not only be made in the current coin of the country, but punctually also, on a fixed day, and at a stated period ; and that any omission or non-compliance with the order should be followed by the prisoner's liberation : Hence it may be seen, that the payment of a counterfeit sixpence, (and who, in the present state of the silver currency of England, can be certain that their money is not counterfeit?) or the forgetfulness of the plaintiff to make his payment at the prison on the appointed day, or till one minute after the prison is shut for the night, must be followed by the immediate discharge of the debtor. What a promising speculation this, on which the fraudulent debtor may realize his hopes! A plaintiff situate many miles from the prison, will but in few cases continue his payments for several weeks: most likely he will fail in the first week; and the greatest rogue be thus cast upon society, to renew his depredations on the fair trader, without being in the least reclaimed by his imprisonment. Voluntary confinement, the basis of a contrivance to defraud, can produce no improvement in the moral habits of a prisoner.

From this view of the Lords' Act it seems fairly deducible, that the honest debtor may be starved before he can have the benefit of its provisions; whilst the fraudulent debtor finds in it the very probable, if not certain prospect of his liberation.

To remedy these evils as much as circumstances will admit, Insolvent Acts are devised. But, much as the principle of these Acts must be admired by every friend of society, and great as is the care of their humane framers to govern their operations by the wise and numerous provisions they contain, it must be admitted, that though productive of much general good, they will at times be found to extend their influence in favour of the profligate and designing debtor.
the

A modification of the existing laws respecting debtor and creditor, would, it is conceived, afford a remedy for the present inconveniences, without the necessity, in the first instance, of framing a new code.

The practice of the Courts may, in all cases, remain the same as it now is : But, surely, it will not be too great a boon for the unfortunate debtor to solicit of his country, that, whilst he remains in actual confinement, through incapacity to pay his debts, he should stand excused from contributing to the necessities of the state ; and that all legal proceedings against him, when a prisoner, should be exempted from stamp-duty.

The Judges of the land, not more elevated by their wisdom than their humanity ; and, mindful of the liberal and well-bestowed salaries they receive from the country, can have no hesitation in ordering the subordinate proceedings of the courts, conducted at their chambers, to be transacted gratuitously, without taking any fees for the same.

The

The Barristers, educated to fill, and in the hope of discharging at some future period of life, one of the most important trusts in human society, can be influenced by no mercenary motives. It is but justice therefore to the known liberality of the bar, to conclude, that they will, with one voice, consent to a privation of their fees, in all cases, where proceedings are to be taken against the unfortunate debtor, whilst in custody.

The Officers of the Courts, in the multiplicity of their other daily business, will find a remuneration for their trouble, sufficient to put them beyond the desire of taking any thing from a prisoner, absolutely denied the means of protecting himself and family, through the heavy inflictions of poverty.

The Attorney,—who principally labours in the business,—must perhaps receive some reward for his personal trouble; but he should be removed, far as possible, from the influence of interested views. The best mode of securing so desirable an end seems to be, the reducing his fees to half their present amount, in all proceedings against debtors under actual confinement. By this means the mercy of the plaintiff will not be restrained by the recollection of considerable law expences, in addition to his debt; and his resentments having subsided, he may in time think more favourably of his unfortunate debtor, and restore him to the blessings of Liberty. Nay, it seems not too much to apprehend, that the adoption of this plan, alone, would reduce the number of prisoners confined for debt, at least in the proportion of six out of ten.

But, to guard against the effect of a contrary temper in any plaintiff, who, careless or unmindful of his debtor, may incline to leave him to the laws of the country, and the imprisonment which they inflict,—a further remedy presents itself, under which an Appportionate Imprisonment might be inflicted according to the nature and extent of the debts, and of the particular circumstances under which they were contracted.

The first feature of a plan, professing to allow of temporary imprisonment for debt, should be the providing necessaries of life for the impoverished debtor, in order to protect the man, now rendered unable to protect himself, from the painful claims of unsatisfied nature. This allowance might be provided out of the county-rate; and, to prevent its misapplication, might only be furnished to those prisoners, whose necessities oblige them to live on the poor side of the prison, (deprived of all association with the prisoners whose better circumstances, or friends, place them above the necessity of seeking so humble a relief,) and who are, also, in a situation to declare themselves upon oath not to be possessed of the value of 20*l*.

This

This would prevent the recurrence of what humanity dreads to record; although it may be asked, "What else can be expected, when certain prisons in Great Britain for confinement of debtors are without any allowance of food whatever; nay, some even without access to water! and have no more than the keeper, or his servants, think fit to bring them?—In one place they paid a halfpenny for a jug of water; in another, a penny for a pailful!

The next object to be considered is, At what period of time the prisoner for debt, against whom no imputation can be brought of dishonesty or intentional misconduct, may, with safety to the state, be restored to his liberty. How obligatory soever it may be upon every man to pay the debt which he owes to another man, there is still a higher duty which he owes to his country at large, in the application of his labour and talents for the general good of the community; and of his power to perform which no man, under any circumstances, ought to possess the means of arbitrarily depriving him. It seems difficult to reconcile to any principle of sense or policy, that a man, to whom a debt of only 10*l.* is due (a sum very inadequate to the claim, which, in these times, the country has upon the annual exertions of the humblest of her individuals) shall possess the power of depriving the state of his

debtor's services for a long course of years—nay, for ever, without limitation of time in his favour to restore him to liberty. Surely, in like manner, as the less the nature of a man's crimes is who offends against the Criminal Law, the lighter is his punishment; so the smaller a man's debts bona fide contracted are, the shorter should be the period of his confinement. And here it may not be amiss to observe, that, generally speaking, the man who is cast into prison for a debt of 10*l.* may really be a more useful member of the country, by the due application of his labour, than the prisoner who is confined for 10,000*l.* A period of three months may reasonably be considered as a sufficient length of confinement to induce a more cautious conduct in the future dealings of a man, whose debts may not exceed 10*l.*; and proportionate progressive scales of time and money may be formed to produce the same good effect with debtors, whose debts are from that sum up to 2000*l.* And after these, perhaps, it might be as well to suffer all debts of a higher amount to be placed in the same scale.

But as the creditor ought not to possess an uncontrolled power over the person of his debtor, so perhaps the debtor should not be enabled to determine the quantum of punishment in the power of his creditor to inflict upon him: And, for this reason, his liberation at the periods proposed might not

not stand as matter of right, but only times assigned, when he may have the power of submitting his conduct,—in regard to the contracting of debts for which he is charged in custody,—to the consideration of a Jury, summoned by the proper officer, at the instance of the prisoner, and upon notice to be duly served on the plaintiff's attorney.

If, upon this investigation of the prisoner's conduct, nothing should transpire to induce the jury to remand him back to prison, their verdict might give him his liberty ; and the law might thereupon vest his property in the clerk of the peace, or other officer, for the benefit of his creditors, in like manner as the insolvent's property is now vested under the Acts for relief of insolvent debtors. But should the jury be of opinion that the conduct of the debtor merits a prolongation of his imprisonment, it might be safely left with them to determine the extent of its continuance according to their judgment, founded upon the facts disclosed in evidence ; and for this purpose the plaintiff might himself be examined on oath. Or, the power of the jury, in case of their remanding the prisoner, might be modelled according to the better judgment of Magistrates, or other more experienced persons, so as to do justice between the country and the parties.

The operation of such a plan as this upon the fraudulent debtor, is too obvious to require explanation.

tion. He would be remanded to an increase of punishment, proportioned to his misconduct ; while the honest, though unfortunate debtor, would be restored by the voice of his countrymen to his liberty, to his family, and to those social blessings, of which perhaps the becoming security for a friend in an unguarded moment, may have deprived him.

Another advantage also might be made to result from an appeal to a jury. The fraudulent debtor, who prefers remaining in gaol to the payment of his debts, and who lives in confinement, surrounded with luxuries,—whilst his plaintiff may pine without, scarce able to provide himself and family with the ordinary necessities of life,—might be summoned before a jury, at the desire of any of his creditors, after he had remained the apportioned time in confinement, according to the amount of his debts : and, unless he could shew a satisfactory reason why his effects should not be assigned for the benefit of his creditors, the jury might by their verdict, find for, and direct such assignment to take effect, and that the prisoner should be set at large. Thus the fraudulent debtor would be prevented from wasting that substance in confinement, which his creditors would gladly receive in satisfaction of their debts ; but upon which, as the law at present stands, they can have no claim.

If

If the principles here humbly laid down were approved of, a bill, with no more clauses in it than are ordinarily introduced into an Insolvent Act, would furnish all the requisites necessary to carry it into effect ; and which, it is imagined, would at once render Insolvent Acts unnecessary ; deprive the fraudulent debtor of the means of diverting the Lords' Act from its humane object, to the worst of purposes ; enable the unfortunate debtor to restore himself to pursuits of industry, for the support of himself and family ; and deter the evil-minded from levelling their fraudulent practices against the fair trader : or,—in case they should be found hardy enough to continue their evil courses,—by exemplary and not indiscriminate punishment, teach them to adopt a better plan of life when liberated, and to cease from defrauding their neighbours, under a daringly pretended sanction of BRITISH LAW.

Note, The disproportion against the first and lowest class, on a comparison with the second, is two to one; on a comparison with the third, is increased; and on a comparison with the fourth class, is twenty to one.

Middlesex is reckoned only at one fifteenth of the whole kingdom:

DIVIDED INTO FOUR CLASSES.

First Class. Debts under £30.		Second Class. Debts above £30. and under £50.		Third Class. Debts above £50. and under £500.		Fourth Class. Debts above £500.

The number of Debtors, consisting of the capital Merchants and Traders to all parts of the world, is reckoned greatly to exceed the number of those whose credit is limited to the sums of Thirty Pounds; the disproportion is therefore much greater against the lowest class than is apparent.

In 1793 the number of bailable writs and executions for debts from ten to twenty pounds, in Middlesex only, amounted to five thousand seven hundred and nineteen; and the aggregate amount of the debts sued for was £81,791.

It will scarce be credited, yet is most unquestionably true, that the mere costs of these actions, although made up, and not defended at all, would amount to £68,728.; and if defended, the aggregate expence to recover £81,791. (strange and incredible as it must appear) can be no less than two hundred and eighty-five thousand nine hundred and fifty pounds, being considerably more than three times the amount of the debts sued for or defended.

AN ACCOUNT

THE Committee of this Institution observe with pleasure, that no charitable establishment hath met with a more universal approbation than that in which they have so earnestly engaged. In the commencement of their plan the sums collected amounted to no more than eighty-one pounds one shilling; which the Committee having expended, were under much anxiety for the success of its future welfare, and greatly feared that the business must have terminated together with their labours.

However, the benefits they have since by the public bounty obtained, and been instrumental in diffusing among numbers of the distressed orders of mankind, afford them the most heartfelt satisfaction; and these benefits appear from the General Accompts annexed to this little tract.

As

As many advantages may be derived from a public Institution, which are not to be obtained by Individuals, several executors, and public bodies, the guardians of property to be appropriated to the discharge of debtors, have annually transferred it to the funds of the Society ; convinced of the highly superior benefits arising from their mode of procedure ; who are enabled to settle for the discharge of each debtor on an average regulation or payment of about two pounds fourteen shillings, which formerly cost them from four to six pounds.

The benefactions annually received are upwards of two thousand pounds, including legacies, with which the Society discharge about eight hundred debtors. But the Committee observe with concern, that the distresses of the poor have greatly increased, perhaps in proportion to the advanced price of provisions, and the decrease of trade and manufactures. They have, however, the great satisfaction to observe, that no objection worthy of the least notice has ever been urged against the plan or the measures they have adopted. Indeed they speak to the heart ; for at the same time that they appeal to every man's feelings, both his reason and judgment must approve them, and his humanity must plead for their continuance and prosperity.

The utility of the Society for the Relief of Insolvent Debtors will appear, from the consideration that every poor man's labour may be estimated at an average value of two shillings and sixpence per day, or three pounds five shillings per month. Now, the Society having set at liberty 848 imprisoned debtors, within the last year, the benefit immediately resulting to community will amount to 5512*l.* supposing each of these persons to have obtained his liberty only two months sooner than he would have obtained it without the assistance of the Society. And if to this benefit should be added the advantages derived by the prevention of such numbers of prisoners and their families from becoming burthensome to their parishes, the aggregate emolument drawn from the Institution will appear to be of vast magnitude and value. This, surely, is of great moment; and ought to claim the individual attention of the tradesman and the merchant, the patriot and the senator, to unite their efforts in so general an undertaking for the good of the community at large.

As such, therefore, it is, that the Committee are again solicitous to submit to their consideration a Society, which, since its very humble commencement, has conducted this cause of humanity with diligence and care; which has the honour of being joined and assisted by the pecuniary and personal efforts of many of the most respectable and illustrious personages of the kingdom, without whose aid
and

and exertions the Institution could not have been supported, nor the wretched inmates of a prison restored to their liberty.

The books of the Society, their account of receipts, disbursements, and other proceedings, are always open for general inspection. By many of the nobility and gentry who have taken the trouble of examining them, the most honourable testimony has been paid; and, actuated by the purest principles of Christian Philanthropy, they have set a noble example of generous liberality, for others to imitate and follow.

The number of debtors relieved and discharged within twelve months, from March 1807, amounted to 848; who had 567 wives, and 1548 children; and the expence attending the same was 339*5*l. 17*s.* 5*d.* The average therefore paid, including every incidental expence of rent, printing, advertisements, books, &c. requisite for conducting the business, appears to be about 4*l.* 0*s.* 1*d.* for each debtor. Nor have the exertions of the Society been confined to the gaols of the metropolis alone, but extended to the various prisons of England and Wales: No respect was paid to their locality; the calls of distress were alike heard and attended to, from whatever part of prison they came; and the magnitude of the debt was no object with the Society, provided it could be compromised and brought within the avowed scope and intention of their design.

Upon the Society's investigation into the state and distress of the debtors, many were found to have been imprisoned for years together for very inconsiderable sums : hopeless of any relief from a charity : so humble in its finances, and not professing to take cognizance of very large concerns.

Upon these plain grounds, therefore, it is submitted to the consideration of the judicious and feeling mind, whether an undertaking, thus arduous in itself, and kind to the community at large, doth not merit the warm encouragement of a Nation like ours, the most eminently and nobly distinguished for its policy and commerce, its liberality, and genuine love of benevolence.

The applications made to the Society, notwithstanding all its past exertions, increase ; and especially from the county gaols, where the unfortunate debtor, who appears to have been long forgotten by every friend, now seems well informed of the nature of their plan. Objects like these have surely a large demand on public munificence ; and there is no doubt but that they will be attended to with suitable regard.

So widely, then, as the Governors of the Institution shall be enabled, by the public bounty, to throw open

open the doors of the prison ; so long as they can wipe away the tears of the helpless sufferer, by restoring him to his liberty and his family ;—in such proportion, and with an alacrity suited to the claim which shall be made, will this Charity be impartially extended throughout the kingdom of Great Britain to the poor and destitute debtor in his prison, who otherwise might have cried in vain, and found no hand to help him.

SOCIETY FOR THE DISCHARGE AND RELIEF OF
PERSONS IMPRISONED FOR SMALL DEBTS.

Craven-street, Feb. 17, 1801.

AT a Meeting of this Society, held on Wednesday the 11th instant, Resolved unanimously, That the thanks of this Society be given to their Noble President, the Right Honourable the Earl of ROMNEY, for the honour his Lordship has done them, in presenting the Treasurer's Report of the State of Prisons to his Majesty; and also for the unremitting attention his Lordship has been pleased to shew, upon all occasions, to the interests of this Institution.

Ordered, That the same be published in the Daily Papers.

OF THE

S O C I E T Y

FOR THE DISCHARGE AND RELIEF OF

I. NAME OF THE CHARITY:

THAT this Institution be called The SOCIETY for the DISCHARGE and RELIEF of Persons imprisoned for SMALL DEBTS.

II. OFFICERS.

That this Charity do consist of a President, four Vice-Presidents, a Treasurer, Secretary, and Committee.

III. COMMITTEE.

I. That the Committee be open to, and consist of, all such persons as are qualified to be Governors.

II. That of the Committee three members constitute a quorum.

IV. MEET-

IV. MEETINGS.

I. That there be an Annual Meeting, on the first Wednesday in April *.

II. That there be four quarterly general meetings in every year.

III. And also a meeting of the Committee on the first Wednesday † in every month, at Twelve o'clock.

IV. Of all which several meetings, due notice shall be given by advertisement in the public newspapers ‡.

V. That the place for holding all such meetings be in Craven-street §.

V. OF THE TREASURER.

I. That he receive all benefactions, keep an account of all receipts and payments, and adjust the same at the four general quarterly courts, or oftener, if required by the rest of the Governors.

* Originally it was on the 5th of May.

† Weekly meetings were necessary in the infancy of this Charity; but such forms have been adopted, from the experience of the Committee, that, in its maturity, their meeting once a month at noon is found to be fully sufficient.

‡ The Advertisements have since been confined to the Quarterly Courts only.

§ The Society, soon after their establishment, took an office at No. 7, Craven-street, Strand, where the business of the Charity is transacted; but originally it was held at the Thatched-house Tavern, St. James's-street.

II. He

II. He is to advance no monies on account of the Charity, unless authorised thereto by writing, under the hand of three of the Committee at their meetings.

VI. OF THE SECRETARY.

He is to be present at all the meetings of the Governors, to take the minutes ; receive and prepare all petitions ; make the necessary enquiries, and report to the Committee concerning them : To draw up the accounts, and carry on the correspondence and business of the Charity, under the direction of the Committee.

VII. OF GOVERNORS IN GENERAL, AND THEIR QUALIFICATIONS.

I. That this Charity be supported by annual subscriptions, or other voluntary benefactions.

II. That all annual subscribers of or above the sum of two guineas, are, and shall be esteemed Governors, and of the Committee.

III. That if any annual subscriber shall be more than two years in arrear, his power as a Governor shall cease, until such arrears are paid.

IV. That all benefactors of or above the sum of twenty guineas, now are, and shall be esteemed perpetual Governors.

V. That the nomination of Officers be in the Governors, and determined by a majority.

VIII. OF THE OBJECTS TO BE RELIEVED.

I. They shall be persons actually imprisoned, whose respective debts, or the composition for whose debts, shall not exceed the sum of TEN POUNDS.

II. That women shall be equally entitled to the benefit of this Charity as men.

III. That such debtors shall have the preference, as are most aged or infirm ; have the largest families unprovided for ; are the most likely to be useful to the community ; and appear to have lost their liberty by unavoidable misfortunes ; as least, not by fraud, vice, or extravagance.

IV. That as to such imprisoned debtors as have helpless families, who suffer by the faults of their principal, and are undeservedly reduced to poverty, the Committee shall be at liberty to give the families some assistance, in proportion to their distress, and agreeably to the intentions of the Charity.

V. That no person be delivered a second time ; unless it shall appear to the Committee, that their second misfortune cannot be imputed to their own fault.

VI. That an account be annually published, of the number of persons discharged and relieved ; but their names not mentioned : together with an account of the sums paid for them, and of the prisons prisens from which they were respectively discharged.

IX. OF PETITIONS, AND PETITIONERS.

That, at their respective meetings, the Committee refer all the petitions then received to the Secretary, for his examination and enquiry, during the current month. That the report he shall make on them, with the vouchers for their respective characters, be considered at the next Committee meeting; and that they be proceeded on accordingly, in preference to any other applications.

DIRECTIONS TO THE PRISONERS.

I. DEBTORS who desire to partake of this Charity, must apply by printed PETITION ONLY; a form of which, as above, may be had of the respective Keepers, gratis.

II. No Petition will be attended to, unless filled up fully and exactly, as directed in the margin; those directions being so plain, that no difficulty can arise. It is therefore desired that every Petitioner will fill up his, or her, own Petition.

III. Those who apply for their liberty by Superseas, or for Sixpences, must send a copy of their cause, or causes, with the Keeper's certificate.

IV. All LETTERS, PETITIONS, &c. are to be forwarded to the Letter-Box, No. 7, in Craven-street, Strand, post-paid.

N. B. An attempt to impose on the Society, in any particular, will prevent the Petitioner's being relieved.

 A letter of thanks will be expected from every person discharged: and it is desired that no Bond, Note, Warrant of Attorney, or Obligation whatever, be given to such Plaintiffs as receive a composition from this Society.

Upon

Upon the proposed composition being accepted by the plaintiff, the gaol-fees are immediately paid, and the debtor set at liberty; with some small donation, according to the number and distress of family, &c.

And, in order to prevent imposition by SWINDLERS, the Society have found it sometimes necessary to apply to the Plaintiff, for his testimony concerning the debtor, by the following address.

FORM OF BEQUESTS OF LEGACIES.

I A. B. do give and bequeath unto The TREASURER of the SOCIETY for the DISCHARGE and RELIEF of Persons imprisoned for Small Debts, known by the name of the Thatched-House Society, in Craven Street, the sum of
to be paid out of my personal estate, and to be by him applied (with the consent of the Governors thereof) for the sole uses and purposes of that benevolent Institution.

N. B. Any Legacy arising from Lands is void, by the Statute of Mortmain.

THE foregoing RULES and ORDERS, and other documents for carrying into execution the benevolent designs of the publick, have been honoured by general approbation; insomuch that some of our great City companies, executors, and others, trustees for sums annually distributable for the discharge of debtors, have made the Society their Almoners; fully convinced, that, from the long experience acquired, "it can discharge as many for ONE hundred pounds, as they themselves can for TWO, or more." The Society, however, are always desirous to effectuate the general directions of such trustees, and to render them an accurate account both of the debtors so liberated, and of the monies so intrusted to their distribution.

TIME has, of course, occasioned some changes in the administration of the Society: but Christian Humanity is still the same: so that, although many of the NOBLE, the GREAT, and the GOOD, have been removed, others have kindly become the friends of the distressed Debtor, in their stead.

Know, there are found, on whose dilated breasts
The heaven-descended dove of pity rests:
Souls, that delight with fost'ring smiles to cheer
The broken heart, and dry affliction's tear;
Pluck the wan Debtor from his noisome den,
And launch him on the cheerful walks of men."

THE business of the Society being reduced to a regular plan, the Committee hold their meetings at No. 7, Craven-street, Strand, the first Wednesday of every month, at noon.

The Committee is composed of all such annual Benefactors as choose to attend : their company, therefore, will at all times be esteemed a kindness to the Society ; more especially, if any Gentleman should have any thing to propose, for rendering this Institution more advantageous to the publick, or essentially conducive to its prosperity.

☞ Persons desirous of establishing similar Societies in other parts of the kingdom, may have copies of the modes of business which the Society have adopted, gratis.

THE following STANZA from our celebrated SPENSER, is too striking not to claim a record in this place ; and is inserted for the noble sentiment which it is calculated to impress on every humane and Christian heart. Speaking of the holy Beads-men in the House of MERCY, he says :

August 1806, none.

Allowance; now sixpence per day.

REMARKS.—This Prison is the old gateway: the ground-floor, about 14 feet square, is for debtors, committed by a Borough process, who are entitled to their sixpences in six weeks. This room has a glazed window, and a fire-place. Up-stairs are three small sleeping-rooms, the straw in which, when I was there, was worn to dust. No court-yard. No water. A tub in one corner serves as a privy, and is emptied once a month, for which the Gaoler charges eightpence. It is a fortunate circumstance, that no prisoners are long detained in this wretched place.

ANDOVER; Hampshire.

Gaoler, Thomas Cowley, a shoe-maker by trade.

No Salary. But he is likewise Town Crier, Keeper of the Town-hall, and Collector of the Market Tolls; from each of which appointments he derives some casual fee.

Fees; Debtors, 3*s.* 4*d.* No Table.

Allowance. Very poor prisoners have sixpence per day; and in extreme cold weather, a fire.

REMARKS.

This Gaol consists of two rooms with boarded floors. That for men is about 16 feet by 14. The upper room, for women, 14 feet by 12. The Borough allows straw only on bedsteads. No debtors sent here but by process out of Andover Town-court. The gaoler's house being under the same roof, a bedchamber in it is appropriated to prisoners, if more than the gaol will conveniently accommodate. The court is in front of the house, and separated from the street by a very low paling; so that the prisoners have no use of it.

REMARKS.

This Gaol was built by the County. The Earl of Thanet is Hereditary Sheriff, and pays the gaoler his salary. The prison itself is out of the reach of the floods, but the river sometimes overflows part of the court-yard. In the lower part of the prison are four vaulted wards for felons, 14½ feet by 13; a small iron-grated window in each, but no chimney: and over them are three good rooms, with fire-places, for debtors. Divine service is performed in the debtors' day-room. Only one court, 32 yards by 22; so that men and women prisoners mix promiscuously miscuously together in the day-time. There being no kitchen, the prisoners are obliged to dress their victuals under the landing-place of the flight of stone steps, which lead to the debtors' apartments. A pump in the court-yard. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are both hung up; as is also the Table subjoined, of which I took a Copy.

“ At the Midsummer General Quarter Session of the Peace holden at Appleby, in and for the said County, on Friday the 24th day of July 1797; the following TABLE OF FEES to be taken by the keeper of His Majesty's Gaol at Appleby aforesaid, were unanimously agreed to by the Bench of Justices then present, viz.

REMARKS.

This Gaol adjoins the back part of the magnificent Shire Hall. In the floor of the Prisoners' Bar a door opens, through which, by means of a ladder, they are brought up into Court.

The original construction of the buildings was faulty in the extreme; but the Marquis of Buck- ingham, ever attentive to the interests of this County, having humanely interfered in its prison concerns,
the

the loathsome Dungeon has been bricked up, and the gaol has received many and great improvements.

There is but one court-yard for debtors, 54 feet by 26, paved with flag-stones, and a sewer in one corner. Two day-rooms, with fire-places and glazed windows, the largest room 20 feet by 14.

Up-stairs are seven good bed-rooms, all free wards, fitted up with wooden bedsteads, flock beds, a blanket, and coverlet, at the County expence: one of the smallest rooms is set apart for women debtors. A liberal supply of coals is allowed to the day-rooms, from the 16th of October to the 16th of April; but, if the weather be very severe, the time is extended by the considerate Magistrates.

The Infirmary is a neat detached building, and consists of two large rooms on the ground-floor; in one of which is an excellent mill, with a pair of mill-stones for grinding corn, and an apparatus for dressing the flour. Above are two spacious rooms for the sick, with boarded floors, glazed windows, both light and airy; and a small cooking-room, with suitable conveniences for sick persons.

Books are kept in the prison, in which the Visiting Magistrates, Chaplain, and Surgeon, enter their respective reports. There being no stated Chapel, divine service is performed in the Shire-hall. When I attended it, January 13th, 1805, thirteen criminals and four debtors received the sacrament, which is administered four times a year. Many persons also from the town are accustomed to attend upon this occasion; and the money collected is distributed among the criminals. All prisoners are required to attend divine service. A Chapel within the prison, properly partitioned off, so as to exclude the classes from the sight of each other, is an accommodation much wanted. It would afford their exemplary Chaplain an opportunity of selecting, occasionally, passages in scripture the most appropriate to each class of prisoners; of admonishing the profligate, exhorting the thoughtless, and comforting the afflicted.

The alterations proposed are not yet [1807] completed: But new work-rooms are built; and it is intended to establish a manufactory, so that the prisoners may be usefully and beneficially employed.

It would likewise be of considerable advantage, if RULES and ORDERS were made by the Justices, and confirmed by the Judges of Assize, for the direction of the gaoler, and good conduct of the prisoners; and hung up in conspicuous parts of the prison, agreeably to the Act 32 GEO. II. cap. 28.

At the Summer Assizes prisoners are removed from hence to Buckingham.

The following memorial of a Legacy is hung up in the church, and the donation regularly paid.

“ William

“William Findall, in the year 1604, gave 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* to be paid on Midlent Sunday annually, into the hands of the Churchwardens of the parish of Aylesbury for the time being, for ever, out of Summer Leys, in the parish of Weston Turville, for the following purposes; viz.

	s.	d.
To the Poor of Weston Turville .	6	8
To the Prisoners in Aylesbury Gaol	13	4
To a Scavenger, to keep the Church-ways clean . . . . .	13	4

The remainder, after deducting 15*s.* 6*d.* for the Land Tax, is distributed to the widows and distressed poor of the parish of Aylesbury.”

There are likewise other donations which ought to be recorded; viz. The Earl of Chesterfield gives, every Christmas, two pounds of beef, and one shilling in money, to each prisoner. It is distributed by Mr. Curry, his Lordship’s steward at Eythorp, in the County of Bucks.

The Rev. Mr. Hopkins, for the 27 years during his officiating as Chaplain, has given to the prisoners, every Christmas, one guinea, which is equally distributed amongst them by the Gaoler.

The Act of Parliament for the Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are here conspicuously hung up.

REMARKS.

This Prison was built, as appears by the date, in 1706. It has two dark and offensive rooms below; one of which is called The Gaol, the other The Bridewell. Straw upon the floor to sleep on. The debtors confined here are by process issuing out of the Borough court.

In the Keeper's house there is a room above-stairs, for such debtors as can pay 2*s*. 6*d*. per week. No court-yard; but one might be made from the garden behind the house. No water accessible to the prisoners. No employment for them. Neither the Act for the Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, hung up. No Rules and Orders. The whole Prison dirty.

REMARKS.

This Prison is situated in Grove-street, to which the ascent is by a fine flight of stone steps. On the entrance-floor are the keeper's apartments. Above are three stories, five good-sized rooms on each; two of which are used by the keeper, the rest for debtors. One bed in a room, for which the prisoner pays 3*s.* 6*d.* per week. Two rooms on the second story are free wards; one for men, the other for women; to which the Corporation allows loose straw on the floor. The City sends coals for the prison. There is no Chapel: divine service (when performed) is in a front room, 17 feet by 14, one half of it taken up by a large barrack-bedstead. Previous to my visit 1803, there had been no divine service for many years; though at one of my visits there were 31 prisoners. The Police of this City appears to be well regulated in every respect, except its prison. The Act for the Preservation of Health not hung up; but there is painted on a board, "No Strong Liquors admitted, "under the penalty of ten pounds, or three months "imprisonment." There is a small court, 52 feet long and 16 feet wide, for debtors and petty offenders, with a passage to the felons' court. Mrs. Dickenson, who resides at Bath, has sent every year, for the last seven years, at Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, one pound and a half of meat, a half-quartern loaf, and potatoes, to every prisoner. Debtors are sent here from the Court of Requests for Bath, and its Liberties, the parish of Walcot, the several parishes and places in the Hundreds of Bathfordon and Wellow, the Liberties of Hampton, Claverton, Easton and Anrill, all in Somersetshire; which Court takes cognizance of all debts not exceeding ten pounds. The imprisonment for debts above five pounds, is 200 days!

REMARKS.

This Gaol is also the County Bridewell. It stands on the strait, or narrow channel, called The Menai, and near the old castle fortified by Edward I.

For Debtors here is a court-yard, an oblong square, of about 48 feet by 39; and on the second story they have six good-sized sleeping-rooms, with fire-places and glazed windows; for which, if the debtor brings his own bed, he pays nothing: otherwise straw, in lieu of bedding, is furnished by the County; but if the keeper furnishes a bed, the charge is 2s. per week.

On the ground-floor there is a common kitchen, with a fire-place, and a pantry. There being no chapel, divine service is performed in the keeper's parlour. The window of this room commands the debtors' part of the prison; but of the felon's part there is no view whatever, except through the iron-palisaded gate hereafter mentioned.

The Felons' court-yard is about the same size as the debtors'; a day-room with a fire-place, and five sleeping-cells on the ground-floor, 8 feet 4 inches by 7 feet two, and 7 feet 9 inches high. These have arched roofs, with brick floors, and are dark, damp, and insecure; supplied with plank bedsteads, chaff in ticking beds, two blankets, and a rug.

A wall

A wall, intended as a separation, divides the debtors' court-yard from that of the felons; but a constant communication is kept up, by means of two iron-palisaded gates, through one of which you must pass to the felons' part of the gaol. This however is insecure, a felon having made his escape about three weeks before my visit in 1803. At that period, the court-yards, day-rooms, pantry, and common kitchen, had all of them mud-floors, which have since been paved with flag-stone.

For the conveyance of Transports the Gaoler makes a bill. I remember he told me, that the whole of his fees in 1800 amounted only to 12*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* so that, his salary included, he had no more than 47*l.* 13*s.* 10*d.* to maintain himself, and support a wife and seven children; adding, that Lord Bulkeley humanely employed him at times amongst his labourers, or he must be in a state bordering on starvation*.

This Prison is said to be whitewashed once in two or three years; but the good effects of that wholesome process are destroyed, as every chimney in the place is smoky.

* It is but an act of humanity and common justice to observe, that every where in Wales, in Cornwall, and some nearer parts of England, the salaries of Gaol-keepers are very small, and inadequate to the faithful discharge of so important a trust.

No water, but what the Gaoler fetches from a fine spring 96 yards distant, and then pours into a square box lined with lead, which holds about 22 gallons : a task easily to be prevented, as the water might be laid on at a small expence.

No fuel allowed the prisoners : no separate court-yard, day-room, or kitchen, for women-debtors, who therefore must mix with the Bridewell prisoners : no mops, brooms, pails, towels, or soap, to keep the prisoners or their prison clean ; so that I was not surprized at finding the gaol dirty.

Neither the Act for preserving the Health of Prisoners, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors hung up. No Magistrate, the keeper said, had been within side the Gaol for seven years.

The Keeper told me in 1803, that the Under-Sheriff had reduced his salary as Gaoler to Five Pounds. By the Statute of 24 Geo. III. it is clearly expressed, "that the Justices of the Peace are to order and direct the salaries to be paid out of the County-rate, by the Treasurer of such County."

REMARKS.

This Gaol was first inhabited June 17, 1801, and stands in a good situation, being just out of the town. The entrance to the prison is the turnkey's

house, a handsome stone building, with a sitting-room on one side ; and on the other a warm and cold bath, with an oven to purify infected or offensive clothes. Up-stairs is the turnkey's sleeping-room, and another in which the County-clothing is put on, and that of the prisoners ticketed and hung by, till discharged. Here is likewise a reception-cell for the newly-arrived prisoner, till he is examined as to his health, previous to admission into the interior. At the top of the building is the flat roof, the place of execution.

After passing through the lodge, the way to the keeper's house is through a small garden, of 32 feet in length. The Keeper resides in the centre of the prison. On the ground-floor are his parlour, kitchen, and pantry ; and behind them an open space, called The Hall, in which I now found both the Act for the Preservation of Health, and the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, conspicuously painted on a board, and hung up ; with weights and scale s likewise, for the use of the prison. Into this Hall three lobbies open, of five feet wide : over the entrance-gate of one is inscribed in stone, " Men Felons and Convicts ;" of a second, " Women Felons, and Debtors ;" and of the third, " House of Correction."

The above three lobbies contain two day-rooms each, which open into six court-yards for the several classes ; one day-room for men, the other for women ; having glazed windows and fire-places, to which coals are allowed during the six winter months : they are fitted up with benches and cupboards for provisions ; and cooking utensils, towels, &c. are very considerably provided by the magistrates. In each lobby there are four working-cells.

Criminals are here employed in beating hemp, but receive no part of their earnings. Debtors sometimes procure employment from without, and have all they earn.

Over the Hall is a room of the same size, in which the articles of County-clothing are deposited : also three lobbies, like those below ; two for criminal prisoners ; and the third has six sleeping-rooms for poor debtors ; two of which rooms are of 13 feet by 8, and the other four 10 feet by 8, having fire-places and glazed windows, and fitted up with iron-frame bedsteads *, sacking bottoms, straw in canvas bed, blanket, and rug, furnished gratis at the County's expence.

* In the course of the ensuing Work, the Reader will repeatedly meet with bedsteads of this, and other descriptions. The present sort needs no explanation : but it may be proper to note, that barrack bedsteads (or beds) are low stages of boards, raised on the floor, and made more or less sloping from the wall towards the middle of the room ; and used in the barracks for soldiers. Crib bedsteads take the name from their cradle form.

For

For those who can pay, here are rooms of better accommodation, which are supplied by the keeper at 2s. 6d. a single bed per week ; or, if two sleep together, at 2s. weekly each. If the debtor finds his own bedding and sheets, he pays 1s. 6d. per week.

The Chapel is in the centre, on the second, or attic story, where the prisoners are properly seated according to their respective classes ; and all, under pain of chastisement, are required not only to attend divine service, unless prevented by illness, but to deport themselves reverently there. Two rooms are set apart for infirmaries, with boarded floors, 14 feet 8 inches by 10 feet 6, and 9 feet 8 inches high ; also with fire-places and glazed windows. At the top of the building is an alarm-bell. The before-mentioned six court-yards for the different classes are, upon an average, 54 feet by 30, with open wood palisades, about 17 feet distant from the boundary wall ; but only one of them is appropriated to men and women debtors.

There is a pump in every court-yard, and the whole prison well supplied with water, and kept very clean.

BERWICK; Town and County Gaol.

He lives distant, and keeps a public house.

Fees ; freemen, none ; non-freemen, 2*s.* 6*d.*

Chaplain, none. Surgeon, none : if the parish surgeon attends, he is paid by the Treasurer of the Corporation.

Number of Debtors.

1801, Nov. 9th, . . . 1 | 1802, Sept. 7th, . . . 3

Allowance. At a Guild, held Jan. 18th, 1800, it was agreed (on account of the dearness of provisions) that every prisoner, being a freeman, should have nine-pence per day, and every non-freeman six-pence.

REMARKS. This gaol is over one end of the grand Town-hall. For debtors there are three rooms, all free wards, two with fire-places, to which the town allows coals ; and one bed is furnished by the Corporation. No court-yard ; but the Long Room, into which the debtors' apartments open, has on each side four lift-up sash windows ; and they are also permitted to walk on the leaden roof. No water : it is carried up by the beadle, and put into a cistern daily. No employment.

REMARKS. The Hull Garth, for Debtors, in the Liberty of St. John of Beverley, is a Manor-gaol, or Court Baron, held by Lord Yarborough. Over the hall it has five rooms (16 feet by 10) ; two have fire-places, some of them brick, and the rest boarded floors. Debtors pay 1*s.* 3*d.* each per week for a bed furnished by the keeper. No court. There are said to be 113 towns, or parts of towns, within this Liberty of St. John. The keeper, together with the prison, has about three acres of ground, for which he pays 12*l.* a year. He told me “ he was going to leave it, as all he had to depend on was selling a little ale, and being in a bye place out of the town, he was a great loser. The reason,” he said, “ that he had no prisoners was, that the Steward of the Court was only an Attorney, and could not act without a barrister, which was too expensive, so that his gaol was neglected. That when he first came there, Mr. Beatniff, barrister, was chief-steward, and Mr. Ramsay, attorney at law, deputy steward ; that at that time he had many prisoners, and was doing very well ; but Mr. Beatniff being dead, and Mr. Hall, the present chief-steward, not being a barrister, he very seldom had any prisoners.”

REMARKS.

For debtors here are three rooms; one below, furnished by the Gaoler, at 2*s.* 6*d.* per week; and a small one, where, if the debtor finds his own bed, he pays 6*d.* a week: the third room is up-stairs, where the Keeper furnishes a bed at 1*s.* 3*d.* per week. Here is one small court-yard for all descriptions of prisoners, with a work-shed in it, but no water; the Gaoler fetches it from over the way. A Table of Fees payable to the Attorneys and Clerk of the Court, and signed by the Mayor, Recorder, and Aldermen, is hung up; and likewise a Table of the Antient Customs. Debtors are committed to this prison by the Court of Requests, as well as those prosecuted in the Court of King's Bench, and in the Town court. Neither the Act for preserving Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, hung up. The whole prison dirty.

REMARKS.

This receptacle for Debtors is situate in Philip-street:—a dark dirty dungeon, about 3 yards and half square, led down to by seven steps, to receive men and women; and one sleeping-room above it, about 12 feet square, with straw upon the floor. It is in a little back court-yard, 13 feet 10 inches by 13 feet, belonging to the Keeper's house. There are three other rooms, to which he furnishes beds for those who who can pay 2s. per week. The dungeon is used as a day-room, on account of the little court-yard; and I was informed, there have frequently been four, and, at one time, fifteen prisoners in it!

Strange as it may appear, debtors in this place are not allowed to work; which seems cruel, inasmuch as their confinement may last forty days.

The Keeper told me, that were he to permit a debtor to work, he should make himself liable to pay both debt and costs. This reminds me of Mr. Howard's remark, "that when he visited this Gaol in the year 1782, the Keeper informed him, he had been obliged to pay a shoe-maker's debt of sixteen or seventeen shillings, and costs, for permitting him to finish a piece of work, which the man had begun before his confinement."

It has been well said, by a Biographer of my revered predecessor, that we may hope his plans will terminate in such general regulations, as to make judicial confinement the means of amendment in morals, and of acquiring habits of industry; whilst the few criminals, who may be too depraved for amendment, will be compelled to become beneficial by their labours, and suffer nothing more than that restraint which is needful for society, and that exertion which they ought never to have abandoned.

RE-

REMARKS.

This Gaol, built on a fine eminence, at a little distance from the town, fronts the South; and the steepness of the ground appears to be of advantage in many points, by placing the several buildings above each other, and thereby giving to all a full sun, and fresh air. A copious stream of excellent water is brought in above the Gaoler's house, distributed through every ward, to supply the baths, and other uses, and ultimately carried off by the sewers. The Prison was first inhabited in June 1779. The Gaoler's house, in the centre, has a turret, with an alarm bell and clock, and four good rooms well-furnished, for Master's-side debtors, who pay as per Table. They have likewise a very neat semicircular garden on the North side of the Keeper's house, where they take the air. For the common-side debtors, there are in the prison nine small sleeping-rooms, 10 feet by 7, and 8 feet 9 inches high, for which they pay as per Table, Second Class. A court-yard 54 feet by 20, with arcades 24 feet by 14, and two day-rooms, one 30 feet by 14, the other 20 feet by 12, with a fire-place in each; an oven, benches and stools to sit upon, with cupboards, and other conveniences for frugal cookery, and for which the considerate Magistrates allow coals.

The

: The Chapel is in the centre-building, 30 feet by 20 : the criminal prisoners seated below, where the women are out of sight of the men. The debtors and gaoler's family occupy the galleries : all are required to attend divine service : their behaviour at my several visits was orderly and devout, and the duty impressively performed by the worthy Chaplain. Their intelligent Keeper furnishes employment to all who are willing to work, by which many have been enabled to send relief to their families ; and others, by learning to saw timber and stone, have created a new source for their industry, when discharged. The Surgeon is humane, and attentive in the discharge of his duty. The prison is frequently visited by the Magistrates, and very clean. It is worthy of remark, that there have been but fifteen deaths in 27 years, out of 3877 prisoners ; strong proofs of a healthy situation, and good government.

" RULES and ORDERS.

I. No Garnish, or other exactions at entrance, permitted to be taken.

II. No abuse, ill-treatment, or affray, to be suffered between the prisoners: if such do happen, the actors and abettors to be punished at the discretion of the Head Gaoler, by closer confinement, harder labour, or reduced allowance.

III. All sorts of games for money or liquors, are strictly prohibited, and must be prevented; and innocent exercises, and such as are conducive to health, only to be allowed.

IV. Master, or principal debtors of property, are to be lodged at their own request and choice, in the Keeper's house, paying the established rates, and no more, for rooms, beds, and diet*. Ordinary debtors are to be lodged over the arcades, in beds of the Keeper's, or their own, according to their choice or ability of paying the established rates."

I beg leave here to pay a tribute of respect to the memory of my learned friend Dr. Hall, the much-lamented physician of this town. At my first visit to the prison, I found this excellent man visiting and gratuitously prescribing for the sick, which I was informed had been his constant practice; and it continued till September 1806, when an accident deprived society of one of its most useful members.

RE-

REMARKS.

The Borough Compter (vulgarly called The Clink) is under the jurisdiction of the Bailiff of Southwark, but controulable by the City of London ; and extends its influence over five parishes.

Debtors have one small court-yard, about 19 feet square. On the ground-floor, on the right hand, is the women's day and sleeping room, 24 feet by 9 feet 6 inches. On the left hand is another, intended for men, 41 feet by 10 ; but the floor of this room being only of earth or mud, and unfit to sleep on, no use has been made of it for many years ; so that the men and women associate promiscuously together in the women's apartments, during the day time.

Above stairs are two rooms of the same size as the former ; and these, in 1801, were in good repair. All these rooms have fire-places ; but no coals are allowed ; no kettles or saucepans to cook provisions ; no mops, brooms, or pails, to keep the gaol clean ; no bedsteads, bedding, nor even straw to lie upon ! Hence the debtors are obliged every night to sleep in their clothes upon the dirty boards.

All who are arrested by process issuing out of the Borough Court, are sent to this miserable prison ; and in the house there are two rooms, of about 8 feet square, for such as can pay 3*d.* per night night for a bed. The following is a list of commitments hither, for six years, from 1801 to 1806, inclusive : In 1801,—180. In 1802,—160. In 1803,—170. In 1804,—125. In 1805,—131. In 1806,—147.

The extreme distress and wretchedness which I had often witnessed in this place, particularly in the years 1801, 1802, 1803, and 1804, induced me, at length, to address the Lord Mayor by letter, of which the subjoined is a transcript :

“MY LORD, Chelsea, 11th December, 1804.

“I BEG pardon for the liberty I take in addressing myself to your Lordship ; but, when the importance of the subject, and the object it has in view, are considered, they will, I trust, plead excuse. It is now more than three years since I made my first report to the Lord Mayor and Court of Aldermen, of the state of the Borough Compter. A Committee was appointed to inspect it. The windows were repaired and glazed : it was white-washed, and swept. This being all the improvement it has received, permit me to trespass on your Lordship’s patience, and that of the Honourable Court, whilst I describe its present state.

“Sir Watkin Lewes, as Bailiff of the Borough, is, I presume, the Keeper. His Deputy, John Bullevant, has no salary. This prison extends its jurisdiction over five parishes. Men and women debtors have one small court-yard, about 19 feet square, and they appear to me at all times to associate together. They have nothing but the dirty boards to sleep upon. No bedding, nor even straw allowed. No fire, even in this cold and damp season. No medical assistance in sickness. No religious attentions whatever. The few remaining boards in the men-debtors' room (mentioned in my former report) are now taken away, as are the joists on which they were laid. The room is useless; the floor is earth. Neither mops, brooms, or pails are allowed to keep the Prison clean. Soap and towels are not afforded to the prisoner; so that a man may, for a debt of one guinea, remain in this wretched place forty days, without once taking off his clothes, or washing his hands and face.

“Permit me now, my Lord, to submit to your consideration the Allowance to this prison. It is a two-penny loaf a day : weight, 10th March, 1801, six ounces ! and 7th December, 1804, eight ounces. This scanty provision, without any nutritious liquor, only water, is not sufficient to support the cravings of nature; and the prisoner at his discharge may be fit for an hospital, but he cannot be fit for labour. The County of Middlesex allows to prisoners of this description, in Cold Bath Fields, a loaf of bread of one pound weight every day, a pint of gruel every morning, morning, a quart of broth made of rice and oat-meal for dinner, and every other day six ounces of meat for dinner, instead of broth. They have a common room, with a fire-place, and a peck of coals per day ; a sleeping-cell 7 feet by  $5\frac{1}{2}$ , with plank bedsteads, straw in ticking beds, a blanket, and a rug. What a contrast ! what shall I say to a system still continued, though respectfully submitted to the Court more than three years ago ? I am informed there has been no resident Alderman in this ward for many years, which may in some measure account for the total neglect of this miserable place. The 65 penny loaves every eight weeks (from Mrs. Symcott's gift) might, if distributed at proper periods, according to the number of debtors, be of real service ; but they are sent all at one time ; and the late Keeper informed me, when there was only one debtor, he had the whole, and sold them.

“No enquiry ever appears to be made about the state of this prison, and there being no resident Magistrate, the cries of the miserable never reach that Court, where distress seldom supplicates in vain. The annual donation of 20s. by the Archbishop of Canterbury, is distributed in the same inconsiderate manner as the bread. Liberality, Benevolence, and Humanity, are the characteristics of the City, and on all public occasions she extends them in a manner worthy the first city in the world. The Gaols of Newgate, Ludgate, Giltspur-street, and Poultry, are ample partakers of its bounty, whilst the miserable one I have been describing, situate in Surry, has no claim to the provision made by that liberal County. Forgot by the City; out of reach of being heard; it seems a wretched cast-off, and may be numbered among the worst prisons in the Kingdom. At my visits the 7th and 8th of this month (Dec. 1804) the number of prisoners, eight; viz. 6 men, 2 women; their condition ragged and dirty, starving, and (except one) without employ. In this extremity 2s. garnish is exacted from every new comer: That this picture is not overcharged, I am ready to prove, and will attend the Court of Aldermen any time they please to appoint, to interrogate the Keeper as to facts. Mr. Alderman Combe, when Lord Mayor, honoured my remarks on the Poultry Compter with the most prompt and effectual relief; and I humbly hope, my Lord, for a like exertion of your high authority, and for the exercise of a like compassion towards the unhappy objects of it. I have the honour to be, with great respect, my Lord, your Lordship's most obedient and faithful humble servant,

JAMES NEILD."

"*To the Right Honourable
Peter Perchard, Esq. Lord Mayor.*"

To the above letter I had not the honour of receiving any answer.

Bene-

Benevolence, however, occasionally, though very rarely, has sometimes found its way to these dreary walls. At Easter 1804, two legs and two shins of beef were sent. On the 15th of March, 1805, there were three men and one woman prisoners: the woman was extremely ill of a bloody flux, and the poor men had raised eighteen pence amongst them, and bought a truss of straw, of which they had given their sick associate a large portion. This act of sympathy pleased me much: the deputy-keeper too had lent her an old blanket, and humanely permitted her to come into his house, during the day; by which means, and with some other charitable assistance, she recovered.

On the 9th December, 1805, two legs and two shins of beef were sent, the number of prisoners being four; and also, the same year, two pair of blankets, and two rugs. On the 25th March, 1806, were sent three legs of beef, the number of prisoners at that time eleven. At my visit on the 28th, I found here five men-debtors, who had with them in the prison three wives and nine children; and that some humane gentleman had sent them eight small flock beds, and he also the same year liberated eight prisoners. On the 28th May, 1806, there were seven debtors, who had with them in prison five infant children.

The

The felons' court-yard is about 14 feet and a half by 11 feet, and separated from the debtors by a brick wall. Their day-apartment, called the Stone Room, of 17 feet by 12, has a fire-place, but no coals are allowed. Over this is their sleeping room, 16 feet by 14: no bedding, nor straw.

Criminals are confined here only for a night or two, till they are fully committed.

The following Table is hung up in the house:

“A TABLE OF FEES

	s.	d.
For the admission of every Prisoner for felony, trespass, assault, or other misdemeanour . . . . .	11	4
For every night's lodging . . . . .	0	6
To the Turnkey, for the admission of every such prisoner . . . . .	1	0
For every person brought by any peace officer for safe custody, until hearing can be had before a magistrate . . . . .	2	0

“And, for the better information of such prisoners, the Court doth further order and direct, that a Table of the said Fees be fixed up in the most conspicuous part of the said prison, for the perusal and inspection of the said prisoners, and others resorting to the said gaol.

“By the Court,

“MAN.”

When

When any provisions are sent in here for the debtors, the deputy-keeper's wife, Mrs. Bullevant, kindly lends them vessels for cooking them.

I have been assured that the head keeper had not visited this prison for eighteen months together.

The lowest sum for which I have seen any record of commitment to the Borough Clink was one shilling and seven pence ; the costs, three shillings and two pence : But the late under-keeper, Mr. Frost, told me there had been an instance of one person committed for seven pence !

In the year 1785, the fees and expences, on a debt of one shilling only, were 15s. 11d. for the payment of which the debtor might remain in prison for life, associated with felons, and other criminals of every description. But, by the persevering representations of "The SOCIETY for the Discharge and Relief of Persons imprisoned for Small Debts," the fees for Court-of-Conscience debtors have long been every where abolished ; expences are lessened ; imprisonment limited ; and, I wish I could add, an entire separation of such prisoners from felons. But, in almost every County Bridewell, or House of Correction, I find the men-debtors associated with criminal prisoners ; and women debtors consigned to promiscuous mixture with the most lewd and depraved of their sex !

Chaplain, none. Surgeon, if wanted, ordered by the Mayor. Allowance, none.

REMARKS.

This wretched Gaol, which is also the Bridewell, seems to have been made under the arches of an old monastery, on the ground-floor of which are two damp offensive rooms, 14 feet square, with a privy. Adjoining to the rooms above for female criminal prisoners, are two rooms for debtors, who are sent here from the Court of Requests for the Borough of Boston, Skirbeck Quarter, and parishes of Boston and Skirbeck. No thorough air. The debtor who was confined here, complained of excessive heat : he appeared to be in the last stage of a consumption ; and, being a medical man, said it was owing to want of air. Debt, one guinea ! Commitment, 40 days, which were nearly expired when I was there. No water ; the Keeper fetches what he wants for his own use from the adjoining street. No court-yard. It did not appear ever to have been whitewashed : and its filthy state did not surprize me when I considered the communication with the street. August 11th, 1802, debtor, one.

Surgeon, if wanted, sent for from the town.

Number of Debtors, Oct. 19th 1805, - - 2.

Allowance. Four-pence a day, if petitioned for,
at the discretion of the Commissioners.

REMARKS.

This Prison receives debtors from the Court of Requests for Halifax, Bradford, &c. It is situate on an eminence, called the North Wing, and was first inhabited in the year 1797. The Gaol stands on the left of the keeper's house, and consists of a court-yard for men, of about 34 feet by 16, which has a sewer in it.

On the ground-floor are two rooms, about 20 feet square, with fire-places and glazed windows ; and above them is a room set apart for the sick, about 14 feet square, accommodated in the same manner.

The women have a separate court-yard, 23 feet by 17, with a sewer ; also a sleeping-room 14 feet square, with fire-place and glazed window.

To all these rooms the keeper furnishes beds, at 1*s*. per week each ; but if the prisoner finds his own bed, he pays nothing. No fuel nor bedding is allowed by the town ; nor any employment furnished. The Act for Preservation of Health, and the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, not hung up.

BRECON ; South Wales.County Gaol and Bridewell.

Gaoler, Thomas Gittins. Salary 10*5*l. out of which he provides a turnkey, to whom he pays 26*l*.

Allowance ; one pound and half of bread per day.

REMARKS.

This Gaol and Bridewell was finished in 1782 ;
 but since my visit in 1803, has undergone many improvements. There is now a boundary wall of 51 yards by 37, and the Gaol is in the centre of the area. The ascent to the Keeper's house is by a flight of steps, and his apartments are on the ground-floor :
 on the right of his kitchen is the infirmary-room, and on the left a room for female debtors. Men debtors have a court-yard, with a pump and a sewer in it, a large day-room with a fire-place and glazed windows ; and on each side a large sleeping-room (which is a free ward) with a fire-place and glazed

windows. Up-stairs are four sleeping-rooms with glazed windows, and fire-places in two of them. If the debtor brings his own bed, he pays nothing; if the Keeper furnishes one, 2s. 6d. a week.

At my visit 12th September, 1806, the keeper told me that the allowance was now one pound and a half of bread per day; and that his salary had been discontinued two years. ## REMARKS.

This Gaol is built on a declivity in the midst of the city. It is much too small for the general number of prisoners. For debtors there are about fifteen large and airy rooms, two of which are free wards, for poor debtors who find their own beds. Those on the Master's side pay 2*s.* 6*d.* per week each; two sleep in a bed. No proper separation of men and women. Only one court-yard, 13 yards by 6 yards, into which debtors and felons are, at different hours of the day, separately admitted for air and exercise, and in which, when I was there, the linen was hung to dry. There are many narrow passages, and the utmost attention is requisite to keep the prison healthy. I found it clean, considering the felon-side was so crowded and close. No table of Gaoler's fees ; but the Rules and Orders to be observed are stuck up in several parts of the prison ; four of which I shall mention as particularly respecting the debtors ; viz.

“The debtor's room doors to be opened at six o'clock in the morning, and locked at ten at night, from the 25th of March, to the 29th of September ; and to be opened at eight o'clock the remainder of the year.

“No garnish to be paid : and if any prisoner demand garnish, or take any thing in lieu thereof, he shall be punished with close confinement.

“The debtors to wash, or cause to be washed, their rooms once a week at least.

“Instead of the debtors being allowed to beg at the grate, a box will be put out for the relief of those who are most in want, and who conduct themselves properly ; and the money so collected will be distributed by the Keeper.”

Mr. John Heydon left 100*l.* to be lent to two merchants, each paying annually to the Corporation for the debtors, as the interest of his moiety, 1*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.*

A Society

A Society is instituted in Bristol for the relief of Persons imprisoned for Small Debts; and this money of Mr. Heydon's is paid over to the Treasurer of that Society.

Mr. Freeman left 4*l.* 9*s.* to be laid out in bread and beef, and distributed on Christmas-eve, to prisoners of all descriptions. To this Mrs. Freeman makes a yearly addition of eleven shillings.

The churchwardens have for many years past annually paid 4*l.* 2*s.* two thirds of which are given to the debtors, and one third to the felons. No memorial in the gaol of any legacy. Besides the service noticed in its place, here are thirteen sermons in the year; for which the rector of the parish receives 4*l.* from a legacy.

The debtors' attendance on divine service is optional, and I was sorry to observe only 9 out of 33 there. So little regard is paid to the chapel, as a place of worship, that at almost all my visits, the prisoners have been smoking and drinking in the galleries! No employment whatever: such, indeed, is the confined situation of the prison, as to exclude the possibility of work. Young beginners and old offenders associate promiscuously together! An Act passed several years ago to build a new Gaol: Why not carried into effect in this rich commercial City?

Allowance. One pound and a half of bread per day, and one pound of cheese per week, both to Debtors and Felons: But prisoners and convicts employed by the County have an addition of a quart of small beer per day, and three-quarters of a pound of meat for Sunday's dinner.

REMARKS.

This new Gaol is situate at the end of the South gate, near a mile from the centre of the town; and the prisoners were removed into it December 8th, 1805. The buildings are inclosed by a boundary-wall 20 feet high, built in an irregular octagon form, the diameter of which is 292 feet.

Four sides of this Gaol are 192 feet each, and the other four 70 feet 6 inches each. The entrance to the Prison is the Turnkey's lodge, a handsome stone building, which consists of the entrance-room, sitting-room, and bed-room for the Turnkey. On the right hand is a room, with a fire-place, 12 feet by 7, and 9 feet 6 inches high, used as a reception-room, into which all prisoners are brought and confined, till they have been examined, properly cleaned, and proved to be free from any infectious disorder, before they are admitted into the interior of the Gaol; and there is a water-closet adjoining, for the use of this room. There are also two cells up one pair of stairs in the lodge, fitted up with iron bedsteads on stone bearers, into which all prisoners are put when brought in at night. The size of each cell 9 feet 6 inches by 6 feet, with arched roofs, and 7 feet 6 inches high. The Turnkey's sleeping-room, and a large store-room, are also on this floor. On the left of the entrance, within the lodge, there is a convenient workhouse, fitted up with an oven, copper, warm warm and cold bath, for the use of the prison ; and adjoining is also the brewhouse. On the lead flat of the Turnkey's lodge, which extends 16 feet, executions are performed. After passing through the lodge, the way is down an avenue paved with flag stone, with posts and chains, inclosing on each side a beautiful shrubbery border, that leads to the Keeper's house, which is also an irregular octagon building, situated in the centre of the prison, and from which the several court-yards are completely inspected.

The Prison consists of four wings, 69 feet long, and 32 feet wide, detached from the Keeper's house by an area of 15 feet, which, with the different court-yards, completely surround it. In all the wings there is a partition-wall 14 inchesthick, running along the centre ; so that each wing contains two prisons. The wing numbered 1 and 2 is the prison for male-debtors, in which there are two kitchens, fitted up with every convenience for frugal cookery ; the size of each 18 feet by 14, with arched roofs 10 feet high. There are also two passages 44 feet long, and 3 feet 6 inches wide, which communicate with their different rooms, of which there are twenty. Eighteen of these are 9 feet by 8 feet 6 inches, with arched roofs, and 10 feet high ; fitted up with iron bedsteads on stone bearers, sash windows, and fire-place in each room. Every debtor has one of these rooms to himself. Eight are on the ground floor; the others on the upper story, to which you ascend by a stone staircase at the end of the lobby, or passage. On this story are two rooms intended for the sick; size of each 18 feet by 8 feet 6 inches, with two bedsteads and a fire-place in each. There are also two courts attached to this wing, which are an irregular polygon; the one 64 feet by 42, and the other 64 feet by 34. Every court-yard has a pump with shy-boards in the centre of it, and to which all prisoners have access in the day-time. Number 8, the prison for female debtors, has a day-room 14 feet by 13, with a fire-place; one cell, 9 feet by 6, on the ground-floor; and one cell, the same size, on the upper story. A room, 13 feet by 9, with two bedsteads and a fire-place, for the use of the sick in this division. The court adjoining is 40 feet by 22. Every court-yard has a bench for the prisoners to sit upon; and there are water-closets at the end of each wing, so contrived, that the water runs all the time the person is seated. These wings being detached 15 feet from the Keeper's house, and the open fences inclosing the court-yards being the same distance from the house, forms a court round it, by which means all the prison and prisoners are conveniently attended to, or visited by their friends, without going into any of the rooms or court-yards. The ground-floor of the Keeper's house is raised six steps above the level of the other buildings; and the windows of the house are so placed, that all the prisoners in the different court-yards are under constant inspection, as well as all persons coming into the Gaol. The chapel is in the centre of the Keeper's house, up one pair of stairs: prisoners go to it by means of stone galleries, which lead from each wing to the chapel; and it is partitioned off, so that each class is separated the same as in the prison.

All poor debtors have the County allowance; and from the 5th of November to Lady-day, the debtors receive four bushels of coals per week, and forty shillings every Christmas from the feoffinent. Here is also a most excellent charitable fund, called Pemberton's Charity, (being left by a gentleman of that name) which fund is directed by the donor's will, "To be applied by the Trustees towards the relief of such poor, distressed, insolvent Debtors, as should be imprisoned within any of the Gaols of the County of Suffolk, either for delivering them out of prison, or relieving their necessities whilst there, as the Trustees shall think fit; provided such poor Debtors be persons born in Suffolk, and no way indebted to any of the Trustees." The Trustees under this charity frequently allow 3 l. or 4 l. and sometimes 5 l. to poor deserving debtors, towards obtaining their discharge; they also allow to each debtor two pounds pounds of beef, a pint of porter, and a two-penny loaf, every Sunday ; under this condition, that every debtor receiving it shall regularly attend chapel, unless prevented by sickness : But no crown debtors partake of this charity.

EXTRACTS from the RULES, ORDERS, and REGULATIONS.

XIII. The Gaoler shall not permit persons to visit debtors before Nine in the morning, nor to remain longer than Four in the afternoon, from October 1st to March 31st ; nor before Nine in the morning, nor to remain longer than Seven in the evening, from April 1st to September 30th.

XIV. He shall cause the debtors' sleeping-rooms to be unlocked every morning at Six o'clock in the Summer, and as early at other times as the day-light will allow them to work ; to be locked at Nine o'clock at night, throughout the year ; and the door from the day-room into the court-yard to be fastened every evening before dark.

XVI. He shall, at his own expence, provide proper bedding for the debtors, which, for each room, shall consist of a feather-bed, mattress, pair of blankets, coverlet, and sheets ; the latter to be changed once a month. The charge to be paid for the use of the room, including the above, with the expence of cleaning, shall be painted over each door.

XX.

XX. The Prohibitory Clauses contained in the Act of the 24th Geo. II. c. 40, against Spirituous Liquors, and the Act of the 14th Geo. III. c. 59, for preserving the Health of Prisoners, shall be painted on a board, and hung up in the Prison.

XXXIII. All Prisoners shall be compelled to put on clean linen every Sunday ; which, if they have it not of their own, shall be provided by the County.

XXXIV. There shall be provided proper scales, weights, and measures, duly stamped, for the use of the Prisoners, to weigh and measure their allowances, whenever it shall be required by them : notice of which, and likewise their different allowances, shall be painted on a board, and hung up in the courts of each division.

XXXV. Convenient places being made where the prisoners are to wash themselves, clean towels shall be provided in each division, twice a week ; and the men shaved every Saturday.

This Gaol does honour to the County, and is superior to most in this Kingdom; whether I consider its construction to answer the three great purposes of security, health, and morals, or the liberality of the Magistrates, in providing every comfort which can attend imprisonment.

The Keeper, Mr. Orridge, is well qualified for the discharge of his important trust, being active, intelligent, and humane.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, finished 1792, is also the County Bridewell. Here is a spacious court, 38 yards by 22, for men and women debtors. A well is sunk in it, and a reservoir prepared to supply the prison with water ; but having been out of repair four months, at my visit in 1803, the prisoners had been without that necessary article during that time, except what they bought at a half-penny a jugfull.

each about 12 feet by 9, with fire-places, but the windows were much broken, and out of repair. They are all free wards. The County allows iron bedsteads with straw in sacking beds, and five pounds for coals yearly, to be distributed amongst all the prisoners. Among the debtors was one John Williams; he told me he was confined for a debt of 18*l.* 10*s.* : that he was security for another for the payment of 24*s.* which he thought had been paid ; and the attorney had proceeded against him in the Borough-court, and from thence removed it to a superior Court, till the law expences increased an original debt of 24*s.* to 18*l.* 10*s.*! The Borough-gaol is now consolidated with the County ; the old gateway pulled down, and shops built there. Act and Clauses not hung up. Loads of ashes and rubbish in the several courts, and the whole prison dirty. Here is a very long range of excellent work-rooms, but no employment.

Among the convicts was one woman, so ill as to be unable to turn herself in bed, and without medical assistance ; though frequently sent for, I was informed the Surgeon had not been in the Gaol for two months. Another female convict, who had been two years under sentence of transportation, had a young child, of which she said the late Gaoler was the father. A similar instance I met with in Dover Town-gaol in September 1801.

Up-stairs are six sleeping-rooms, all free wards, to which the County furnishes iron frame bedsteads with sacking bottoms, straw in ticking bed, a pillow, two blankets and a rug. None of the courts paved, and fowls were kept in them. No water; the pump being out of repair. No coals allowed by the County. Act and Clauses not hung up. The Keeper is a shoemaker, and works in a front room. In the centre of the building is an inspection-room, 18 feet by 13, in which the Gaoler and his family ought to live, as it commands all the courts. A lunatic was confined with a felon.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, which in 1807 was not quite finished, is built in the centre of the old castle-yard. The boundary-wall encloses an acre and quarter of ground; and, being on an average about 30 feet from the prison, affords the keeper a convenient garden for the growth of vegetables. The Turnkey's

lodge is in front, and the Gaoler's house in the middle of the area.

On the first story is the Chapel, which has ten divisions for the different classes of prisoners; the whole are in view of the Minister and the Gaoler, and each class out of sight of the others. At my visit 25th August 1805, twelve out of the fourteen debtors, and all the criminal prisoners, attended divine service. Above the Chapel are three infirmary-rooms, about 15 feet square, and 9 feet high, with a room for the nurse; each has a water closet and sink, and there is a reservoir with a warning pipe, which supplies the whole prison with water. At the top is a lead flat, about 40 feet square, (with a parapet wall) for convalescents to take the air upon.

The prison itself consists of four wings, detached from the Keeper's house by an area of 16 feet; and has ten different court-yards, the average size 55 feet by 40, with open fences at each end, so that a thorough air is preserved. There is a pump and sink in the centre of each court, and a water-closet in all. One wing is appropriated to the debtors, and has two courts for men and one for women. Master's side debtors have a day-room 16 feet by 14, and two sleeping-rooms, 9 feet by 7 feet 6, with a fire-place in each. Over these are four sleeping-rooms, of the same size; all have glazed sash windows, and iron bedsteads, and are furnished by the Gaoler as the prisoners prisoners can afford to pay : all are single beds, and the whole have arched roofs.

Common-side debtors have a day room, 23 feet by 14 ; and four sleeping-rooms, of 9 feet by 7, with a fire-place in each. Over these are seven sleeping-cells, of the same size, with glazed sash windows, fire-places, and iron bedsteads : to these the County furnishes straw in sacking beds, two blankets, and a coverlet.

Women Debtors have a day-room on the ground-floor, 14 feet by 13 feet 6, and two sleeping-rooms above, fitted up the same as the men's.

Debtors have relief from legacies and donations paid by several colleges. From Sidney college four pounds annually, which is given at Christmas to poor debtors ; and in 1801, was distributed as follows, viz. to six poor debtors a shirt each, and the rest in coals and bread : from St. John's sixteen penny-worth of bread every Saturday morning. A collection is sometimes made in the town at Christmas, which has amounted to one guinea each : And 16s. a year is paid from an estate at Croxton in this county. No memorial in the Gaol. Allowance of coals not yet fixed. Mops, brooms, pails, soap, &c. to keep the prison clean, are allowed by the County.

REMARKS.

Up-stairs are three separate rooms for men and women debtors, who pay 2*s.* per week for a single bed ; and if two sleep together 1*s.* 3*d.* each. Water is accessible to all the prisoners now. Some relief is received from St. John's College, upon the Gaoler's solicitation ; and Trinity College sends three sacks of coals yearly for debtors and felons, which are used to cook their victuals in the house, and occasionally to warm themselves by, there being no common room or fire-place for either. There is likewise bread from the Colleges, to the amount of one shilling and seven pence per week ; and the Town furnishes straw for poor debtors, but no employment for any. The Gaol clean, but not secure. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors hung up. No Rules and Orders. No room set apart for the sick.

REMARKS. This Gaol is over the West gate. Here is only one day-room, about 27 feet square. No court. There is a room in each of the two towers, for debtors to sleep in (11½ feet in diameter), and the Keeper occasionally permits them to walk upon the leads. Only old mats to lie upon. The Keeper lives in a house adjoining, in which is a room or two for debtors, who can afford to pay for a bed. An old man goes about the City with a basket every Saturday, to collect from the butchers and green-stalls, meat and vegetables. He receives one third of what he collects, and the remainder is equally divided amongst all the prisoners. The Corporation likewise give him yearly a great coat, and a laced hat.

One common sleeping-room, which will hold four beds, for men-debtors who are unable to pay for bedding, and to whom the County allows straw. There are six rooms, each about 16 feet by 14, for those who can pay 2*s.* per week for a bed. A commodious chapel, where debtors and felons are kept apart during divine service. No employment furnished by the County. Two rooms set apart for the sick, and a bath. Act and Clauses both hung up. Debtors are not confined in the town-gaol now.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, finished 1797, is situate at the North end of the town; has a paved court in front, 42 feet by 27, with cast-iron palisades, which give it a handsome appearance. On one side of the entrance is the Gaoler's kitchen, and on the other his office; beyond which, and in the centre of the building, is the Great Hall *, or inspection-room, 38 feet by

* If the Gaoler were to live in the great hall, he would have a complete command of the whole prison; but at my visit, 1803, it was filled with corn, and two men were thrashing it.

30, of a circular shape ; with a flagged floor, two fire-places, and four windows, which command the four different courts, each of which is 20 yards by 16. The six passages which lead to the criminals' sleeping-cells open into this room. For debtors there are four rooms on the ground floor, and four above, each 12 feet by 11, with fire-places, but no fuel allowed. Straw only is furnished by the County for the debtors to sleep upon. The chapel is properly partitioned off, so that the sexes are out of sight of each other, and their respective lobbies lead to their seats. Over the chapel are two good rooms for the sick, the size of the great hall below, both light and airy, with a fire-place in each. There is no water on the premises ; the Keeper fetches it from a well a quarter of a mile distant: even the inhabitants buy it for their own use. No bath. The whole Prison very dirty. Geese, ducks, and poultry, in the courts. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors hung up. A lunatic confined with a felon ! No care is taken of maniacs ; although it is probable that, by medicines and proper regimen, some of them might be restored to their senses, and usefulness in life. No Rules and Orders. Seldom visited by the magistrates.

Allowance. One shilling and three pence per week each, if poor, on application to the magistrates.

REMARKS.

The Debtors' Court is spacious, 85 yards by 36 ; and has a pump with fine water. It was formerly common to all prisoners, but now a part is appropriated to the felons, 15 yards by 8, and separated by iron palisades ; through which they can converse with the debtors, or any persons who visit there. The gaoler's house is at the upper end of the court. The chapel (built, as appears by the date, in 1734) adjoins, and the prisoners mix indiscriminately to hear divine service.

Master's-side debtors have five rooms in the keeper's house, for which they pay 2*s.* 6*d.* per week ;

week ; and two sleep in a bed. Common-side debtors have four free wards, 23 feet by 18, and a small room : but they are in a very dirty and ruinous state ; with windows opening to the court : formerly they looked into the street. The sexes are separate at night, but together all the day.

No infirmary ; no bath : _ Act for preserving the Health of Prisoners, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, not hung up.

This Gaol is in a very ruinous and dilapidated state ; but there is an excellent situation near the Castle, where I was informed a new Gaol was proposed to be built. The Sessions-house might likewise adjoin, the present one being very old and inconvenient, from its being in the middle of the City, and distant from the prison.

CARLISLE City Gaol is over the Scotch Gate. It is only one ruinous room, about 20 feet square, with a fire-place, and a window 4 feet by 1½. No allowance. No court. No water. It was filled with lumber when I was there : no prisoner had been confined in it for 10 years. The prisoners from the City are kept in the County Gaol, by agreement between the Corporation and the Keeper. No town debtor can now be imprisoned for less than 10*l.* : they seldom exceed 2 or 3 in a year, and those only for a short time.

REMARKS.

This elegant Gaol, erected on a very liberal plan, at the County expence, was first inhabited in 1777. Its handsome appearance cannot fail to excite the admiration of every passenger : but the original plan, in many parts, was found defective. It was too much crowded by a large chapel, a needless tap-room, a spacious kitchen, and other domestic offices. These defects, however, have been since very judiciously remedied, by the abolition of the tap, and removal of the chapel to a more eligible situation ; by which many single cells have been added, and the salubrity of the prison increased.

Debtors and felons are here kept entirely separate. The former, men and women, have only one court-yard of 99 feet by 14, in which is a day-room, with a flagged floor, 22 feet by 14 ; and eight separate sleeping-rooms, 18 feet by 14, and 9 feet 10 inches high, with fire-places and sash-windows : likewise a straw room, or free ward, 13 feet by 16, with three sashed windows, and furnished with straw for those who cannot afford beds. A large upper room, called the smugglers-room, 42 feet by 16, with iron-grated windows, and furnished with good beds, is also appropriated to debtors, who can pay for the use of it. The whole Gaol is well supplied with excellent water.

Some

Some years since, Mrs. Herris gave lands in trust to the incumbent of Chelmsford, out of the rents of which 5*l.* are distributed annually on Christmas eve, in equal portions, to the debtors. A memorial of this is hung up in the gaol. The Act for preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously placed.

All prisoners are required to attend chapel; their behaviour when I was there was attentive and orderly. The felons * are classed according to their offences, separated by wainscot partitions, with an iron screen before their seats. I cannot help expressing the pleasure I received from the worthy chaplain's selecting passages of scripture, the most appropriate to the class he was addressing. He admonished the profligate, exhorted the thoughtless, and comforted the afflicted. Not content with the formal discharge of required duty, he appeared to be, in principle, a CHRISTIAN.

* There wants a separation of young beginners from old offenders; and at my visit in 1805 a man committed for bastardy was in the Felons' Court. The two infirmaries are injudiciously on the ground-floor.

REMARKS:

This Castle, which by its magnificence does honour to the County, is, I am informed, one of the finest pieces of Grecian architecture in this kingdom. The architect, Mr. Harrison, of whose professional abilities the Bridge and Castle at Lancaster will stand as lasting records to posterity. The grandeur of the design, the elegance of its appearance (being all of white stone), and the convenience with which every part of Chester Castle is constructed, render it equal, at least, to any gaol in the kingdom.

Its front extends about 100 yards, in the centre of which stands the County hall. Before it is a colonnade projecting about fifteen feet, composed of twelve solid pillars, six in a row, each 21 feet long, without a joint. The Court itself describes a semicircle, round which there are 12 other solid pillars, 18 feet long. On these rest the stone beams which support the roof. The Court of Justice is well calculated for seeing and hearing; the audience being raised one above another upon steps 18 inches broad, in the manner of the Greek and Roman Theatres.

From the prisoners' bar here is a private passage into the Gaol, for bringing them into Court. On the left hand of the Hall is the entrance to the Gaol, and the Turnkey's lodge. After passing the vestibule is the Debtor's yard, which is both spacious and airy, 72 feet by 63, exclusive of the Terrace, 63 feet by 17, and overlooks a large tract of country. Over the Turnkey's lodge and a small arcade of nine feet, is a day-room, 24 feet 6 by 18 feet 6, and 13 feet high, with a cistern of water, a stone sink, and stone shelves to set the provisions upon. Also a sleeping-room adjoining, 26 feet by 18 feet, and 13 feet high, well lighted and ventilated: under the stairs is a small cellar for coals. On the right side of the yard is another day-room, 24 feet by 20, and 12 feet 6 inches high, with a water cistern, stone sink, a pantry, and stone shelves for provisions. Above this is a sleeping-room, 32 feet by 20, and 13 feet 6 inches high, well lighted and ventilated. The four rooms here noticed are for Common-side Debtors, who are allowed a straw bed, two blankets, and a coverlet lined with flannel, by the County. At the top of the stairs is a large cistern of water, used for cleansing the sewers in this part of the prison.

On the left side of the yard are two stories of small sleeping-rooms, twelve in number; ten of which are 13 feet 6 by 7 feet 6, and 12 feet high: the end room on each landing-place, 19 feet by 8, and 12 feet high, with fire-places. Two pleasant day-rooms also adjoin to each, 19 feet 6 by 15 feet, and 13 feet high, with two windows in each room: these are for Master's-side Debtors. They have no water-cisterns in these apartments, but there is a pump well supplied with spring water in the centre of the yard. Each sleeping-room contains one bed, for which, if found by the Keeper, the prisoner pays 2s. per week; if the prisoner finds his own bed he pays 1s. per week, which is accounted for to the County by the Keeper. Debtors have no access to their sleeping-rooms during the day; the bedsteads on which they sleep are two iron tressels with boards, painted and varnished.

At the extremity of the yard, on the right hand, is a passage, 81 feet by 6, leading into another yard, 63 feet square, exclusive of the terrace, which is 63 feet by 17. On the further side is the Infirmary, 42 feet by 18, with convalescent rooms adjoining, 13 feet high, airy, and well ventilated. At the end of the yard is a large cistern of water supplied from the river Deva, or Dee.

Opposite to these are the Women Debtors' apartments; of which description there are at present but two. A sitting-room, 20 feet by 17, and a sleeping-room, 23 feet by 20: both airy, and well ventilated. A large cistern with water to cleanse the sewer; and in the centre of the court-yard a pump, well supplied with spring water.

The

The Chapel, which stands directly under the front room and terrace of the Keeper's house, is a very neat little building, ornamented with seven solid pillars 18 feet long. The felons sit in five seats or boxes, 12 feet by 6 feet 8, corresponding with their respective court-yards, over which is a gallery erected for the debtors. The Keeper's pew is behind the clergyman, and the communion table below, where the sacrament is administered from four to six times a year. On each side of the chapel, in a straight line, are 13 solitary cells, 7 feet 8 by 6 feet 4. Each has a small anti-room, 8 feet 2 by 7 feet 8, and 8 feet 6 inches high; three of which anti-rooms are now made into work-shops, and of the rest seven may be heated by a stove for that purpose. Over these cells on each side are work-rooms for debtors, the roofs of which, being of flagged stone, form the terraces in the debtors' and infirmary courts; and in front of them are two rows of iron railing, placed a little distant from each other, in order to prevent the debtors, or their friends, from seeing or conversing with the felons below.

Here is a warm and cold bath, and a stove to purify the prisoners' infected cloaths, which are taken from them on coming into prison, and the gaol uniform put on. Such debtors as work have two thirds of their earnings; but there are few, except taylors and shoe-makers, that can get employ, as Chester is not a manufacturing city.

There is a book kept in the prison for visiting magistrates to enter their remarks ; and the earnings of the prisoners are accounted for at each Easter session. I cannot help here expressing my regret for the loss to this City of that able and upright magistrate, the Rev. Dr. Peploe Ward (who by the late Act is obliged to reside nine months in the year at Ely). By his active energies and unremitting attention, Industry and Morality were encouraged and inculcated ; and, possessing temporal authority to make his spiritual advice respected, its influence was felt through every department of this very interesting Gaol.

The only legacies I find on record are the two following. “ Mr. John Norney, Citizen and Merchant-taylor of London, by his will, 10th October, 1615, left 6s. 8d. to be distributed on Candlemas yearly, for ever, by the Mayor, to the poor prisoners, in money or bread.”

“ Valentine Broughton, of Chester, Alderman, by his will 16th June, 1603, left 13s. 4d. to be distributed at Michaelmas and Lady-day yearly, for ever, by the Mayor, to the prisoners in the Castle, by equal portions, or 20 days after.”

The above written list of gifts a true copy.

THO. TAGG, Cl. Pacis.

N. B.

N. B. These are regularly paid (1805) by the Mayor.

Of the debtors (when I was here in 1805), 13 were at work, and one of them, a shoe-maker, had saved upwards of 10*l*. Of the felons seven were employed. Every one of the prisoners attended Chapel the next day: their appearance was clean, their behaviour orderly, and they were very attentive to a serious and appropriate discourse. Their worthy Chaplain has a discretionary power to distribute among them moral and religious books, as he thinks necessary.

Every Christmas the Ladies and Gentlemen of Chester are waited upon by the Turnkey; and their subscriptions, for relief of prisoners, generally amount from 14 to 18*l*. part of which is distributed in money and coals, as the visiting magistrates direct. Out of this fund the worthy keeper is authorized to allow any very poor debtor the same quantity of potatoes and salt weekly, as the felons receive. Also, from the same annual donations he assists many poor debtors to obtain their sixpences; and, frequently, to effectuate their discharge, by a small addition to the sums voted them by the SOCIETY for Small Debts, in London: A book is kept for the purpose of entering all donations, and the manner in which they are applied, which is under the constant inspection of the Magistrates.

The

The excellent RULES and REGULATIONS here established are printed, and stuck up in various parts of the prison, which is kept remarkably clean. The County Magistrates have evinced great liberality, in providing every comfort which can attend the privation of liberty ; and in shewing pity to the misery of even the most guilty. In the choice of a GAOLER the qualities of the MAN seem to have been particularly attended to : mild of temper, patient in manners, humane and firm in conduct, he is much respected by all ; and satisfaction is visibly demonstrated in the countenance of every prisoner.

The Exchequer at Chester is a very antient Court. In all probability it had its institution from one of the first Earls of Chester, soon after the Conquest, who were possessed of absolute and regal power ; for the Conqueror gave his nephew Hugh Lupus, as the words of the Grant express, “ Totum hunc comitatum, tenendum sibi et hæredibus suis ita liberè, per gladium, sicut Rex ipse tenebat Angliæ Coronam.”

The officers of the Court are the Chamberlain, Vice-chamberlain, Baron, Deputy-baron, Seal-keeper, Examiner, Bailiff Itinerant, Filacer, Messenger, Cryer, the County and City Gaolers, and the Clerks in Court. Its jurisdiction extends only over the County and City of Chester : Persons living out of the same are not compellable to appear by process, unless they have lands or effects within one or the other of them.

The

The Court is of a mixed nature, taking cognizance not only of equitable matters, but also of cases purely legal, so far as respects the recovery of debts.

The proceedings are by subpœna, bill, and answer, the same as in the Court of Chancery.

The bills which are for the recovery of debts, suggest, that the bond, note, &c. is lost, or that the complainant has no witnesses to prove his demand.

If a defendant neglect to appear at the return of the subpœna, he is committed to gaol by attachment for contempt, till he either enters an appearance, or, (if for want of an answer), till he puts in his answer.

A person may be held to bail in the first instance for a debt of 10*l.* or upwards, upon adding to the usual affidavit of the debt, “ that the complainant “ well knows the defendant, and believes that he “ will not appear by the ordinary process of sub-“ pœna of the Court, and perform the orders thereof “ without surety ; for that he is a person of weak “ estate, and much indebted, as the deponent hath “ heard, and verily believes to be true.”

This mode of proceeding is not resorted to, but in cases where the defendant is in the circumstances stated in the affidavit.

The following is entered in the Magistrates' books.

“ By order of the Visiting Magistrates,

“ 10th April, 1805.

“ We the publicans permitted to serve the prisoners confined within the Castle of Chester with “ ale, &c. do hereby publicly declare, that from the “ date hereof, we will exonerate every prisoner, on “ his discharge, from all debts whatever we may “ have permitted him to contract with us, either for “ ale, porter, or wine.

“ ROB. OLDHAM.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is also the County House of Correction. Debtors from the Courts of Conscience are sent here. A court-yard 35 feet by 20, a day-room about 12 feet square, and two sleeping cells 7 feet by 5½ ; wooden bedsteads, a straw in ticking bed, a blanket, and rug. Allowance. A 4*d.* or 6*d.* loaf per day each prisoner, as bread is dear or cheap, if very poor.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, built 1772, is in a very close part of the city. For Debtors and Felons, one common court-yard, 60 feet by 40, and a separate day-room 14 feet square. There is a common ward for poor debtors, who are allowed straw, a blanket, and a rug, and pay 6*d.* a week. Master-side Debtors have seven lodging-rooms, to which the keeper furnishes beds at 3*s.* a week, or if two sleep together, 2*s.* each. The horrid dungeons still remain a disgrace to the city. This Gaol might be improved, by enclosing a small piece of waste ground adjoining, and making a separate court for the women: to which, if a few old houses in Pope's-head Alley were added, it might be made sufficiently large for the city.

REMARKS.

The gaoler's house fronts the street, and his back room commands the court-yard, which is 33 feet by 24, with a pump, and cistern for a cold bath. Debtors have a day-room on the ground-floor, 12 feet by 11, with a fire-place; and up-stairs three sleeping-rooms, about the same size; to which the corporation allows wood-bedsteads, loose straw, two blankets, and a rug each; and two tons of coals yearly for the whole Gaol. All may work who can procure it, and have what they earn, added to the town allowance. One debtor was cutting skewers for Butchers, at 3*d.* the thousand. Allowance; two twelve-penny loaves per week, sent from the baker's, weight Oct. 9th, 1805, four pounds each. When a debtor receives his sixpences, he has not the County bread.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is situate on Nuns Green, the front of which is occupied by the Keeper, and extends 126 feet, feet, including the passage which leads to the garden, of five feet wide; the depth is 121 feet; so that when the width of the passage is taken off, it forms a complete square. It was finished and inhabited 1757; the situation airy and healthy. The Keeper's back rooms command all the Courts, except the vagrants'. There is one large court-yard, 82 feet by 43, well supplied with hard and soft water, common to the debtors, and men in the house of correction; but debtors have the exclusive privilege of walking on the flat roof, which is 90 feet by 26. A large day-room, 20 feet by 15, and 10 feet 6 inches high, with an oven and utensils for frugal cookery. They have eight sleeping and work-rooms above stairs: the average size about 17 feet 6 inches by 11 feet, and 9 feet 3 inches high, with fire-places, glazed windows, and wooden bedsteads. Chaff beds, two blankets, two sheets, a bolster, and a rug, are furnished by the Keeper, at sixpence each per week; but if a debtor brings his own bed, he pays nothing. There are likewise convenient water-closets at the end of the lobbies, to which they have access in the night-time. The humane Keeper frequently employs them in weaving calico; they are furnished with looms from the town at four-pence per week, and receive all they earn. Women debtors have a separate Court, 23 feet 9 inches by 12 feet 6, with hard and soft water in it, and a sewer. Their four lodging-rooms are up a flight of 18 steps: each has a fire-place and glazed window; the average size about 12 feet square, and 9 feet high; they are fitted up with bed and bedding, the same as the men's. Two guineas and a half in coals is allowed yearly. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, both hung up. The whole prison very clean, and frequently visited by the magistrates. An exceeding good cold bath, with a copper for warm water.

There is a man (Thomas Jenney) goes about the country at Christmas with a book, soliciting relief for the debtors, in which the donors enter their names and subscriptions. The amount at Christmas 1804, thirty-two pounds, one fourth of which he receives for the trouble of collecting. At chapel, the sexes are out of sight of each other, and all are required to attend, except Roman catholics. Bibles, prayer-books, and religious tracts, are furnished by the County. Over the chapel are two rooms set apart for the sick, 35 feet by 11, and 9 feet 3 inches high, with fire-places and glazed windows. All descriptions of prisoners have a hot dinner on Christmas and New-year's day. Bread and cheese for supper, and each one pint of ale.

REMARKS.

This is also the Town Gaol, and house of correction. Debtors sent to this prison are committed by the Court of Requests for the adjacent hundreds of Brūdford, Melksham, and Whorlstdown, the costs of which frequently exceed the original debt: the charge of bringing to prison is 10*s. 6d.* though only from Calne, at seven miles distance. There is no separate court, and I have sometimes found men debtors with the felons. No bedding provided by the Corporation: the Keeper furnishes straw at his own expence. No firing allowed in winter. If a latticed partition and door were made in the criminals court, about six feet from the Keeper's door, it would prevent the prisoners from rushing out, and of which, he told me, he was sometimes afraid.

REMARKS. There is only one small court-yard for all descriptions of prisoners. No day-room. Five miserable lodging-rooms on the first floor for debtors, to which the County allows neither bedding, straw, nor fire. Private benevolence enabled me to release a debtor, who had been in confinement near 20 years, for a debt of 27*l*. 5*s*. 5*d*. He was eighty years of age, and his wife, older than himself, was with him: they were carding and spinning, by which they earned about three pence a day each, which, with two shillings allowed to him by the parish, was what they had to subsist upon.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is a detached building in St. Sepulchre Gate street. The keeper's house overlooks the court. Inscribed on its front, in stone, is, "JOHN WHITAKER, Esq. Mayor, 1779." For all kinds of prisoners, one small flagged court, with a pump.

Felons

Felons have two good-sized rooms below; one totally dark, except a small aperture in the door: the other has an iron-grated window, not glazed. Above-stairs are two rooms with iron-grated and glazed windows, for debtors. The rooms have fire-places. The Borough allows fuel in Winter; straw on wooden bedsteads, two blankets, and a rug.

Debtors are brought here by process-on Borough Writs, to any amount; as, likewise, for smaller sums, from the Court of Requests. No sewer, nor means for decent cleanliness! The prison most intolerably offensive. The gaoler told me, "it was usually so. "It had been white-washed but twice in ten years "by the Corporation; but the prisoners had some- "times bought white-wash, and done it themselves."

Master's-side debtors, who do not work, maintain themselves.

RE-

REMARKS.

The situation of this gaol is most judiciously chosen, on the North side of the town of Dorchester, on a piece of ground still called the Castle, and which was formerly the site of a building of that description, at the foot of which flows the river Frome. It is bounded by a wall twenty feet high, which, from the Turnkey's lodge, situate at the North side of it, completely surrounds the whole of the buildings.

The ground on which it is erected was, in a most handsome manner, given by Francis John Browne, Esq. one of the members for the county. Men debtors have two airy court-yards, each 70 feet by 35, and over the South front of the South-West wing are their sleeping-cells, five on each side of the two upper stories, ten in the whole, 8 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 6, and 9 feet high, to the crown of the arch. Two day-rooms, each about 6 yards by four and a half, and near 12 feet high. Over these are two airy sleeping-rooms, with three beds each, in case the number should exceed what can be accommodated in the debtors' wing.

On the second story are two rooms for female debtors, without communication with the floor above it or below it, with beds, &c. the same as the men; and over these the Infirmary.

The

The County provides an iron crib bedstead, a straw-bed, two blankets and a rug for each prisoner.

There is no allowance of coal, either to male or female debtors, except in the winter season in very cold weather, and except an especial order is made for that purpose by the visiting magistrates: and the coals so ordered are not paid for out of the County Stock, but out of the Gaol Charity Fund.

Debtors, male or female, who are content to sleep in the county beds, have them free of expense; otherwise they must provide their own beds and bedding (which they are allowed to do); or else pay the gaoler 2s. 6d. a week for bed and bedding, with one sheet, or 3s. 6d. with a pair of sheets. The following notice is stuck up in the different day-rooms: "If any prisoner does any wilful damage to his or her palliasse, blankets, or rugs, he or she shall be immediately punished by close confinement in one of the refractory cells, and there fed on bread and water only, for a space of time in proportion to the damage done."

When visitors come to see the debtors, they are introduced to a narrow space, or slip, the inner door of which is kept constantly locked, the outer one open. There are two windows opening from it, one into each debtor's day-room: these windows are iron grated, but a table goes through each of them, one half being in the debtor's room, the other half in the narrow passage, or slip. Thus debtors are not excluded from the society of their relations or friends, nor are visitors allowed in general to come into their rooms; by which means irregularities are prevented. In particular cases, the Keeper, where he finds it proper, unlocks the inner door, and suffers the debtor to take his friend into his cell, or court. The friends of debtors are permitted to stay with them, if they please, from ten o'clock in the morning, till four in the afternoon, after which time no stranger is to remain within the walls. Prisoners of all descriptions, debtors as well as felons, work together in the manufactory. The chapel is in the centre building, into which doors open from the several wings; the prisoners are seated in classes, and all are required to attend divine service, unless prevented by illness. The kind donation of Edward Morton Pleydell, Esq. who for many years sent each prisoner at Christmas sixpence in money, and two pounds of beef, has been discontinued since his death in 1799. Lord Digby formerly sent at Christmas two guineas to this gaol, and one to the Bridewell, which I was sorry to find also discontinued. The legacy of Mr. John Derby of twenty shillings a year for bread, to be distributed among the debtors on the four quarter days, is regularly paid and applied to the Gaol Charity Fund, which is placed in the hands of the Chaplain,

but

but under the direction of the visiting Justices. It arises from the humane contributions of individuals, and from it an additional quantity of coals is purchased in extreme hard weather, for the different classes of prisoners. The debts also of such as upon enquiry are found to be truly objects of compassion, are compounded and liquidated out of the same Fund.

Though Dorsetshire is not a manufacturing county, yet through the exertions of its magistrates, who alternately superintend the concerns of the prison, employment is found for all. Here is a considerable edifice for the manufacture of hats *, in which I saw numbers at work: others were employed in shoe-making, tayloring, carding, spinning, &c. These manufactures have been tried for several years with success. The produce of the work is divided into shares, of which the debtor has one half; the keeper a sixth part, to encourage his attention; and the remaining third part is accounted for to the County, and defrays a considerable proportion of the expences of the prison.

Upon enquiry made into the characters of all the Dorsetshire prisoners, on charges of felony, during a period of fourteen years, it appears, that out of 393, of both sexes, no less than 242 have been found reclaimed, and maintaining themselves by honest industry. A striking example this of the beneficial effects of employment in prison; and which, it is to be hoped, will be seriously considered by every county, but more especially those, where manufactories have been introduced, and discontinued, on account of being, in their infant state, unproductive. Expectations of County emolument from the labour of a prisoner ought not to weigh so forcibly, as the credit of restoring to society a worthy and useful member.

It always gives me pleasure to find prisoners employed, because, in the first place, they are then more healthy. It also diverts them; and is a means of procuring them clean linen, or stockings, or a little milk, or meat to their bread, or other articles limited by the magistrates, and an account of which should be hung up in the prison, such as tea, coffee, butter, cheese, vegetables, &c. It has likewise this further and political advantage over idleness, that it prevents the prisoners from combining together to effect escapes.

This County, with a liberality which reflects upon it the highest honour, rewards those who, twelve months after their discharge, can produce certificates, properly attested, of their having honestly, soberly, and industriously served those who kindly afforded them employment.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is for debtors in the Cinque Ports, viz. Hastings, Dover, Hythe, Romney, and Sandwich. The Right Honourable William Pitt was Constable; now Lord Hawkesbury.

Here are three rooms for debtors; one 18 feet by 12; another 13 feet by 11; and the third, called the New room, 15 feet by 12. Each prisoner pays 2*s.* 4*d.* per week for a bed; two sleeping together. The courtyard is 50 feet by 20, and the wall 28 feet high, the sun and air thereby almost totally excluded; a very small part paved; the ground is consequently damp, and the place unhealthy. It is bounded on one side by the gaoler's house; on another by the rock or cliff; and on a third by the military stabling.

* Bodar, or Messenger, and Bailiff for the Cinque Ports.

It would be a considerable improvement, if a grated window were opened on the fourth side, which looks towards the South, and the public path ; by which means the sun and fresh air would be admitted, and the prisoners might see their friends, and passengers, with other visitors of the hill, and occasionally solicit charity. The court-yard, also, should be wholly paved, both for exercise and comfort ; and some enclosed place provided to deposit the putrid vegetables, dirt, and ashes, which I have constantly seen thrown in one corner in cart loads, till it had formed a most offensive dunghill.

The gaoler told me he sent his boy every day to Dover, to fetch what the prisoners wanted : But, as he himself is the Bailiff for the Cinque Ports, and sometimes necessitated to be absent for several days together on business, debtors are frequently obliged to pay a man for bringing them the common necessities of life from the town, which, in consequence, stand them in 20*l. per cent.* above their value, and sometimes a penny for a pailful of water ! They are also obliged to pay a woman for washing their rooms, having neither mops, pails, or brooms, fire or candle allowed. It would be an act of mercy to those confined in this singular kind of gaol, if the fees were abolished, or at least lowered ; for, besides those specified in the following table, there is one guinea charged for the latital writ ; and if the prisoner is brought from Margate, 1*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.* for a chaise, making together, 4*l.* 19*s.* 10*d.*

When it is considered how difficult of access the situation of this prison renders it, how seldom it is visited in Winter, and that the debtor must be in confinement three terms before he can sue for his six-pences; he may, before the expiration of that period, unless sustained by charity, be no more. It is much to be regretted, that prisons in privileged places are not put on the same footing with the County Gaols.

I found no instance of any debtor's having received the benefit of the Lords' Act in this prison.

A great and good Writer, who once lived an ornament to human nature, has observed, "that there should be an uniform Code of Laws framed for the Police of all Gaols. The laws of a kingdom ought to be general in a well-regulated state."

REMARKS. This Gaol is also the Bridewell. For debtors, there are three rooms above; to which, if the Gaoler furnishes a bed and bedding, he charges seven shillings per week. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are hung up here, or at the Castle. The Gaol is in a close part of the Town, and the Corporation allow annually four gallons of vinegar to fumigate it; 12 lb. of whiting, six pounds of soap, mops, brooms and pails, to keep the prison clean, and straw when the Gaoler requires it. At my visit in 1801, Isabella Mode, who had been three years under sentence of transportation, had a young child born in the prison, of which she said that Harris, the late Keeper, was the father.

REMARKS.

The ascent is by a flight of fourteen steps, which lead to two large rooms about seven yards square : one of which is for felons ; the other for debtors, who are not burgesses : Both were in the most filthy state imaginable ; and the debtors' room was occupied by the gaoler and his family. Up-stairs is a large room for debtors who are burgesses. The dark room below, called Thieves Hole, the keeper said was not used now. No court. No water.

REMARKS.

The High Gaol is the property of the Bishop. By patent from Bishop Talbot, 1723, Sir Hedworth Williamson, Bart. was appointed Sheriff, with a salary of 10*l.* per annum ; and it has continued in the family ever since. There is a small room over the North front of the gateway, 12 feet 6 inches by 9 feet 10, and 9 feet 9 inches high. This was formerly the felons' day-room, but which the active and intelligent keeper has converted into a soup-kitchen ; the establishment and support of which arises as follows : viz. There are twelve prebendaries and a dean ; three of the prebendaries have dispensations, and do not keep any residence, nor contribute to the soup establishment. The prebendaries, who, for many years past, had sent a profuse dinner to the prisoners in the gaol at the time they severally kept their residence, have, for the four last years, given, in lieu of such dinner, five guineas, which is paid to Mr. Wolfe, who supplies both the Gaol and the Bridewell with a good dinner twice every week in the year. The benevolent Bishop of Durham also gives ten guineas at Christmas, and the same at Lammas, for the like purpose ; and the Dean of Durham (Bishop of Lichfield) ten guineas yearly. At this time (1805) there is a surplus in Mr. Wolfe's hands of 37*l.* It gave me great pleasure to be informed that this fund is increased, so as to enable the Gaoler not only to furnish his prisoners with dinners, as above, but occasionally also to release persons imprisoned for small debts, and assist often in obtaining their sixpences.
the

Here is a court-yard, 62 feet by 59, the only only one for all descriptions of prisoners : it is open all day for the accommodation of Debtors, except when the Felons are in it, which is for an hour or two in the day, when they think fit ; and then the door is locked, to prevent any communication between them.

The Low Gaol consists of two rooms, 10 feet 4 inches square, by the gateway, under which, out of a door, are conveyed the dirt, ashes, &c. which formerly lay for many months. Both these rooms are free wards. There are likewise three others at the top of the gaol ; the largest of which contains seven beds, the others one bed each. To all these the County furnishes iron bedsteads and straw mattresses gratis. These rooms are now ceiled and lime-whited ; but the debtors complained much of that great nuisance, bugs, which the straw mattresses harbour, and preclude all possibility to get rid of. Two rooms, formerly set apart for Infirmaries, are now appropriated to Women Debtors. Master's-side Debtors have six separate rooms furnished by the Keeper, at 3*s.* 6*d.* a week, or, if two sleep together, 1*s.* 6*d.* each. Two of these rooms look to the street, and open into the chapel, formerly the Debtors'-hall. There is a double-barrelled pump, which raises water about seventy feet, and supplies the High Gaol. Half-a-crown a quarter is paid to a woman for supplying the Debtors in the Low Gaol with water. The County provides no work ; but the humane Keeper told me, he constantly procured (for such as are not of handicraft-trades) employment in spinning, picking oakum, beating flax, &c. and that every prisoner, however employed, receives the whole of his earnings. The Rules and Orders, as settled in 1796, I transcribed ; viz. “ Chamber Rents to be received by the Keeper of Durham Gaol of and from the Prisoners for Debt.

Low

Debtors in the Low Gaol receive, from a legacy, 1s. 6d. a week in Winter, and 1s. a week in Summer. No memorial of it in the gaol. From the Mayor of Durham's book it appears, that he charged the Corporation of Newcastle with having paid the above sums ; and it also appears, that the Corporation of Newcastle reimbursed him. By an entry in the Common-Council Books of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, it is recorded as follows : “ December 23d, 1699—3*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* is paid, out of the revenues of the Corporation of Newcastle, to the Mayor of Durham, for the use of the prisoners, annually on St. Andrew's-day.” (See Brand's History of Newcastle, vol. II. pp. 193, 194.) It is the donation of a Mr. Frankland. How the distribution of this charity became changed from St. Andrew's day to a weekly payment, and that to prisoners in the Low Gaol solely, does nowhere appear ; but if neither of the low rooms in the gateway is occupied (which has frequently been the case), the arrears have never been paid : on this account, the Keeper takes care to have one prisoner at least there, to secure the regular payment. There is another donation, of 15*s.* per annum, viz. 5*s.* at Christmas, 5s. at Easter, and 5s. at Whitsuntide. This is a charge on lands late belonging to Mr. Jackson, of Witton-le-Wear, in this county. The estate has been lately purchased by Mr. John Wood, of Bishop's Auckland, subject to the said charge, which is regularly paid to the Gaoler as it becomes due. Of this legacy there is no memorial in the Gaol.

The legacy of "Bishop Crewe," mentioned by Mr. Howard, must be a mistake with respect to the name. It is not in his will (which I have read); but there is a similar donation to that of Bishop Wood left to the debtors in Durham Gaol by Dr. Hartwell; and in the copy of his will (in the possession of Mr. Wolfe) there is, after several other bequests, "Item, I give and bequeath to the Gaol of Durham, for the use and benefit of insolvent debtors there, 20*l. per annum*, to be disposed of under the same restrictions and limitations with the charity of the like kind by Bishop Wood; and that, in the application of it, respect be first had to the parishioners of Stanhope." This bequest, as well as several others mentioned in his will, amounting to 80*l. per annum*, are chargeable upon an estate at Fishbourn, in this county.

The estate at Fishbourn, out of which this legacy is paid, as well as several others, is somewhat more than sufficient for the discharge of the ordinary demands made on the Treasurer, according to the the will. The rents are regularly paid by the Tenant to the Treasurer ; there is therefore a yearly surplus in hand. If the demands of the year do not equal the 20*l.* the will has not provided for the disposal of the surplus. It of course remains in the hands of the Treasurer of the Charity. Out of this accumulating surplus the Trustees have occasionally relieved very great distress ; as they did a few years since, in the case of the tenant of the estate, whose corn crops had been destroyed by the tremendous hail-storm, which did so much mischief in the neighbourhood of Sedgefield, in the year 1792. They allowed him sixty pounds, at two different payments, towards repairing the loss of his corn crop. There were four debtors released by this charity in 1797, one in 1798, one in 1800, four in 1802, and five in 1805.

The persons to be released are nominated by the Mayor and Corporation. If none are released, it is because none are nominated. The Mayor and Corporation are not the Trustees ; but they nominate objects, as directed by the will, and recommend to the charity ; and their recommendation is always accepted.

The Trustees in Dr. Hartwell's will are the Dean and Chapter of Durham, or any three of them. The acting Trustees have been for many years the Dean and four of the Prebendaries : as vacancies happen in the trust by death, other Prebendaries are elected by the surviving Trustees.

Besides the Bishop of Lichfield, who is the Dean, the present elected Trustees are, the Bishop of Rochester, the Bishop of St. David's, the Bishop of Norwich, and the Rev. R. G. Bowyer.

By the following account of Dr. Hartwell, it appears, he was Rector of Stanhope, in this county ; which accounts for that part of his bequest, " that " respect be first had to the parishioners of " Stanhope ;" meaning, if any such were in prison.

Dr. William Hartwell was formerly secretary to Lord Crewe, when Bishop of Oxford. In the year 1681, he was made Rector of Wickham, in this county ; in 1685 was removed to the Rectory of Stanhope ; and in 1709 was made Prebendary of Durham. He died in June 1725, and was interred in the cathedral church here. His will bears date March 9, 1724.

The accounts relating to Bishop Wood's legacy appear to be very intricate and perplexed ; but, from the respectable characters who are at present engaged in the business, there is hope of ultimate success. Bp. Wood, by will made 1690, charges his estate or manor of Ecclescliff, in the Bishoprick of Durham, with the payment of 20*l.* annually, for ever, to be applied for the relief and discharge of poor prisoners, that then were, or hereafter might be, be, in the Gaol at Durham for debt; each poor prisoner's debt not exceeding 5*l.* And, by the said will, the Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Durham, for the time being, were appointed Trustees of the said Charity. It appears by the books (now in possession of Mr. Wolfe) that this estate, chargeable with the said legacy, was, in the year 1750, purchased by Anthony Hall, of Flass, in the county of Durham, esq. and subject to this devise: that, between the year 1750 and 1766, there were arrears due from the said Mr. Hall to the charity, to the amount of 54*l.* 4*s.* 11½*d.*; that a suit in Chancery was instituted by the Bishop's attorney-general against the said Anthony Hall for the said arrears, together with a further sum of 165*l.* 15*s.* which had been paid into the hands of the then Mayor and Aldermen of the city of Durham, Trustees of the said charity, by the said Anthony Hall, according to the will of the said Bishop Wood; but had never been accounted for to the said Charity by the said Mayor and Aldermen: And that, in the year 1776, it was decreed by the said Court, that the said Anthony Hall should pay the whole of the arrears due to the said Charity, together with the costs. That in the Michaelmas Term afterwards, the said Anthony Hall filed a Bill in the Exchequer against the said Mayor and Aldermen, charging them with an abuse of the said Charity; and it was decreed, that the said Mayor and Aldermen should account for the arrears before stated : That, in 1768, the Corporation lost their charter ; and other Trustees were then duly appointed by the Court of Chancery at Durham, to manage the said Charity ; and the said Trustees have from time to time, as any of them have died, or declined acting, been replaced by others, according to the directions of the said will *. The balance of the account due to the Charity at Midsummer 1802, as appears by the books of the late treasurer, is 205*l.* and at Midsummer 1804 had increased to 245*l.*

Bishop Wood was Chaplain to King Charles I. and in 1635 Rector of Wickham ; in 1680 Prebendary of Durham ; in 1663 Dean of Lichfield ; and in 1671 consecrated Bishop of Lichfield, with which he held a prebendal stall at Durham. He died April 18, 1692, and was buried at Ufford in Suffolk. His will, by which he bequeaths several other charities, as well as that to the Gaol at Durham, is dated Nov. 11, 1690.

Eleven out of seventeen debtors only attended divine service ; but all the felons, except one. Their behaviour was orderly, and attentive to a very appropriate discourse.

* The present acting Trustees are, Sir Ralph Milbanke, Bart. Sir John Eden, Bart. Henry Mills, Esq. Ralph Orde, Esq. Rowland Burdon, Esq. Charles Spearman, Esq. Rev. John Hutton, Rev. W. Nesfield, Arthur Mowbray, Esq. F. Johnson, Esq. Wm. Russell, Esq. and R. J. Fenwick, Esq.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, and a large mass of old buildings which adjoin it, (but since taken down) nearly block up one of the most spacious streets in the City, by being built in the centre. There is no court-yard, and the Gaoler has no apartments in the prison.
 If a prisoner for debt declares upon oath, that he has not

not wherewithal to maintain himself, the creditor must aliment him, within ten days after notice given for that purpose, with at least three-pence a day. By an Act of King William's first Parliament, 1696, sixth Session, Chap. 32, Debtors are alimented by their creditors at the discretion of the Magistrates. The lowest order I could find on record was four-pence a day ; the debt was only one guinea ; the highest order was eighteen pence : this principally depends on the rank of life in which the debtor has been accustomed to move. When I was in the prison, the 13th Sept. 1802, the Keeper received five pounds from the creditor of a Mrs. Stuart, being one hundred days' aliment, at one shilling per day (the debt was three pounds, costs three shillings;) to commence from the 1st of September, the day of her commitment. By the process of Cessio bonorum *, a debtor, after being one month in prison, may obtain his liberty, and be secured against execution for any previous debts, by making a surrender of all his effects to be divided among his creditors ; though, if he afterward come into better circumstances, his effects may be attached for the payment of those previous debts. This compassionate law prevents a creditor from putting his debtor in prison, unless there be good reason to think that he is acting fraudulently. Perjury is not frequent in Scotland. The oath, and form of administering it, are very solemn. The witness, holding up his right hand, repeats the following words after the Judge : “ By God himself, and as I shall answer to God at the great day of judgment, I shall declare the truth, and nothing but the truth, in so far as I know, or shall be asked at me.” The depositions are then read over, and signed by the witnesses and Judge *. There seems, however, to be very little attention paid to reforming the prisoners ; the attendance on divine service being optional with debtors, and not permitted to felons ! No firing allowed, except in the common-hall, or day-room, which is also the Chapel. Debtors and felons, men and women, mix promiscuously together in the morning, when they fill their tubs with water. The Gaol had been whitewashed about six months before my visit, being the only time in twenty years. As every prisoner may have as much beer as he can pay for, the tap-room was full, and many persons from the town were drinking with the prisoners. There are six rooms with glazed windows for men, and one room for women-debtors, furnished with wood bed-

steads, straw mattress, a blanket, a rug, and two pillows, for which they pay as per Table. No employment, except for handicraft trades, whose tools are not dangerous. There are two tubs in each room, the smaller one is filled with water, and the other serves the purpose of a sewer. There were four women felons confined in the same room with four women debtors. The Clauses against Spirituous Liquors were stuck up, but not the Act for Preservation of Health. Prison clean.

There is a plot of ground, where some old buildings have been taken down, and at present useless, well calculated for building a new Gaol with proper court-yards, and which might communicate with the Court of Session. The front of the prison and Gaoler's house to form a part of the street, and the present Tolbooth taken down, would leave the street spacious and airy.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, like the other Tolbooth, is ill situated, and has no court-yard. Here are six rooms for Debtors and Criminals, one of which is called the Iron-room: they have glazed windows and fire-places, but no coals are allowed to any part of the prison, except the common-hall, or day-room; where prisoners and towns-people associate together, and by their drinking compensate the Gaoler for the want of a salary. No bedsteads or bedding furnished; every prisoner must bring his own. Prison very dirty.

TABLE OF FEES.

ACT OF COUNCIL, anent the FEES and REGULATIONS of the CANONGATE PRISON.

At CANONGATE, the Seventeenth day of June, in the Year One Thousand Seven Hundred and Ninety-five.

The which day William Coulter, Esq. Baron Bailie, Messrs. Daniel Miller, and Robert Scot, resident Bailies, and William Murray, Treasurer of Canongate, sitting in Council; having taken into their consideration the many complaints and disputes anent the Prison-Fees of Canongate, owing to there being no public authorized copy of these Fees in use: And considering that the Right Honourable the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Edinburgh, as proprietors of the said prison, by their Act of Council, dated the 4th November, 1789, “authorized the jailor of Canongate to exact the same “Fees as are exacted by the keeper of the Edinburgh “prison, and contained in an Act of Council, dated the “17th July, 1728:” Therefore the said Baron, resident Bailies, and Treasurer, hereby statute and ordain the Fees mentioned in the said Act of Council, of date the 17th July, 1728, and no other, to be exacted by the keeper of the Tolbooth of Canongate; and which are as follows, viz.

Creditors consigning Aliment-money for Prisoners, shall pay to the Jailor five per cent. on the same.
All Deserters shall be free of Prison-dues to the Jailor, in terms of the Act of Parliament, called the Mutiny Act, Sect. 51.

Any

Any Prisoner, chusing a room for more convenience (if such can be spared at the time), shall pay for the same, in place of Prison-fees, according to agreement with the Jailor, not exceeding ten shillings sterling per week.

REGULATIONS FOR THE JAILOR.

The said Tolbooth to be kept clean, and opened at nine in the morning, and shut at ten at night; and furnished with sufficiency of water.

All malt liquors sold by the Jailor shall be good of the kind, and of no higher price than what is commonly charged for the same in taverns. And he is hereby prohibited from exacting, or allowing to be exacted, what is called Garnish-money from prisoners.

The Jailor, by Act of Parliament, 24th Geo. II. Cap. 40, is prohibited from selling Spirituous Liquors, under the penalty of one hundred pounds sterling: and also from allowing spirits to be brought into the prison, except by way of medicine, ordered by a physician or surgeon, and allowed by a magistrate.

FEES payable to the CLERK for keeping the PRISON RECORDS.

The names and designations of all prisoners, with the diligences or warrants on which they are imprisoned, together with the acts and warrants of liberation, shall be regularly entered into a book, to be kept by the Clerk, or Assistant Clerk of Court, and reported to the Sitting Magistrate each Court-day, and for which there shall be paid the Fees mentioned in the Clerk of Court's Table of Fees, viz.

REMARKS.

This antient Royal Palace, once an Abbey, contains in it both a Prison, and an Asylum.

One room above-stairs, with a fire-place in it, and a window looking into the court-yard, is set apart for confining those who contract debts within the Abbey.

It has also the privilege of exempting from arrest all who flee hither for protection, from any part of the kingdom, on first applying to the Recorder, and paying fifteen shillings each for the registry of their names.

The boundaries of security, or Verge, are, on the Park side, of considerable extent. But whoever, thus privileged, originates a debt here, may be arrested for the same, and confined in the prison, as above.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is the property of the Bishop, who is Lord of the Franchise of the Isle of Ely : It was, in part, rebuilt by Bishop Mawson, in 1768, upon complaint of the cruel method which, for want of a safe gaol, the Keeper took to secure his prisoners. “ This,” Mr. Howard informs us, “ was done by chaining them down on their backs upon a floor, across which were twenty-six-iron-bars, with an iron collar with spikes about their necks, and a heavy iron bar across their legs.”

This prison is much improved since my visit in 1802. Too much praise cannot be given to the visiting

visiting Magistrates, for causing all unnecessary severity to be discontinued ; for its better ventilation, county-clothing, and bath ; for the regular entry of their visits in a book ; and for the great cleanliness and good order in which every part is kept. For Debtors there are three good-sized rooms up-stairs ; and another, called, the Nursery room, set apart for the sick, with a fire-place in it. One iron bedstead (made a present of to the Gaol by the Bishop's Lady), and one wooden bedstead for the Nursery. The Keeper furnishes beds at 1s. 1s. 6d. and 2s. per week, according to the circumstances of the prisoner. The windows are glazed, and have sloping boards, to prevent prisoners' looking to the street. Only one court, about 15 yards by 13 ; it is well supplied with water. If a Debtor behaves well, he is indulged with the liberty of the Keeper's garden ; and the two debtors were walking in it when I came there. Every Sunday a begging-box is carried about the two parishes, Trinity and St. Mary, for all the prisoners ; and the collection, when I was there, amounted to 9d. each. Debtors from the Court of Requests are sent here ; and the costs 6s. 1d. to recover a debt of ten shillings. No Chapel : divine service is performed in the Keeper's house.

REMARKS.

This Prison is in the South Gate, from which it takes its name ; and has, in the Keeper's house, two rooms (the Long Room and Shoe). A shoe was formerly suspended by a string from the iron-grated window towards the street, for passengers to put money in ; but is now discontinued, by order of the magistrates. The room called the Shoe is for debtors who bring their own beds, and pay 6*d.* a week. The Long Room is for debtors to walk in, there being no court-yard. There are also nine rooms, to which the Gaoler furnishes beds and bedding, from 3*s.* to 10*s.* 6*d.* per week, according to the prisoner's circumcircumstances. Here are sent 60 penny loaves (weight 6th October, 1863,  $9\frac{1}{2}$  oz. each) every week to the debtors: if only one, he has the whole batch; if more, they are equally divided amongst them. From what legacies they come is not known in the Gaol; but the Keeper gave me the following account. “Mr. and Mrs. Seldon’s legacy, 2*s.* 6*d.* Mrs. Pengelly, 1*s.* Mrs. Reed, 6*d.* and the Chamber of Exeter, 1*s.* Total, 5*s.*” Besides this weekly allowance, the Tailors’ Company give 1*s.* 4*d.* on Easter Eve; and at the same time debtors receive from the Chamber 36 penny loaves, and the like number at Christmas. There are two painted boards, which contain memorials of sundry bequests: they are not dated; one of them seems very antient.

 bread, and distributed always to the prisoners in the Shew.”

The following memorial is framed and hung up :

“ Francis Pengelly, of this city, apothecary, by deed, dated the 1st of January, 1700, gave two pounds twelve shillings a year, to be laid out in bread, for the use of the debtors in this prison for ever ; issuing out of his estate called the Dolphin Inn, and premises adjoining, situate in the parish of St. Mary Major, in the said city.”

 3 per Cent. Consolidated Annuities purchased with the produce, in the names of W. B. Kennaway,
Thomas Smith, A. Tozer, and G. Gifford. Debtors likewise receive ten shillings yearly from the Cham- ber of Exeter, on the Monday fortnight following St. Michael's day. Ten Shillings a year from the Church, at the disposal of the Keeper ; and sixpence a year from the Lay-Vicars of the Church the day their Court is held at Woodberry.

There is no memorial in the prisons at Exeter of the following donations, mentioned in Richard Izacke's

Isacke's Alphabetical Register, &c. printed in 1736. Such valuable registers of persons' last wills, grants, &c. in other cities, would prevent the misapplication of many charities.

Reynold Hayne, in 1354, bequeathed all his lands and tenements, lying in the suburbs of the said city, to the Cathedral Church of St. Peter there, for the relief of those imprisoned in the common gaol. This legacy appears to be lost.

William Paramore, by will, 22d February, 1570, bequeathed to the needy prisoners of the King's Gaol in Exeter, in the South Gate there, and in the Counters, to every of them, ten shillings for ever, yearly, to be paid out of his lands in the Cook Row, in Exeter.

This is regularly paid to the prisoners in the South Gate.

Thomas Bridgeman, by will, 3d April, 1641, gave to the said city the sum of sixty pounds, to be continued as a perpetual stock ; whereof the interest of forty pounds to be bestowed upon the prisoners in the upper prison ; and the interest of the other twenty pounds to be bestowed upon the prisoners in the lower prison ; and this likewise to continue for ever. This legacy appears to be lost.

Edward Young, D. D. 6th June, 1663, by will, gave twenty shillings a year to the prisoners of the Castle, to be distributed, by the Dean of Exeter for the time being, on the 29th of May.

REMARKS.

The Sheriff's Ward, or Prison, is in the parish of St. Thomas the Apostle. The boundary-wall is of mud, with a thatch coping, except a small part of brick, which fronts the street. It encloses about an acre of ground, and from the Turnkey's Lodge Lodge to the Prison is a walk of 60 yards, shaded by a double row of large elms, and well supplied with water. At the left entrance of the prison is a room 19 feet by 18, which still retains the name of CHURCH: the reading-desk remains, and on the walls are portions of scripture; but it is now the common day-room. On the right of the passage is a room called the Pin-hole, with a fire-place and glazed window, where debtors dress their provisions; and adjoining to it is the Strong Room, which has a fire-place and small glazed window, a barrack bedstead, but no bedding, not even straw, to sleep upon: this is the only free ward in the prison. For Master's-side Debtors there are seven rooms, with beds and bedding furnished by the Keeper, for which they pay as per following Table: one of the rooms has seven beds, and two slept in each bed. Common-side debtors have six rooms, and each pays 6*d.* a week; but neither bedding, nor straw. Two were sick in bed; another had the jaundice, and a fourth was in the last stage of a consumption, at my visit in 1803, without any medical assistance. The building is very old, the rooms dirty, and swarming with bugs. It is fortunate, in so crowded a prison, that the court is spacious and airy. Here are Rules and Orders, signed by the Under-Sheriff only, and no attention is paid to them. There are constant broils between the keeper and his prisoners; and it is difficult to determine where the fault most lies. The Gaoler says, no magistrate ever comes there, without being sent for ; and any one visiting this prison must see the necessity of Rules and Orders for Prisoners and Keepers being fixed by the Legislature. The Gaoler adds, that his salary is so small, his whole dependence is on the hire of his beds and prison-fees. It is difficult to conceive the extreme wretchedness and misery this Gaol exhibits, the debtors, for the most part, being mechanicks and labourers. No employment, nor rooms to work in, if it were procured. One prisoner (Anne Fisher, committed for contempt, 13th Nov. 1791) I saw here in 1803 : but at my last visit she was discharged.

and

REMARKS.

The Fleet became a Prison for Debtors, and for persons charged with contempt of the Courts of Chancery, Exchequer, and Common Pleas, in the 16th of Charles I. after the abolition of the Star Chamber.

In 1728, many abuses practised by the Warden were the subject of Parliamentary inquiry; and Mr. Oglethorpe, from the Committee appointed to enquire into the state of the Gaols, made several reports of many grievous abuses practised in the Fleet, Marshalsea, and King's-Bench; in consequence of which many useful regulations were enacted.

In the front is a narrow court-yard. At each end of the building is a small projection, or wing. There are four floors, called Galleries; besides the cellar-floor, called Bartholomew Fair. Each gallery consists of a passage in the middle, the whole length of the prison, sixty-six yards; and of rooms on each side side of it, about fourteen feet and a half by twelve and a half, and nine feet and a half high. A chimney and window in every room, except three, called Slip Rooms, and without a chimney. The passages are narrow (not seven feet wide) and dark, having only one window at each end.

On the first floor, the hall-gallery, to which you ascend by eight steps, are a tap-room, a room called the Cellar-head, another for one of the turnkeys, and nineteen rooms for the prisoners; at the North end of which is the Chapel.

The Cellar floor is sixteen steps below the hall-gallery. It consists of the public kitchen, four large beer and wine-cellars, sixteen rooms for prisoners, and one for another of the turnkeys.

When I was there (22d March, 1807) I was surprised to find only eleven debtors attended divine service! the excuse being, that the chapel was cold and damp. A fire-place in it, and coals allowed, would be a very great improvement; and I have no doubt the chapel would be then well filled to hear the excellent preacher.

In the Coffee-room gallery (the next above the hall), are the Coffee-room, made out of two, the Strong-room, for refractory prisoners, and twenty-two more for those of other descriptions.

In the third gallery, above the coffee-room, are twenty-twenty-six others, and a room at the North end. Over the chapel is an Infirmary.

In the top gallery are twenty-seven rooms; some of which, being over the chapel, are larger than the rest.

All the rooms I have here mentioned are for Master-side Debtors, at the weekly rent of 1s. 3d. unfurnished.

They fall to the prisoners in succession, (except those called Bartholomew-fair, which are in the entire disposal of the Warden) that is, when a room becomes vacant, the first prisoner upon the list of such as have paid their commitment-fees succeeds to it. When the prison was built, the Warden gave each prisoner his choice of a room, according to his seniority.

If all the rooms be occupied, a new-comer, upon the payment of his commitment-fees, is chumm'd (as they term it) on the next room in rotation, beginning at No. 1 in the hall-gallery.

The apartments for Common-side Debtors are only part of the right-wing of the prison. Besides the cellar (which was intended for the kitchen, but is now occupied with lumber, and shut up), there are four floors. On each floor is a room near twenty-five feet square, with a fire-place; and on the sides seven closets, or cabins, to sleep in.

Such of the prisoners as swear in court, or before a Commissioner, that they are not worth five pounds, pounds, and cannot subsist without charity, partake of the casual donations which are sent to the prison and the begging-grate. Of this description there are generally about eight or ten prisoners. In the report of the Committee of the House of Commons, 1728, there is a table of some charities; and it was ordered, by the Judges Eyre, Price, Page, and Denton, "That a TABLE OF GIFTS AND BEQUESTS made for the Prisoners in the Fleet, expressing the particular purposes for which they were given, should be prepared by the Warden, and hung up in the hall of the said prison." (See Table of Fees, Trin. Term. 1727, in the Report of the Gaol Committee, p. 16.) It is hung up in the begging-grate room instead of the hall, that being the proper place.

Here is plenty of water, both from the river and pumps, and a spacious yard behind the prison, where the prisoners play at skittles, fives, tennis, &c.; and not only the prisoners, but strangers, who are admitted here as at any other public place of amusement!

On Monday and Thursday nights here is a Wine and Beer Club, which sometimes is kept up even till two or three o'clock in the morning! Those strangers who frequent these gross computations "must depart at eleven, or remain all night."  Surely this frequenting of a Gaol, must lessen the salutary dread of being confined in one!

Seeing the place always crowded with women and children, I procured an accurate list of them, and found that in February, 1801, there were 230 prisoners. Their wives (including women of an appellation not so honourable) and children were about 200 ; and, on the 10th December, 1803, the number of prisoners 229, their wives, &c. 148, and children, 391. In all 768 men, women, and children, living in the prison. One poor man had his wife and five children with him there. On every visit to this prison I found the staircases and lobbies very dirty ; and that every one preserved that degree of cleanliness in his own room which satisfied himself.
and

There is a Table of Fees to be taken by the Clerk of the Papers and Clerk of Enquiries, in the office, but not hung up in the prison. It is as follows :

REMARKS.

This Gaol, built on a fine spot near the old castle, is also the Bridewell. The Keeper's apartments are in front. One court, about 15 yards square, with a sewer and pump in it for debtors : those on the Common Side have a free ward on the ground-floor, about 24 feet by 15, which is also their day-room. Master Side debtors have five spacious rooms, light and airy, up-stairs ; there are fire-places in four of them. A room set apart for the sick ; and two baths, Rules and Orders, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, hung up, but not the Act for Preservation of Health. The Prison clean.

REMARKS.

The origin of this prison is somewhat enveloped in obscurity; but, according to Stowe's Survey of London, wherein the following record, made in the reign of Edward the First, is recited, viz. "Rex vic. London. salutem : ex gravi querelâ B. capt. et detent. in prisonâ nostrâ de Criplesgate pro xl. quas

“ Civitatis nostræ London, et I. de Blackwell civis
“ recognit. debit. &c.” it appears that Cripplegate, which was one of the four original gates of this city, was then a prison, as the Compter now is, for citizens and others, for debt or trespass; and was rebuilt in the year 1244, and again in 1491; and was last repaired in the year 1663. In the mean time, and in the 13th century, a prison was built for the reception of night-walkers, and other suspicious persons; which, from its shape, was called the Tun, and was situated upon Cornhill. Afterwards there was a prison in Bread-street, pertaining to the Sheriffs, which was called the Compter; and, in the year 1518, seems to have been recognized by the Act for establishing the Court of Conscience, which empowered its Commissioners to commit to one of the Compters, for debts not exceeding forty shillings; but now, by subsequent acts, extended to five pounds. In this Compter prisoners were received until the year 1552; when, by reason of the keeper's misconduct, they were removed to a new Compter in Wood-street, provided by the city, and built for that purpose. This was burned in the general conflagration of 1666, and being rebuilt more commodiously than before, continued to receive prisoners until April 2d, 1791, when they were transferred to the present Compter in Giltspur-street:

It

It appears necessary here to remark, that the Sheriffs of London have each a Court of Record, as well as a Compter, where each Sheriff, in his respective court, presides. These courts are now held at Guildhall, every Wednesday and Friday, for actions, &c. entered at this Compter; and on every Thursday and Saturday for actions entered at the Poultry, excepting holidays, and a vacation in the month of August; and each Sheriff has his office at his respective Compter, where his clerk-sitter attends for entering actions, &c. and also to discharge such debtors as become entitled to their release.

This Compter is now appropriated for the reception of debtors; of felons, and other offenders; and also of vagrants and night-charges (the watch-houses in this city not being permitted to retain prisoners there): But the constable of the night must forthwith commit them to the Compter in his district; from whence a list of the night-charges so committed, is, the next morning, returned to the Lord Mayor, or one of the Aldermen; in order that they may be examined touching the cause of their commitment, and be either discharged, bailed, or re-committed, to answer for their respective offences, according to due course of law.

The prisoners are divided into four classes; viz. Debtors, Felons, Misdemeanors and Assaults, and Vagrants; and the prison into nine separate and distinct distinct yards : that is to say, The Master's Side, South-yard, 28 feet by 20, containing a pump, affording soft water from the river Thames, and from whence a stair-case leads to two galleries, having each a sink and a cock supplying Thames-water ; which is thrown by a forcing-pump from a reservoir in the main yard to a large cistern on the top of that part of the prison, and descends from thence to the galleries : but here a difficulty sometimes occurs, from the forcing pump being out of the reach of the persons to be benefited thereby. These galleries lead to six rooms (exclusive of the Turnkey's-room on the ground-floor), having fire-places, capable of conveniently accommodating two persons in each, male or female, as it may happen, provided that a man-prisoner is not lodged in the same apartment with a woman-prisoner : and these apartments are at present occupied by Master-side debtors, who pay for the same according to the Table of Fees hereafter mentioned.

2d. The Master's Side, North yard, 30 feet by 18, being similar to the South in its construction and accommodations, but containing only five rooms with fire-places ; (exclusive of another Turnkey's room on the ground-floor,) and is at present occupied by persons under commitment for assaults, or trivial offences ; as also, occasionally, by the better sort of night-charges.

The

The Women Debtors' Ward has no yard, but attaches immediately to an arched passage, that leads to the Keeper's domestic Apartments, his Office, the Outer Turnkey's Lodge, and the office wherein is transacted the Sheriffs' business with respect to matters relating to his Court, and to this Prison. This passage also contains all the main gates, or first entrances to the Master's Side, and to the interior of the prison. The Women Debtors' Ward is supplied with four turn-up bedsteads, (which are inclosed in the day-time), a table, and moveable benches, a water-closet, and a large cistern of Thames water, with a good stone sink beneath it. The Ward has three windows next the street, a good fire-place, and is capable of lodging eight persons.

3d. The Common Side, Men Debtors' Yard, 75 feet by 18, contains two pumps, the one supplying spring water from a well in this yard, and the other affording soft water from the river Thames. It has a room at each end ; one of them occupied by a Turnkey, for the better security of the prison, and the other by the Steward of the Charity-wards. The wards appertaining to this yard are built upon arches, and divide the same into two parts ; having communication by arcades under one part, and a common room, used as a workshop for those Debtors who chuse to work, under the other : in which

shop is a large table fixed, whereon the prisoners belonging to these wards divide such provisions as they receive by charitable donation. From this yard is a stone staircase, closed with doors at the bottom, and leading to four wards; two on the first story, and two on the second. The two upper wards are used as bed-rooms, and are fitted up with sixteen low stump bedsteads in each (which lay upon barrack-forms, easily removed for the purpose of cleanliness), and a supply of rugs for the use of the prisoners. The other two wards are used as sitting-rooms, from eight in the morning until ten at night, when strangers are excluded, and the prisoners locked up for the night. The Sleeping-wards would be much improved, if all the beds were separated by dwarf partitions, having a door to each, but not reaching to the ceiling: Thus a free circulation of air would not be impeded, and the quiet prisoners would be protected from the insults of the disorderly in the night-time; an evil which has sometimes occurred, but the offenders are seldom discovered. The Sitting-wards are fitted up with tables and benches.

These wards, together with that of the women debtors, are denominated the Charity-wards; to which each prisoner, at his or her entrance, pays five shillings, to be applied to the common stock; eight pence to the steward, and six-pence to the scavenger; scavenger ; after which, the prisoner is at no farther expence, but becomes a partaker of all the benefits appertaining to the Charity-wards. The Court of Conscience Debtors, for six weeeks or less, have the same benefits, upon payment of fourteen pence only.

4th. The Main Yard, 35 feet square, leading to all the rest, except the Master's Side and Women Debtors, into which all persons in the adjoining yards (except debtors) are occasionally admitted in the day-time, at their own request ; and upon behaving themselves orderly, but not otherwise. This yard contains two pumps, one of spring-water, the other from the Thames ; also two forcing pumps, for the service of the Master's side, and a cock supplied with Thames-water upon the Main ; to which, by means of a screw, can be applied a long leathern hose, and thereby plenty of water is conveyed to all the yards, to wash both them and the cells. For this purpose mops and brooms are occasionally allowed by the benevolence of the Committee of City Lands, &c. On the North and South sides are two large rooms facing each other, and having communication with the arched passage before mentioned ; which rooms are occupied in the day-time by those who desire it, and at night are the common receptacles for night-charges*. They are fitted up with benches all round, and a large German stove in both. They have detached privies, and are capable of containing about twenty persons each, for one night only ; such night-charges being afterward classed as aforesaid, having first undergone their examination before a magistrate. These rooms have stone floors ; they are spacious, and very airy ; and have a number of rugs laid on the benches, for the use of such persons as unfortunately may become inhabitants in the night-time. Under another arched passage leading from this yard, is the Inner Turn-key's Lodge, and a staircase leading to a very convenient Chapel ; over which are four good rooms, for the use of the sick prisoners, fitted up with iron bedsteads, good tickings, blankets, and rugs ; and canvass cases, to be stuffed for making beds, as occasion may require.

From this yard are two other staircases ; each leading to three small bed-rooms, fitted up at the keeper's expence, for the use of such night-charges, or others, as may desire to occupy them ; having one bed in each room.

The above passage communicates with five other yards, separate and distinct from each other : one being a small yard, with a pump of Thames-water, and containing three scanty rooms, or cells, capable of lodging six persons. Another small yard, equally supplied from the Thames, contains five rooms or

or cells of the same dimensions. At the back of four of these rooms is a passage, with a fire-place at the end; which communicating, by means of an iron-grating, to each cell, thereby renders them dry and warm.

The next yard, furnished in like manner with water, has a room with a fire-place, and four cells of the same dimensions; and near to this are two larger yards, having six cells of the like size, together with similar passages, and fire-places to keep them comfortably warm: The cells are all fitted up with barrack bedsteads, raised about three feet from the ground; each provided with a canvass case stuffed with straw, and two or three rugs, or blankets, allowed by the City.

These last five yards are for the reception of all prisoners, except debtors. No persons here, or in the Charity-wards, pay any thing for lodging; and garnish is prohibited in every part of this prison. Here are also very convenient cold and hot baths, to which all prisoners have free access, as necessity requires, and at convenient seasons. There are two rooms set apart for the sick, one 18 feet by 14, the other 14 feet by 12, and 12 feet high; and two other rooms of the same size, which can easily be converted into Sick wards, if necessary.

The allowance to prisoners, of all descriptions, is at present present—ten ounces of wheaten bread daily, one pound of rice, and about five pounds of potatoes each weekly : coals and other gifts by the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs ; and broken victuals from the Old and New London Taverns frequently.

Paupers, brought to this Compter (as such) in order to be removed to their parishes, or otherwise relieved, are especially subsisted, and frequently clothed.

The gifts by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, at Christmas, New-year's day, Easter, and some uncertain day after, are the same as mentioned in my subsequent description of "Ludgate."

Here are also some permanent Donations of bread and meat at stated periods ; which, together with the Sheriffs' seven stone of meat weekly, belong to the Charity-wards only ; and are distributed among such prisoners in the said wards as have attended, and properly demeaned themselves in the chapel, during divine service on the preceding Sunday. These, in the way of ridicule, are called Beef-eaters, by the profligate few who absent themselves : But nearly the whole attended divine service when I was here in March, 1807, and their behaviour was orderly, and attentive to a very appropriate discourse. The chapel clerk is Mr. John Peter Lawrence, who receives

receives half a crown every Sunday, for assisting the Chaplain, and setting the psalm, by order of the Court of Aldermen.

Money is paid by several of the City Companies, by the Common Council of Farringdon Within, by the Trustees of Mrs. Ashton's charity, and by others, towards the release of debtors in this and other prisons; and is applied as stated in the account of Ludgate.

All

All the donations belonging to the Charity-wards are delivered to one of the prisoners, who acts as steward; in whose name, witnessed by the Keeper, all the receipts are signed, and given under the common seal of the prison. This steward receives also the subscriptions before mentioned; and himself pays a rent to the general stock, for the use of two closets, which he again lets to his own advantage: He advances money upon the credit of the donations, out of which he reimburses himself as they become due; pays five per cent. to a collector; furnishes the Charity-wards with a constant supply of coals, wood, salt, candles, &c. besides paying a weekly allowance to a basket-woman, to collect broken victuals at the taverns; and for other messages, on account of the said wards: also contributes towards the support of such common-side debtors as may, by the surgeon's order, be placed in the Sick-ward; pays also a weekly allowance to the scavenger, and his assistant, called the Twelver; and is of real use to the prison at large. This plan, of the application of the donations, was first adopted by Mr. Kirby, when keeper of Wood-street-Compter; and appears to be most beneficial to the unfortunate, as every comfort to be procured by the donations is thereby equally and impartially afforded; no disputes can arise from the quarterly division of money; nor can the prison be defrauded, as the steward is obliged to submit his accounts to be audited by four of the senior prisoners ; and, though elected by the general suffrages of the Charity-wards, cannot be dispossessed, so long as he shall act soberly and honestly, for the general advantage, and not be guilty of breach of the trust reposed in him by the keeper.

There is no expence attending the commitment of prisoners to this Compter, either upon civil or criminal process ; nor does any expence attend any person's confinement, unless, at his own request, he is admitted on the Master's side. Upon Civil Actions the fees are as follows : For entrance, three shillings to the Keeper, and two shillings to the Turnkeys ; for rent, two shillings and six-pence per week : But if there are two in a bed, then each pays one shilling and three pence : For the discharge of a Master's side debtor, eight shillings and ten pence ; and for the discharge of a Common-side debtor, eight shillings *. Debtors discharged by the Lords' Act pay no fees.

An expence is incurred by prisoners of all descriptions, upon their discharge, exclusive of prison-fees above mentioned : And first, of Debtors ; each of whom, being entitled to be discharged, must pay as follows, if upon one action only : To the Secondaries six shillings, to the Clerk-sitter of the Poultry Compter one shilling; to the Clerk-sitter of this Compter four shillings and eight pence, and to the Messenger one shilling. If more actions than one, the expence varies, according to the number and nature of the writs; which, if in execution, entitle the Secondaries to one shilling for every pound under the sum of one hundred pounds, and six-pence for every pound above that sum; and this is called Sheriff's Poundage*. The Fees paid by other prisoners are as follows;

FEES during Confinement.

Every night-charge, or other prisoner upon Criminal Process, who, at his own desire, shall be accommodated with bed and bedding, must pay for the first night two shillings, and for every other night one shilling; unless formally admitted on the Master's Side: when, in lieu thereof, they each pay ten shillings and six-pence entrance, and three shillings and six-pence per week afterwards.

The Rules and Orders for the government of this prison were signed the 27th of November, 1792, by Lords Kenyon and Loughborough, and by Aldermen Crosby, Anderson, and Combe: They relate principally to Debtors; the execution thereof is vested in the Keeper and his Turnkeys; and they are as follows, that is to say: Directions concerning the payment of six-pence to the Scavenger, or to assist him six days, and eight pence to the Steward; directions for dividing provisions; for persons under judgment of fine and imprisonment to partake, in certain cases, with the Debtors; to promote cleanliness; for due attendance on divine service; for cleanliness of prisoners' persons; against opprobrious language; against profaneness and drunkenness; against molesting visitors, and to prevent visitors from molesting prisoners; to prevent women from lodging in men's apartments, and vice versa; against keeping dogs; to determine who shall not partake of donations; to prevent tippling; time of retiring to rest, and rising in the morning; against striking the steward, or defacing orders; more concerning performance of divine service; against disposal of prison-prison-rugs; Master's-side prisoners to clean their stairs, passages, and rooms; not to quarrel, or use opprobrious language: concerning the placing of Master's-side prisoners in their rooms: to prohibit the admission of wine, or beer, after eight o'clock in the evening, &c.

The mode directed by the foregoing Rules and Orders to enforce obedience thereto, is by flogging, or by confinement in a cell for any time not more than twelve hours, nor less than three, for one offence, at the discretion of the Keeper.

These Rules and Orders have, in some few instances, been inadequate to preserve the peace; inasmuch as a prisoner possessing personal strength has beaten and ill-treated his fellow-prisoner, and has afterwards preferred imprisonment in the cells to making any apology for his misbehaviour; and has come out of the cells with a determination to repeat his offence.

This Prison, from its structure, affords the means of a further improvement, respecting the first imprisonment of persons arrested upon mesne process for debt; whose separation from their families is likely to be but of short duration, and who might (if they chose) be accommodated on the Master's-side, and be thereby saved from the necessity of being suddenly plunged into the interior of the prison, among persons, who, it may sometimes happen,
are

are not of the purest manners, whereby the minds of many heretofore honest men, may have been contaminated ; and thus they have been rendered worse members of society than before such incarceration : This seems to be the true intent and use of Masters'-sides in gaols, so far as relates to debtors. But such accommodation is, under the present system, liable to impediment from the occupancy of the said Master's side by persons under execution ; who may, if they please, remain there for several years together, to the exclusion of unfortunate and, perhaps, innocent persons, taken upon mesne process, without the ability of procuring bail, till the cause of arrest can be determined ; many of whom, from the dread of a common gaol, may have submitted to unjust demands, and become the easy prey of the profligate and designing : examples of this, it is much to be feared, have not been wanting. Another evil respecting prisons is, the wilful staying-in of debtors, when they might obtain their discharge ; thus, by their seniority, filling the most eligible situations, and crowding the prisons, already too full of miserable and unfortunate objects.

REMARKS.

The Gaoler lives in a house adjoining the prison, which communicates with the Court of Session. On the first flat (or floor) there are nine rooms about seven feet square, four of which are totally dark, and without ventilation, except what is admitted through a very small aperture in the door. The other four have each a small iron-grated window: the ninth is called the iron-room, where prisoners under sentence of death are chained (as at Edinburgh) to a strong iron bar, and cannot lift that foot from the floor.

floor. The second flat has one room for criminals, and two for debtors, about eight feet square; and the tap-room, which is about sixteen feet square, with a fire-place and window. The third flat has five rooms for debtors, eight feet square, and a larger one sixteen feet square. The fourth flat has five rooms for women. Debtors find their own beds; but felons are allowed a mattress, two blankets, and a rug. Though my second visit to this prison was before ten o'clock in the morning, the tap-room was filled with men and women drinking.

The Keeper's salary is only 70*l.* but his payments are as follows :

	l.	s.	d.
To a Clerk per week, 10 s. -	26	0	0
To the Inner-turnkey per week, 12 s.	31	4	0
To the Outer-turnkey 8 s. per week,	20	16	0
To two women for fetching water and cleaning buckets, 4 s. per week      -	10	8	0

Thus is the Tap made a source of finance to the Prison, which I found filthy and nauseous in the extreme. Large quantities of ashes, to the amount of several loads, were in various parts of the Gaol, and rendered rendered almost intolerable, from fish in a putrid state having been thrown amongst them. The cells were so very offensive, that I wonder any human being could exist in them; the uncovered half-tubs, which served the purpose of necessaries, were three parts full; and, upon my asking the women if they were not ashamed to let them be in such a state, one of them (turning her head over her shoulder towards me) replied, "They are not full yet." "T is true," said I, "they will hold a little more." "We generally empty them once a fortnight," said she. It was two years since the Gaol had been white-washed; and in the debtors' room there was a paper stuck up, "Garnish Eighteen Pence," in defiance of the Prohibition.

RULES to be observed by the Jaylor and his servants.

1. The jaylor shall not, by himself or any of his servants, directly or indirectly, demand or receive from any prisoner, or from any person in his or her name, at entry, or during his or her confinement, any sums of money under the name of entry-money, garnishing, or any other denomination, separate from, and over and above the fees stipulated as above. Further, the jaylor shall not suffer any of the prisoners to make demands of money or drink from persons newly incarcerated, on any pretence whatsoever.

2. The jaylor shall, all the year, open each day the prison at nine, and shut it at three in the afternoon ; then open at five, and shut it at nine for the night : only on Sundays, the prison shall be shut during public worship, any thing in this rule to the contrary. And the jaylor is always to keep the whole keys of the prison in his own custody custody while it is shut up, and not entrust them with any of his servants.

3. The jaylor, every morning and evening, at the opening of, and before shutting up the prison, shall personally visit every room and place therein, carefully inspect the windows, chimnies, and walls thereof, in order to prevent and discover all attempts to cut the iron stanchers, or to break through the stone walls, joists, and floors of the prison; and he shall take particular care that no instruments be conveyed to, or be in the possession of, any of the prisoners, whereby they may effectuate their escape, or hurt one another: And in case the jaylor shall, through indisposition, be prevented from the execution of his duty, he shall take care to employ some faithful person in his absence.

4. The jaylor and his servants are expressly prohibited, on any account, to sell, or suffer to be brought in, to any of the prisoners, spirits or strong liquor, whereby they may be in danger of being intoxicated; and to use their utmost endeavours to promote sobriety amongst those under their charge.

5. The jaylor shall keep the prisoners for debt in the best rooms, and separate from criminals and disorderly persons; and prevent, as much as possible, their associating and conversing together; and the friends and servants of debtors shall be allowed, at all convenient times, to bring in vivers * for their own support.

6. In order to make the prison more healthy and clean, the jaylor shall, at his own expence, cause pare and clean the stairs, sweep the rooms, and remove and carry away all filth and nastiness, at least three times in the week.

The jaylor, in the event of his exacting, by himself, or his servants, more fees than stipulated as above, or in the event of transgressing any of the Rules or Instructions foresaid, shall be dismissed from his office, or otherwise punished as the magistrates, for the time being, and council, shall judge proper.

It is recommended to the magistrates, frequently to examine and enquire into the fidelity of the jaylor and his servants; and the Council hereby ordains these dues and regulations to be printed and published, that none may pretend ignorance; and ordains John Rowan, jaylor, and his successors in office, to affix a copy hereof in the most public part of the Tolbooth, under the penalty of ten pounds Scots."

There are no court-yards to the Gaols in Scotland where debtors are confined. The original cause of this seems to have been the following very coolly weighed, but severe maxim, in the Scotch law: "After a debtor is imprisoned, he ought not to be indulged with the benefit of the air, not even under a guard; for creditors have an interest that their debtors be kept under close confinement, that, by the squalor carceris they may be brought to pay their debt." Act Sess. 14 June, 1671. See the Principles of the Law of Scotland. 5th edit. p. 461.

REMARKS.

The situation of this prison is judiciously chosen, a little way out of the town : the boundary-wall encloses nearly three acres of ground ; and the buildings consist of three prisons, for three separate and distinct purposes. The Turnkey's Lodge, in front, has on the ground floor a guard-room, porter's-room, pantry, and bakehouse, a fumigating-room, and warm and cold baths. Up-stairs, two rooms for flour and wheat, and four reception-cells, 7 feet 6 inches by 6 feet. Two rooms for prisoners' clothes ; one for irons, locks, bolts, &c. ; and the porter's sleeping-room. On the flat roof above is the place of execution. A small court-yard leads to the Gaoler's house, in which is the magistrates' committee-room. The prisons are surrounded by eleven separate courts, of an irregular polygon shape ; and between each is a small space of garden-ground, to prevent conversation between the different classes : They have open wood palisades, by which a thorough air is admitted, and the ground being an inclined plane is constantly dry. The distance, of about fifteen feet from the boundary wall, affords a convenient garden for the growth of vegetables.

The Debtors have a spacious airy court, 70 yards in length, and 19 wide, with a colonnade at each end, 16 yards by  $3\frac{1}{2}$ , and two smaller courts. A day-room, 15 yards by 12, with two fire-places, fitted up with every accommodation for frugal cookery; and two large commodious work-rooms, wherein to carry on any trade for their sole benefit, if they can procure employment from without. If not, they are supplied with work, on application to the manufacturer, and paid two third parts of the estimated value of their daily earnings; and the risque of sale of the articles so manufactured remains with the county.

The prisoners for debt are in two divisions, or classes; one under the Magistrates' protection, to which all are admitted on their first commitment; yet in which none are suffered to remain, but on conforming to rules intended for the preservation of their health and morals, and for promoting that decency and good order which must tend to their common benefit.

The second division is (as it is termed) the Sheriff's ward. With prisoners in this class the magistrates no otherwise interfere, than to protect them against the ordinary means of extortion. The debtors in it are liable to all such claims and consequences, as the gaoler may, by law or usage, have authority to impose.

Each debtor desiring to live under the magistrates' protection, has a separate bed-room, fire-proof, fitted fitted up with an iron bedstead, a hair mattress, blankets, quilt, and sheets, at the County cost ; those confined in the Sheriff's ward have the like accommodation, paying the regulated room-rent. Such as are far removed from, or totally destitute of friends, and without the power to procure their six-pencés ; such as are not able to work, or, being able, cannot procure employment sufficient to find themselves in necessary sustenance ; such, and such only, are relieved from the public stock, on producing a certificate from the minister, and some other respectable inhabitants of the place of residence of any such debtor, that he is so destitute of friends, and a deserving object of the public bounty. An unlimited construction of the clause of the Lords' Act, which allows debtors, at their will and pleasure, to send for, or to have brought to them, any ale, beer, &c. is the source of all that riot and disorder which happens in their prisons, and is probably a principal cause of their distress. By the Gloucester Bye Laws, the power to send for victuals and small beer is not only unrestrained, but a messenger is paid by the public to procure it for them, at all hours in the day-time. But, in respect to strong liquor, no prisoner is allowed to have and receive, for his own use, more than a pint of wine, or a quart of strong beer in any one day.

By the police of this prison respecting debtors, it is considered as the best expedient to guide them to good, by the prospect of benefits ; and no otherwise to punish their irregularities, than by removing them from a participation of those benefits. Had the exemption from fees been unconditionally given, they would soon have claimed it as their right, and forgotten it as a benefaction ; and this negative influence on their conduct would have been lost.

For male debtors there are 34 single sleeping-cells, 20 on the first story, and 14 on the second : and a large room, with five beds, should those be insufficient ; besides three rooms in the keeper's house, for which they pay as per Table.

For Common Side debtors there are two rooms on the first story, and one on the second, each containing five beds : and a large room, with five beds for female debtors, on the first story.

The sleeping-cells are 8 feet by 6, with arched roofs, and well ventilated. There is a dispensary, two hospital rooms, and a large convalescent ward adjoining, and the roof has leads for these prisoners to take the air upon. There is a court where coals are deposited, and a large wheel for forcing water into four reservoirs, from which every part of the prison is well supplied. The goods manufactured here are linen and woollen cloth, bottle-stands, boots, shoes, slippers, weaving, &c.

The

The chapel is a neat building: Each class enters by a separate door to the place assigned, which is out of the view of others. Their names are called over before divine service begins, and none are permitted to absent themselves, except on some special occasion or sickness. I was much pleased with the appropriate discourse of the worthy chaplain to the several classes as he addressed them. Besides the service, noted in its place, prayers are read the four other days in the week by the Gaoler; who then distributes the daily allowance, of bread and money, to every prisoner who appears clean, and has behaved decently at chapel.

These prisons exhibit the highest pitch of perfection in POLITY I ever witnessed, and the greatest care and discernment in the choice of officers: every one seems peculiarly adapted for the situation he fills. Silence, obedience, and decorum reign in every department, and satisfaction is demonstrated in the countenance of every prisoner. The most humane treatment in the articles of food, lodging, &c. joins with strict regulations to prevent vain and riotous amusement. Confinement is neither destructive to health nor morals; but it is sufficiently irksome to the idle and profligate. The Rules and Orders are worthy the excellent Magistrate* who framed them; and his zeal for the public good is fully equalled by his powers of judgment in execution.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, which is likewise the City Bridewell, was first occupied 24th November, 1784, and is situate in South-gate Street. The Keeper's apartments front the street, and his kitchen commands the court, which is of an oval shape, 12 yards by 8½, with sewers and two pumps in it, and is the only one for all descriptions of prisoners. The straw room, or free ward, for poor debtors, is over the felons' day-room: it is about twelve feet square, with a fire-place and glazed window. Master's Side debtors have a day-room up-stairs, and one bed-room, for which they pay as per Table. On the 13th of December, prisoners have ten shillings worth of bread from an estate in Hemstead, near this city. It is sent in two-penny loaves. No memorial of it in the Gaol.
for

This Gaol, for the manor of Wakefield, is the property of the Duke of Leeds. For Master's Side debtors there are four rooms in the Keeper's public house, for which they pay as per Table. It is the sign of the Leeds' Arms, and under it is inscribed, "Neat Wines. The Jail House."

Through this you pass to a Court sixteen yards by eight; at the further end of which is a good-sized room on the ground-floor for Common Side debtors, debtors, called the Low Gaol; and from it there is an aperture to the street, about a foot square, to receive provisions. Over this room is another, 28 feet by 19, and 8 feet high (the Low Gaol Chamber), with an iron-grated glazed window and fire-place; and six sleeping-rooms, for which is paid as per Table. The whole prison out of repair: Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors hung up. No employment furnished. or servants, going amongst them to regulate abuses, or any disturb him or them, he or they shall for every such offence be kept in close confinement, at the discretion of the said Gaoler.

By the Court,

JOHN FOLJAMBE, Deputy Clerk of the Peace.

In this town, formerly, the barons (as in many other places), and after them various proprietors, had power of life and death. The method of execution was decollation, by an axe in an engine, similar to the Guillotine in France. Abraham Wilkinson, John Wilkinson, and Anthony Mitchell, were the last who suffered by it, in May 1650. I saw the axe; it is preserved in the Gaol.

When any felon was here found guilty, the bailiff immediately returned him back to prison, for the space of one week, or thereabouts; and on every market-day, there being three in a week, the felon was set in the public stocks; and either upon his back, if the thing stolen was portable, or if not, then before his face, the goods were so placed, that they might be noticed by all passengers. The manner of execution: The prisoner being brought to the scaffold by the bailiff, the axe being drawn up by a pulley, and fastened with a pin to the side of the scaffold, if it was a horse, an ox, or cow, &c. that was taken with the prisoner, it was thither brought along with him to the place of execution, and fastened by a cord to the pin that stayed the block; so that, when the time of execution came (which was known by the jurors, holding up one of their hands), the bailiff, or his servant, whipping the beast, the pin was plucked out, and execution done. But if there was no beast in the felon's case, then the bailiff, or his servant, cut the rope.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, built within the walls of the old Castle, has a spacious and airy court, about 36 yards square, where men and women, debtors and felons, associate together during the day-time. Here are five cells and a kitchen for felons; and a Bridewell-room for men. Over these are five rooms for debtors, who are allowed straw on wooden bedsteads; a room called the Women's Bridewell, and a store-room. The felons' sleeping-cells (12 feet by 6 feet 9 inches)

open into a passage four feet wide, and being three steps under ground, and damp, makes it absolutely necessary to have bedsteads; but at my visit, 1803, there was nothing but straw on the brick-floors; and the Gaoler told me that eight or ten prisoners had been crowded every night, in each cell, a month together. Here is a Chapel: no Infirmary, or Bath. A fine well of water in the centre of the court-yard. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, hung up.

Mrs. Martha Bowen declared in her will, that 100*l.* had been deposited in her hands by an unknown person, about the year 1751, for the benefit of insolvent debtors and the poor; which said sum of 100*l.* was invested in New South-Sea Annuities, in trust, to the Rectors of St. Mary's, Haverfordwest. I found the Rector, Mr. Ayleway, quite superannuated, and incapable of giving me any account of its distribution. The Gaoler told me no debtor had received the bread from the 16th of August, 1802, to January 1803, when two sixpenny loaves were sent; and he afterwards informed me by letter, that he had received the bread in December 1804. Formerly a sixpenny loaf was given weekly to each poor debtor, and the remainder in twopenny loaves to the poor in the town. The county allows a common fire from Michaelmas to Lady-day; but no employment is furnished. In the great dearth, 1800 and 1801, the sufferings of the poor debtors induced Lord Cawdor to order the surplus of the soup distributed on that occasion to be sent to the Gaol; which proved a great relief.

REMARKS.

This miserable Gaol, which is likewise the Bridewell, has one large room below for felons; and two above, one of which is for debtors; and the other, about 13 feet square, is the Bridewell. These last are used, however, as the Keeper and prisoners make choice. Straw is allowed, on wooden beds. No court-yard, nor water.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is the Bye-street Gate, and one room in it is called the Bridewell. It has a small court with a sewer in it, and the whipping-post. For Common Side debtors here is a free ward, to which the Corporation allow straw: they have a little court about 15 feet square, with a sewer: and it is well supplied with water.

Master's Side debtors have two rooms in the Keeper's house, for which they pay 2*s.* 6*d.* per week for a single bed; or, if two sleep together, 1*s.* 6*d.* each. Debtors are committed here by process issuing out of the Mayor's Court. Neither the Act nor Clauses hung up. The whole prison very dirty.

RE-

REMARKS.

This Prison is built upon the site of the old Priory. The Turnkey's lodge in front has, on each side, two reception-cells for the confinement of prisoners, till examined by the Surgeon, previous to their being admitted into the interior of the gaol; and two small court-yards for their use: Also a warm and cold bath, and an oven to fumigate and purify the prisoners' clothes. The flat-roof above is the place of execution. The court is flagged, and in it is the engine-house, and a well, by which the whole prison is supplied with excellent water. A house for the manufacturer, or task-master, and a very neat shop for the articles manufactured in the prison, viz. shoes, slippers, gaiters, stockings, gloves, garters, flaxen yarn, and nets of all sorts; the sale of which is promoted by advertisement, at the county expence. At the upper end of this court is the gaoler's house, on the ground-floor of which is the magistrates' committee-room: A passage leads to the great-hall, or inspection-room, which is about 18 yards diameter, and nearly circular, with windows opening into every court, and has a complete command of the whole prison.

The RULES AND ORDERS, which are painted on a board, and hung up in every lobby, among other things recite,—“ANY PERSON wishing to work, may

“ have raw materials of the Keeper, who will dispose of the work on the best terms he can ; and, after deducting the prime cost of the raw materials, pay the remainder to the prisoner who has performed the work : except one fourth thereof, which is to be reserved for the county. Any person to whom work is refused, or whose money is kept back, or has suffered any imposition from the Keeper, or his servants, is particularly enjoined to make complaint thereof to the Magistrate, at his next visitation *.”

Men and women debtors have each a separate and spacious court-yard, but no day-room. The men have twenty sleeping-rooms, ten below and ten above, twelve feet by nine each, furnished with beds and bedding by the Gaoler ; for which they pay, as by the following Table. The women have eight rooms of equal size, four below and four above, all free wards ; and if a debtor is too poor to provide his own bed, the County humanely furnishes him an iron-bedstead with sacking bottom, a straw-bed, two blankets, and a coverlet, gratis. There is a fire-place in every room, but no fuel allowed.

In several of the courts vegetables are grown for the use of the prisoners, in addition to the allowance above stated.

* A letter from the Keeper just received, dated 14th Feb. 1808, has given me equal surprize and concern, by informing me that the working system is in a great measure discontinued.

Here

Here are four excellent infirmary-rooms, and the sick are as well attended to as in an hospital. The humane Surgeon having a discretionary power to order all things necessary, every page of the prison-books bears witness to his great attention.

The Chapel is a very neat building, and the prisoners are seated in their different classes; all are required to attend divine service, which is most devoutly and impressively performed by the excellent and exemplary Chaplain; by whose serious discourses I was much edified at my several visits, and with pleasure remarked the number of communicants when the sacrament was administered.

William Bridges, Esq. bequeathed eight pounds a year to poor prisoners: and on St. Thomas's day, one shilling is given to each debtor, and one shilling to each felon, by a legacy of Sir Thomas White.

No table of bequests kept in the Prison. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are painted on a board, and conspicuously fixed up.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is situated just out of the town, and surrounded by a wall 15 feet high ; which, being at a considerable distance from the buildings, admits a free circulation of air ; and the Keeper has within it a convenient garden. For men and women debtors there is only one court, 20 yards by 12. Their infirmary-room, which is spacious and lofty, is on the ground floor : but they have no day-room. For Common

Common Side Debtors there are ten sleeping-rooms, 16 feet 8 inches by 11 feet 7, which are free wards: But the county allows neither bedding nor straw; so that, if a debtor cannot provide himself with a bed, he must sleep on the bare boards. The lobby which leads to these rooms is only four feet wide, and the pillars, being square, and of brick, make them both dark and close. The door-ways are only twenty-two inches wide, so that no crib-bedsteads can be introduced. There are two other rooms, 12 feet by 10, which are furnished for those who can pay 7s. a week each, and two sleep together. No firing allowed. No employment is furnished. The County attempted to establish a manufactory; but, the expence * exceeding the earnings of the prisoners, it was soon discontinued. The Chapel is very close: it has no cupola; and the debtors, who are very negligent in their attendance on divine service, frequently interrupt it: only three out of eleven were present at my visit in 1803. There is a want of cleanliness and regularity in the government of this Gaol. The Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are hung up, but not the Act for Preservation of Health.

* That employment might be made productive, under proper regulations, see Dorchester, p. 163, Gloucester, p. 239, and various other prisons; as has already been and will be shewn, in the course of this work.

REMARKS.

The situation of this prison, judiciously chosen, is a little way out of the town: a small garden extends along the front. In the door of the Keeper's house there is a poor's box, for obtaining prisoners' sixpences. Here are two spacious courts (about half an acre each), with gravel walks surrounding a fine grass-plat: both are well supplied with excellent water, and a wall encloses the whole prison. The debtors' apartments are over arcades, to which the ascent is by a stone staircase skirted with iron rails. There are two floors, each of which has ten rooms (five on each side a passage five feet wide); besides a day-room (28 feet by 12 feet three inches); and a lodging-room for the turnkey. To each room are two doors, one of wood, the other iron-latticed. Every room has a shutter for the window, with a pane of knobbed glass in it, a wood bedstead, a straw in canvas bed, and two blankets. The county is so considerate as to allow half a bushel of coals per day to each common room during the six winter months, two tin kettles, and a wooden scuttle. A Turnkey, paid by the County, goes twice a day to purchase provisions and liquors for the debtors; and it is properly fixed they shall not exceed each one pint of wine, or one quart of strong beer a-day. The Justices have sent in scales and weights, which is a check on the baker; and I have always found the loaves full weight. There is no Infirmary; but two rooms, with fire-places, are set apart for the sick. The Act for Preservation of Health is not hung up. The Gaoler's house has not a proper view of the court-yards: a window should be made in his kitchen towards the Debtors' court, and in his parlour to that of the Felons. There should be benches in the day-rooms to sit upon, and shelves for debtors to deposit their plates and provisions; instead of which, at present, there are only the naked walls.

in

The Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, and the Rules and Orders, are hung up. The sewers are judiciously placed. The Chapel, which is in the Keeper's house, has a gallery for the Gaoler and his family. The pulpit is on the same level: the area below is 17 feet by 15, and has benches for the prisoners; so that debtors and felons sit opposite each other, but almost close together. Any prisoner absent from divine service, without a proper cause, is punished by close confinement, or short allowance. Religious books, at the county-expence, are distributed by the worthy Chaplain: all the prisoners attended when I was there (20th July, 1806), and their behaviour was orderly and attentive. The County, at my former visits, allowed those debtors to work who could procure it, by which many supported themselves comfortably, and assisted their families. I was sorry to be informed that this indulgence was now denied them, and the whole number (twenty-eight) in a state of idleness; no work whatever being permitted in the Gaol. It is a maxim in many of our best-governed prisons that every attention be paid to the means of industry. Sir George Paul justly observes, "that DEBTORS and the UNCONVICTED should doubtless be allowed to employ the wages of their own industry, to make life more comfortable; but under such restrictions as the good government of the prison renders indispensable. What is it less than a palpable absurdity, to commit a penniless offender, till he pays a fine, and deny him the exercise of his art and industry, to enable him to redeem his liberty *?"

Every Christmas a man goes about the county to collect donations for the relief of poor Debtors; and the money thus procured is distributed amongst them, at 2s. each per week, till the whole is expended. The contribution in 1805 amounted to 67*l.* 2s.; and in 1806, to 84*l.* 11s. 11*d.*; out of which the collector had one fourth for his expences, time, and trouble †.

* Since writing the above I have been informed that some Debtors had attempted to escape, and that others would not conform to the rules of the Gaol, which caused an order for prohibiting work.

† At my several visits I have always seen one Simon Southward, a debtor here, who was committed the 22d of February, 1767. He is now allowed by the parish 6s. a week. He styles himself Simon, Earl of Derby, King in Man; is very orderly and inoffensive, but evidently deranged.

Allowance. Four pence per day to paupers.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is in a fine situation, just out of the town, and refreshed by the sea-breezes. It would be a good one, if the Turnkey's Lodge were rebuilt, in front of the prison; and the boundary-wall, at present only 13 feet 6 inches, raised five feet higher. Under the same roof with the Turnkey's apartments are an oven, a bath, and a work-room for debtors. These are injudiciously built in the court, and near the prison-wall, obstructing the keeper's view, and seeming to invite escapes: Hence four have been effected in ten years; felons are therefore therefore prohibited the use of it. The ground-floor of the gaol is occupied by the keeper, except one room for women-convicts, which looks to the garden, where they can see and converse with the debtors. Here is one spacious court, 60 yards by 20, for male and female debtors ; and a day-room, 22 feet 8 inches by 14 feet 4, with many conveniences for working. Rooms are provided for the manufactory of garters, laces, &c. for those who are of no trades, but willing to work. Master's-side debtors have three rooms on the second, and three on the third story ; and pay 1s. 6d. a week for a single bed, or if two sleep together, 1s. 3d. each. Common-side debtors have a room on the third story, for which they pay 6d. a week, and find their own bedding. In the depth of winter the magistrates humanely order a bushel and half of coals per week to every room which has a fire-place. In the centre of the building is a square room (too small) with a reading-desk in one corner, used as a Chapel, where all prisoners indiscriminately mix when divine service is performed. Both Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up. Water at all times accessible. The prison is well ventilated, healthy, and clean. From the quantity of Junk I saw in this busy maritime town, it is evident that constant employ in picking oakum might be furnished for every prisoner, if convenient work-rooms were built, which may easily be done.

REMARKS.

The Gaoler's house is situate in the High Street, and has no appearance of an appendage to a prison. The Gaol is behind it; through a passage leading immediately to the felons' day-room. This is about 16 feet square, and 10 feet high; has a fire-place, with two iron-grated windows; and here, as there is no chapel, divine service is performed. The attendance of Debtors I understand to be optional !

Men debtors have a court-yard 53 feet by 26, a day-room 30 feet by 14, and 10 feet 5 inches high, with a fire-place. Their sleeping-room above is 26 feet by 14 feet 6, 9 feet 6 inches high, and has four bedsteads for two persons each.

At my Summer visits the debtors complained to me of excessive heat, from want of ventilation ; the two small iron-grated apertures, made to admit a thorough air, being nearly stopped up on the outside. The County allows straw only, so that debtors in general bring their own beds, and pay nothing, or else the Keeper furnishes a single bed at 2s. 4d. per week ; if two sleep together, at 1s. 9d. each ; and for those who can afford it, there are two other rooms in the house, at 3s. 6d. per week.

Women debtors have a separate court-yard, 33 feet by 19 ; a day-room 21 feet by 16, with a fire-place ; and over it their sleeping-room, nearly of the same size, with four bedsteads for two persons each. They furnish their own bedding. The windows of this room formerly commanded a fine view of the country, which made it both pleasant and healthy ; but at my last visit, the wall of the court-yard had been raised so high, as to intercept the scenery.

No firing allowed, but to felons in severe weather. No employment furnished by the County ; but such debtors as are of handicraft trades, and can procure it from without, are permitted to work, and receive all they earn. There is a pump in every court-yard, but no bath, or oven, which are much wanted. Both Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up. I found the whole of this ill-constructed prison very clean, and well supplied with water.

REMARKS.

The Turnkey's lodge fronts the river. On the ground-floor is a warm and cold bath ; over which, and the gateway, are his sleeping-rooms. A small garden leads to the Keeper's house ; which, though placed in the centre of the buildings, commands but a very small part of the prison. It has a cupola on the top, which serves either for the chapel, or for alarm, if needful. Great part of the Gaol is surrounded by an outside wall, about 16 feet high, which, while it adds to its security, affords the keeper a convenient kitchen garden. Master's Side debtors have a spacious court-yard, where they play at fives, tennis, &c. a day-room and mess-room 20 feet by 12 each; and 17 lodging-rooms, that accommodate 30 prisoners, for which they pay as per Table.

For Common-side debtors there are two stories over arcades, each containing five sleeping-cells, 8 feet by 7, and 8 feet 6 inches high, fitted up with perforated iron bedsteads; straw, changed once a month, a blanket, and a coverlet. Every cell has a double door, the outer iron-grated, the inner wood, opening into a passage four feet wide; the windows of which (four) look into the court. These cells are lighted and ventilated by a semicircular window, half of which is glazed, the other half open, and an aperture in the wall, 18 inches by 9. In the day-time they are allowed the use of the Master's-side debtors' court, and likewise of the mess-room and fire.

The Women debtors' court is 18 yards by 6, and intended for the use of sick prisoners. It is separated from the Men-felons' court by a dwarf-wall, and iron palisades, through which they can see and converse with each other. They have arcades, under which they may walk in wet weather; and over these are their two sleeping-rooms, and two infirmary-rooms. The Chapel, to which the access is through the keeper's house, is on the felons' side of the prison.

prison. It is not well partitioned for the different classes of prisoners ; and as debtors are not obliged to attend divine service, only eight (out of twenty-nine) were present when I was there. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously hung up ; and the prison very clean.

On the debtors'-side is a pump with excellent spring-water ; and in the garden the engine-house, from which the reservoirs are filled, and the whole prison supplied with soft-water, through pipes conveyed into the different courts. The sewers are judiciously placed, and not offensive. No employment is furnished by the County ; and only three debtors, who were of handicraft trades, had any work.

The fifty shillings, formerly paid from a legacy of Mr. Kelson, of Norton, has been long discontinued : I could get no information concerning it. No memorial is hung up.

THOMAS CAMPLIN,

WILLIAM RODBARD,

GILES STRANGWAY,

29th July, 1701, We do hereby approve and ratify the Table of Fees above written, pursuant to the said statute.

EARDLEY WILMOT,

WILLIAM NOEL.

At my visit in December 1801, I paid the fees of a debtor, whose plaintiff had forgiven him his debt : but there was another demand of 6s. 8d. by the Under-sheriff for his liberate, which I was obliged to pay before the prisoner could be set at liberty !

Duty, Sunday, Prayers and Sermon.

Surgeon, Mr. Sechamp : makes a bill.

Allowance. To Debtors who are poor, and not able to support themselves, one pound and a half of bread per day ; and from Pember-ton's * Charity a two-penny loaf, one shilling's worth of meat, and a pint of strong-beer on a Sunday, once in three weeks.

REMARKS:

This Gaol, situate in St. Matthew's Street, is so much improved since my visit in 1801 and 1805, that I can now give some account of it with pleasure. The Gaoler's house fronts the street, and in it are rooms for Master's-side debtors, to which he furnishes beds at 2*s.* per week each. Behind the house is the

debtors' court-yard, 90 feet by 27, with a gravel walk ; and at the end of it is a small court for them to converse with their friends. Common-side debtors have a day-room 16 feet square, with a fire-place ; and four rooms up-stairs, to which the Corporation furnishes bedsteads and bedding. Women debtors have separate apartments. The infirmary-room is 17 feet by 12, and 7 feet 9 inches high, with a fire-place and glazed window.

At the West end of the prison is a neat little Chapel, 22 feet by 18, where the prisoners are placed in separate classes, but in sight of each other during divine service. At my visits some were employed in cutting skewers, at 2s. a thousand, others spinning and making garters : they have all they earn, and the considerate Magistrates allow fire, soap and towels for the use of the prisoners. Each debtor is permitted to send for a quart of strong beer a day, but not more.

Debtors are confined here by writs of Capias issuing out of the Court of Small Pleas holden for the town and borough every fortnight, on a Monday: No debtor in execution in this gaol had ever reaped the benefit of the Lords' Act until the 30th December, 1805, when Mr. Pulham, a very worthy and respectable Solicitor at Woodbridge, obtained the sixpences for them at his own expence, after an application had been made by him to the Court of King's Bench, for a Mandamus to have them allowed.

IPSWICH, County Gaol.

Gaoler, Samuel Johnson. Salary, 200*l.* and coals and candle for his own use.

Duty, every Wednesday, Prayers ; and on Sunday, Prayers and Sermon.

Surgeon, Mr. Stebbing.

Number of Debtors,  $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1801, \text{ Oct. 13th, } - - 11 \\ 1805, \text{ Sept. 14th, } - - 20 \end{array} \right.$

Allowance. Two pounds of beef per week each ; and on Sundays a pint of porter and a two-penny loaf : But if a debtor is very poor, and cannot support himself, he is allowed by the County, in addition to the above, four loaves of 1  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. each, and half a pound of cheese per week. I weighed the loaves, and found them full weight, and of the best wheat. Each debtor has a cupboard, numbered as his sleeping-room, with lock and key, to secure his provision.

REMARKS.

The boundary-wall encloses about an acre and half of ground : the Turnkey's lodge is in front ; his sitting-room is on the ground-floor ; and there is also a warm and cold bath, with an oven to purify infected clothes. Up-stairs are two reception-cells, where prisoners are confined till examined by the Surgeon ; a room where their clothes are ticketed, hung up, and the county-clothing put on ; and the Turnkey's sleeping-room. The lead roof above is the place for execution of criminals: After passing through the lodge, an avenue, 96 feet by 18, leads to the Keeper's house, in the centre of the prison ; and from which the several court-yards are completely inspected.

The prison consists of four wings, to which are attached eight spacious and airy courts, of 75 feet by 45 ; and three smaller ones, about 44 feet square in one of which is the engine-house. Men debtor have the use of two of the larger court-yards, and on the ground-floor, a day-room, 22 feet by 14, with a fire-place, and utensils for frugal cookery, a pantry for provisions, and four work-rooms. One of the small courts, and two cells, 8 feet by 6, and 10 feet high, on the ground-floor, are appropriated to refractory debtors. The first and second story have each eleven sleeping-cells. Women debtors have a separate court-yard, and a day-room, 14 feet by 8 feet feet 6 inches, fitted up as the men's, with ten sleeping-cells, five on the first story, and five on the second. Each cell has two doors, the outer iron-grated, the inner of wood, (opening to a lobby 46 feet long and five feet wide;) and is 8 feet 6 inches by 6 feet 6, and 9 feet 6 inches high: lighted and ventilated by an iron-grated and glazed sash-window, 3 feet 6 by 2 feet 4 inches, with an aperture near the door 15 inches by 3. These cells are all fitted up with a wood bedstead, flock mattress, two blankets, two sheets, a bolster and coverlet, provided at the county expence. Every debtor has a bed to himself: Coals are allowed both summer and winter, to cook their provisions; and each is permitted to purchase one quart of strong beer per day, but not more. The county provides no employment; but those who can procure it from without are allowed to work, and have the whole of their earnings. The Chapel is in the centre of the Gaoler's house, up one pair of stairs; well contrived, and easy of access from the several lobbies. The prisoners are seated in their respective classes, out of sight of each other, but in full view of the Minister and the Keeper. On the second story are four neat infirmary-rooms, 19 feet square, with fire-places, sash-windows, and water-closets; and over them is a lead-flat for convalescents to take the air on.

At a meeting of the trustees of Mr. Pemberton's Charity, July 17, 1780, it was ordered, "That the

.. trea-

“ treasurer should provide, as the trustees shall “ fit, for the debtors imprisoned in any of the Jails in “ the county of Suffolk, either for their relief therein, “ by a proportion of bread, meat, and beer, as he “ shall think necessary, or for the delivering them out “ of prison, until the treasurer shall receive further “ orders. Nevertheless, such debtors in Ipswich Jail
“ as do not regularly attend divine service (unless pre“ vented by sickness, or some reasonable cause to be “ allowed of by the Chaplain), and behave decently “ and reverently, shall not have any benefit or

This excellent prison is well supplied with both hard and soft water: the sewers are judiciously placed, and not offensive: mops, brooms, and pails are provided to keep the prison clean, and towels allowed to the prisoners. When any are sick, the Surgeon has a discretionary power to order wine, and such diet as he deems necessary. It is frequently visited by the Magistrates, who have their committee-room in the keeper's house. The Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up, and the Gaol is kept very neat and clean.

The Gentlemen of this county, both here and at Bury, have erected a striking monument of their humane attention to the health of the wretched, and the morals of the prisoner.

KENDALL; *Westmorland.*Gaoler, *Miles Hayton.*Salary, 30*l.*Fees, 2*s.* 4*d.* on discharge.

Garnish. Abolished.

Duty, Sunday afternoon.

Allowance. None ; but any debtor arrested by process issuing out of the Borough Court is allowed 6*d.* a day after three court-days : a court is held every three weeks.

REMARKS.

This is the Town Gaol and Bridewell, and judiciously situated on an eminence a little way out of the town. Debtors have a spacious airy court 23 yards by 12, with pump-water, and six sizeable rooms, with sash-windows, and fire-places in four of them. They are airy, clean, and open into a lobby near five feet wide ; For the use of these rooms the debtor debtor pays nothing, in case he finds his own bed ; but if the keeper furnishes one, he is paid 8*d.* per week for a chaff-bed, and 1*s.* per week for a feather-bed. Two sleep together. Looms are humanely sent from the workhouse, for the use of the prisoners during confinement. Each prisoner is allowed three fourths of his earnings for maintenance, and the other remaining fourth goes to the keeper.

Here is a very neat Chapel, which has two separate doors of entrance, with a folding screen in the middle, so that the women can neither see nor be seen by the men. Every part of this gaol is well supplied with water, and the whole very clean. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously hung up.

Here is no bath, nor oven to purify infected or offensive clothes. No county-clothing is yet allowed. The door of the Felons' Court-yard opens into that of the Debtors.

It would be an act of kindness and humanity if a messenger were paid by the public to procure for the prisoners victuals and small beer from the town ; of which they sometimes stand greatly in need.

KING'S BENCH PRISON.

Marshal, William Jones, Esq. the Fees and Emoluments of whose office appear, from the printed Report of the Select Committee of Finance, to be 2300*l* *.

Deputy, Mr. Hughes ; whose income is stated in the same Report to be 210*l*. This office may be considered as a sinecure ; for I am informed that the duties of it are executed by Mr. Brooshoof, as Clerk of the Day Rules, as well as Clerk of the Papers.

Prisoners in the Rules, on an average, 70 to 100.

Surgeon. None †.

Chaplain, Rev. Mr. Evans ; whose salary arises from proceedings in suits against prisoners,

* If the account of Fees and Emoluments of the Marshal's Office, which I have had sent to me, is correct, they appear to be upwards of 7900*l*. per annum.

which are taken for and paid to him by the several Judges' clerks at the Judges' chambers. I am informed the amount is about 100*l. per annum.*

Duty, Prayers and Sermon on Sunday; and Sacrament once a month.

N. B. Attendance at Chapel being optional, but few attended when I have been there; and devotion was extremely interrupted by the continual noise occasioned in opening and shutting the Chapel-door during divine service.

The office of Marshal of this Prison was formerly hereditary in a private family, by grant from the Crown; but in the 27th George II. it was suggested as improper for a private family to hold such an office; and that it would be the means of more effectually preventing extortion and impositions on the prisoners, if the appointment were vested in the Crown, subject to removal for neglect of duty, non-residence, or improper conduct. A Bill therefore passed, to enable his Majesty to purchase the future appointment to the office of Marshal of the King's Bench Prison, and 10,500*l.* was voted for that purpose. By this act the King appoints the officer to hold his office quamdiu se bene gesserit. Constant residence seems required, either within the Walls or the Rules.

The

The Marshal is to keep the prison in repair, and pay his servants out of the fees and emoluments. The power of continuance and removal is vested in the Chief Justice, and the other three Judges of the Court of King's Bench.

By the Act 32 George II. the courts were required to meet, and to settle a table of fees, &c. to be taken of all prisoners for debt; and the prisoners were protected by that Act from the imposition and extortion of Gaolers. The Court of King's Bench settled the following TABLE OF FEES, to be taken of all prisoners for debt, &c.; and by the said Act they are directed to send at certain times in the year, to see that this Table of Fees, as well as a List of all Bequests, are hung up in some conspicuous part of the prison, and that the said Act is in every other respect complied with; and that eight days' public notice should be given of this visitation. Any violation of the clauses in this Act subjects Gaolers and servants to a penalty of 50*l*. The limits and boundaries, or as they are commonly called, "RULES" of the Prison, are very extensive, forming a circle of nearly three miles round the walls of the prison. The purchase of these Rules, I am informed, is seven guineas for the first hundred pounds every prisoner is charged with, and five pounds for every hundred afterwards; and such security is given to the Marshal as he approves of; but all taverns, ale-houses, and places of public amusement, are excluded.

DAY RULES

Are allowed, to the number of three days in every term, unless the prisoner can shew good cause to the Court why a greater number of days should be granted him. Those in the Rules who have given to the Marshal two sufficient securities, pay for the first day-rule 4*s.* 2*d.* and 3*s.* 10*d.* for every other day. The expence attending an application for a greater number is about a guinea and a half. Those who are within the walls, and are too poor to purchase the Rules, and unable, from the general desertion of their friends, to find security, cannot obtain this indulgence of the day-rules without paying a Judge's tipstaff 10*s.* 6*d.* to attend him, and a further sum of 16*s.* 8*d.* to induce the tipstaff to become security to the Marshal, in case of an escape. As the tipstaffs give to the Marshal security to the amount of 500*l.* only, those who are charged with demands or debts for more than that sum can have no indulgence of this kind.

OF THE PRISON ITSELF.

It is situated at the top of Blackman-street, in the Borough of Southwark. The entrance to it from St. George's Fields is by a handsome court-yard, yard, where there are three good houses. The largest of them is the proper residence of the Marshal; one for the Clerk of the papers with his office on the ground-floor; and the third is generally let to persons of rank and fortune, who are committed by the Court for challenges, libels, or other misdemeanors. From this court-yard the ascent is by a few stone steps into a lobby, which has a good room on the right-hand, and over it several good apartments, which, I was informed, usually let at five guineas a week; also two rooms, called Strong Rooms, to secure those who have attempted to escape. These Strong Rooms are about 12 feet by 8: one of them has a flagged floor, and is occasionally used as a coal-hole; the other has a boarded floor. No fire-place in either; no casements, or shutters, to keep out the weather.

From the lobby is a descent by a few stone steps, into a small square yard, where there is a pair of great gates and a small door, with a lodge for the turnkeys, and a room over it, generally let at one guinea a week. On the right-hand of this gate, on entering the inner part of the prison, there is a brick building, called "the State House," containing eight large handsome rooms, let at 2s. 6d. each per week to those who have interest to procure one. Opposite to the State House is the Tap-room, where from 12 to 24 butts of beer are drawn weekly. In this tap-room is a bar; and on one side is a very neat small parlour, belonging to the person who keeps the tap. On the other side is a room on a larger scale, called the Wine-room, where prisoners and their friends occasionally resort. The residence of the prisoners is in a large brick building, about 120 yards long, with a wing at each end, and a neat uniform chapel in the centre. There is a space of ground in front of the building, of about forty yards, including a parade of about three yards paved with broad flag-stones. In the space between the building and the wall are three pumps, well supplied with spring and river water; also another pump, at the side of the further wing, with a spring of very fine water. Part of the ground next the wall is appropriated for playing at rackets and fives; and there are also, in different parts, frames of wood, with nine holes in each frame, called Bumble-puppy grounds, where the prisoners amuse themselves with trying to bowl small iron balls into the holes marked with the highest numbers.

The building is divided into sixteen staircases, with stone steps and iron railings. No. 1, at the further wing, contains 21 rooms; and on each staircase the ranges of rooms are divided by a passage, or gallery, about two yards wide. In the staircases No. 2, 3, 4, and 5, there are four rooms on each floor, making 16 in each staircase, separated from each other by a passage of about a yard wide. The staircase No. 6, contains 12 rooms, besides two small cabins. No. 7, 8, and 9, contain eight rooms each. No. 10, contains 30 rooms, separated from each other by a passage, about 20 yards long and two wide. The staircases No. 11, 12, 13, 14, and 15, have eight rooms each, and are at the back of the building, but separated from the wall by a space of about eight yards. Each staircase has eight rooms, with a passage of about a yard wide. No. 16 is also in the further wing, at the back of the building; has a spacious wide staircase, with passages or galleries on each floor, four yards wide; and contains, in the whole, 20 rooms.

The whole number of rooms, including the eight state rooms, is 224; the size of them, in general, is 15 to 16 feet by 12 or 13 feet: some few are on a little larger scale. In each room is a strong iron range, and on each side a recess, either for a bed or a cupboard. All the rooms that were destroyed by the fire, some years ago, are now arched with brick, to prevent in future any fire from extending beyond a single room. In the passage from the entrance to the back of the building is a Coffee House*, where there was formerly an ordinary every day, at 2s. per head, with a pint of porter included. The * Here a prisoner may be accommodated with a bed by the night or week (as he can agree) till he gets chummage, or a room.

Marshal,

Marshal, I am told, receives an annual rent of 105*l.* from the person who keeps it.

Beyond the coffee-room is a Bake-house, which pays also a rent of 36 guineas per annum. And on the opposite side of the way is the Public Kitchen, where the prisoners may have their meat roasted and boiled gratis, before one o'clock. After that time the cook charges 2*d.* or 3*d.* for each joint, according to the size of it. Between the coffee-house and the public kitchen, there are generally two or three butcher's stalls, a green-market, and persons selling fish: and in the further wing is a large tap-room, called the Brace, from its having once been kept by two brothers, whose names were Partridge. Over this tap-room is another room of the same size, occupied by a prisoner, where the news-papers may be read, and tea, coffee, &c. may be had; but the man having been detected in selling spirituous liquors, the Marshal turned him out, and gave the room to another prisoner. The lower rooms on the parade are, many of them, converted into chandlers shops, kept by prisoners*.

The management and government of this prison is in the hands of a Marshal; who has under him a

* I was informed by a prisoner, in January 1804, that there were fifteen whiffile-shops in the prison, where debtors could buy gin, which was sold under various names, viz. Moonshine, Sky-blue, Mexico, &c. and that a hogshead of gin was consumed weekly in it.

Deputy

Deputy Marshal, a Clerk of the Papers, several Clerks, three Turnkeys, and their Assistants. As the Marshal, Deputy Marshal, and Clerk of the Papers, I am informed, seldom come into the prison, every complaint must be made by letter, or by a personal application at the office of the Clerk of the Papers. If it relates to any quarrel or disturbance, it is generally settled in a summary way. The Marshal is a Magistrate, and also armed with a Rule of Court, authorizing him to commit any person to the New Gaol for riotous or disorderly conduct; one month for the first offence, and three months for a second: But, the prisoner may appeal either to the Court, or to a Judge out of term.

No spirituous liquors are allowed to be sold within the prison: and, by a Rule of Court, no women or children ought to stay in the prison after ten o'clock. At half past nine, therefore, a man goes round with a bell, and at certain places calls out, "Strangers, women, and children, out!" The number of prisoners, before the act of insolvency of 1797 was upwards of 600; about 200 of whom were excluded by the limitations of the sum, and time. After the act of 1801 about 150 were left in prison; many of those who had been a great number of years confined were excluded from benefit, on account of the limitation of the sum; and others, who were not within the term specified by the act. Not more than three or four were remanded under the act, for fraud, &c. March 10th, 1802, the numbers within the walls were 315, and 57 within the Rules: Jan. 13th, 1804, within the walls and Rules, 520.

When a debtor is first committed to this prison, he is entitled to have what is called a Chummage, as soon as he has paid his fees. This Chummage is a ticket given him by the Clerk of the Papers, to go to such a room; and whether it be to a whole room, the half, or the third of a room, must entirely depend on the number of prisoners within the walls. But, as it is more convenient for persons, when they first come to this prison, to hire a bed for a week or two, there are always great numbers of distressed persons willing to hire out their beds, on being paid two or three shillings per night. Others, who are distressed, let their right to half a room at 5s. per week, and sleep in the tap-room, on the benches, in hammocks, or on mattresses. The Clerk of the Papers has the entire management and disposition of the rooms. He is assisted by the eldest Turnkey, who goes round every Monday morning, and receives the weekly rent of one shilling.

The Poor Side of the prison now consists of sixteen rooms, at the back of the building. The number seldom exceeds 30. They are governed by a set of Rules of Court, made in the year 1729, as follows.

RULES

RULES and ORDERS, for the better Government, &c. made and signed the 25th November, 1729.

1. The stocks to be kept up, for punishment of blasphemers, swearers, rioters, &c.
2. Against illegal methods of confinement. None to be confined in an unusual place, or manner, unless for attempting to escape. And such may appeal to the Court, or a Judge.
3. Marshal not to remove any to the Fleet by writ of Habeas Corpus.
4. Marshal not to remove any one from the Commons, and its benefits, without three days notice; during which time the prisoner may appeal to a Judge.
5. Coroner's Inquest upon the dead.
6. Against Garnish, and partial distribution of dividends.
7. Prisoners to send out for necessities; and to bring in their own bedding, &c.

12. Chapel to be kept in repair. Chaplain duly to perform.
13. The abusive to the stocks.
14. Dining-room to be kept in repair, for devotion, or conversation; with a fire. Two rooms for the sick.
15. Those who make oath before, &c. that they have not
5*l.* &c. to be admitted to the charities, offices in the prison, &c.

16. No

16. No person committed for any criminal matter to vote for Steward, &c. or to partake of any charity, but the baskets.
17. Lodging in a cabin of any ward, gratis.
18. Any prisoner may be chosen Assistant, and enjoy the benefit of that station.
19. The seal of the Common side to be kept by the Master of the King's Bench office ; and not put to any deed without the approbation of Marshal, Steward, and Assistants.
20. One supersedable action may be superseded with Common side money : more than one, not without application to the Court, or a Judge. No Judge's clerk to take a fee on the occasion.
21. The sick to be taken care of by the Steward and Assistants, who are to be reimbursed out of the first county-money.
22. Debts contracted by the Steward and Assistants, with the Marshal's and Master's consent, for support of the poor, to be paid out of the next dividend.
23. Steward and Assistants to have no pay for common business, or adjusting differences.
24. Prisoners entered after the first day of Easter-term, to have but one quarter of the Midsummer dividend.
25. All money brought in by the basket-men, or brought in at Christmas, Easter, and Whitsuntide, to be divided immediately, after paying the basket-men for their trouble.
26. If the Marshal advance money for a supersedeas, he is to be reimbursed out of the next county-money.

27. Com-

27. Common side prisoners may elect an annual Steward ; who is not to be deposed, but on application to the Court, or a Judge. No prisoner in the Rules may vote.
28. The Steward to enter in books the Tables of Fees, these Rules, and a List of the Charities. All, together with his Accounts, for inspection of the prisoners.
29. A prisoner, wronged by the Steward and Assistants, on applying to the Court or a Judge, shall be paid his damages out of the next dividend of the Steward and Assistants. If he complains unjustly, he shall make satisfaction from his own next dividend.
30. If the Steward or Assistants embezzle the money, successors may call them to account, and stop their dividends of the grate-money, &c. for reparation of the injury.
31. These orders to be read publicly every third Monday.
32. Marshal, servants, and prisoners, to observe these Rules, under pain of the utmost punishment of law.
33. No clerk or servant of a Judge to take any fee, on occasion of a petition founded on these Orders.

Further RULES and ORDERS for the Government, &c. made and signed the 10th day of May, 1759.

1. No person to bring any weapon.
2. Those on the Master's side who demand Garnish, to be turned to Common side for a time, not longer than a month. Those on the Common side are,
for

- for the like offence, to be excluded, not longer than a fortnight, from all profits, except share of the baskets.
3. Doors of the great garden to be shut at dark : doors of the wards at nine.
  4. The chambers at disposal of the Marshal, &c.
  5. If a Master's side prisoner neglect for a month to pay his chamber-rent, he may be turned over to the Common side till he pays. His goods to be delivered to him by a witnessed inventory. If discharged by the Plaintiff, he may yet be detained for fees, and a month's chamber-rent.
  6. None to sell in the prison victuals or drink, without consent of Marshal. A prisoner thus offending may be turned over to the Common side for a month. Marshal to take care that those who sell do keep good order, &c.
  7. Confirms the 14th Rule preceding ; i. e. the great room for exercise, and the two rooms for the sick.
  8. Prisoners turned to Common side for offending, or non-payment, to have no profit, but share of the baskets : to bear no office ; nor vote for officers.
  9. These Rules to be fixed in the most public places, for inspection.

On the same sheet is,

A TABLE of FEES, to be taken by the Marshal of the King's Bench Prison, in the County of Surry, for any Prisoner or Prisoners' Commitment, or coming into Gaol, or Chamber Rent there, or discharge from thence in any Civil Action. Settled and established the 16th day of June, in the 33d year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Second, and in the year of our Lord 1760, pursuant to an Act for the relief of Debtors, with respect to the imprisonment of their persons ; viz.

* So called, from a memorial engraved on a brass plate, and fixed in the wall of the prison, by order of the donor, to perpetuate his gift; but, since the wall has been rebuilt, it is taken away.

When once Prisoners are admitted on the poor-side, they become entitled to their share of all charities, bequests, gifts, and donations; a list of which ought to be put up in some conspicuous part of the prison, but which, for some reasons, is not complied with. Every person, as soon as he is admitted on this charity, must also take his turn to hold the begging-box at the door; which prevents many, who have lived in respectable situations, from applying for relief in this way: Nay, there are instances of men that have held situations in the army and navy, respectable merchants, and tradesmen, who, (sunk into misfortunes, and abandoned by their former friends,) rather than submit to this degradation, have shut themselves up for months in their rooms, and become so emaciated, from the want of wholesome and necessary food, as to lay the foundation of those disorders, which have ended in their death.

The staircases and lobbies are in the most filthy state imaginable; and, in respect to the prisoners' rooms, some are very dirty, others tolerably clean; but, each preserving that degree of cleanliness which satisfies himself!

Allowance. None. The late Keeper informed me he had frequently made application to the Bailiff of the Borough for a daily allowance, but was always told there was none for them.

REMARKS.

This prison belongs to the Bailiff and Corporation, and debtors are committed by process issuing out of the Court of Record. A Court is held every Saturday; but application for the siampences, or a supersedeas, can only be made at a Court in Term-time, upon fourteen days' notice. The prisoner, on application, obtains a rule for the plaintiff to appear at the next court; who may then object to the prisoner's schedule, and will have till the next court to make his objections; which, if not satisfactory, the prisoner will be ordered his sixpences, or superseded. For poor debtors there is one room on the ground-floor, 18 feet by 14, and 6 feet 6 inches high; and adjoining to this room there is a narrow slip, or lobby passage, 14 feet long by 3 feet wide, with an iron-grated window towards the street, where the prisoner solicits relief from casual charity.

As the Corporation allows neither bed nor bedding, the Keeper had humanely furnished the poor debtor with a bedstead, mattress, blanket, and a rug; in return for which the prisoner did any little jobs which the nature of his confinement would admit of. Above stairs are four rooms, one of which is well furnished, for those who can pay 7s. 6d. per week. Another room furnished in an inferior manner, at 2s. 6d. a week. The two other rooms have no bedsteads nor beds in them, but are appropriated to felons at the assize. The Gaoler is a Sheriff's-officer *, and, in lieu of salary, is allowed to keep a Tap.

Thus is a licensed alehouse become a necessary part of the prison establishment, by being made a means of its finance. The whole prison out of repair, and dirty. No court-yard. No water accessible to the prisoners. It is in contemplation to build a new gaol, with a court-house, &c.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is in the honour or forest of Knareborough; and the Liberty includes nineteen townships, &c. It is the property of the Duke of Devonshire, lessee to his Majesty, and almost the only remains of a castle granted by king Edward III. to John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster. It formerly consisted of one room, 12 feet square, with a chimney and glazed window; and an inner room 8 feet square, which had no window. A new gaol was built in 1794, within the castle yard.

This

This prison now consists of two sleeping-rooms, each about 15 feet by 8, with lofty and arched ceilings, in one of which is a fire-place, and a sewer in one corner: The doors have each an iron cylinder to admit the debtors' provisions. The window, placed very high, is of a semicircular shape, close glazed, and without a casement, so that I did not wonder to find the prisoners had broken the glass to prevent suffocation: the only place for the admission of air is an aperture in the wall, 9 inches by  $2\frac{1}{2}$ , and even that is almost stopped up by an iron bar, one inch thick, placed lengthwise. Ventilation might be introduced by an iron-grated window in the wall towards the castle; and it would have this farther convenience, that the debtor might see his friends, and receive victuals, without the trouble of taking the gaoler from his workshop, and passing through six doors to gain admittance.

A begging-box, suspended from this iron-grated window, would, in all probability, compensate for No allowance; by soliciting the notice of the numerous gentry who resort hither, to see the ruins of this once famous castle. At present it bears no appearance of a prison, and thousands may go away, without knowing it to be a place of confinement. Here is a small flagged court, 17 feet by 8, but of which, the woman told me, the prisoners had seldom the use, on account of its being insecure, and not not under the keeper's view. No water, but what is fetched from the town. When the prison was built, a door opened into the castle-yard; but this I found bricked up.

There is something so affecting in the following detail, that I cannot help transcribing it here, though already published in the second edition of my "Account of Debtors."

By a letter to me, dated 29th June, 1800, the only prisoner here was William Elmsley, (committed for debt 30th June, 1799;) who says, "Any person wishing to see him, upon obtaining the gaoler's leave, must pass through six doors. He has only the yard above described to walk in; the window and wall so high, that he has very little light or air. That, since he came in, he had a fellow-prisoner; but he only lived ten weeks; he himself had been ill for seven weeks; and that the preservation of his life was owing to the gratuitous attendance of Mr. Day, surgeon at Harrogate, and Mr. Dent, surgeon at Knaresborough." Elmsley's debt was 17*l.* 5*s.* and the Costs amounted to 11*l.* 7*s.* 1½*d.*

Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, were hung up in 1802; but I found the gaol both light and clean.

KNARES-

KNARESBOROUGH,

Prison for Town Debtors.

This Prison is vulgarly called Nine Holes, from as many spaces betwixt the nine Bars in the window, which give it all the light it can receive.

It stands under the Town-hall, and consists of one wretched room, 12 feet square, and 6 feet high; with the above mentioned window, of 17 inches by 6.

Here is no Court-yard : No allowance: No water! In so sad a place as this, a few years ago, two debtors, named Harrison and Wetherhall, were confined for six months.

“ Formerly,” says Mr. HOWARD, “ the common “ sewer of the town ran through this prison, un“ covered; and an officer, who was confined in it “ for a few days only, in the spirit of precaution, “ took with him a dog, to defend himself from the “ vermin. The dog was soon destroyed, and the “ prisoner’s face much disfigured by them. The “ floor, however, is now paved, and the drain is “ covered.

The prison very dirty. At my visit, 2d of September, 1802, there were no prisoners.

County Gaol.

Gaoler, John Higgin.

Salary, 600*l.* out of which he pays three Turnkeys.

Duty, Sunday, prayers and Sermon; Wednesday and Friday, prayers.

Salary, 50*l.* Also from the Dutchy, 4*l.* and from the Sheriff 15*s.* for his attendance on every Protestant malefactor who suffers death. Roman Catholicks are attended by a priest of their own persuasion, who receives the like sum from the Sheriff.

Surgeon, Mr. Baxendale. Salary, 26*l.* and allowed for medicines.

Allowance, 1*s.* each per week, in bread.

REMARKS.

This Castle, first built for a place of defence by the Romans, afterwards became the palace, or feudal residence of the Dukes of Lancaster; and at an early period was converted into a County Gaol.

The

The situation is elevated and healthy. The Gaoler's house, which is a handsome building, and well situate for commanding a view of the spacious court-yard, fills up the space between the gateway and the well-tower to the right. The Female Debtors' Prison is a room within the gateway, and their court-yard is in common with the men.

The area of that part of the Castle-yard which is appropriated to debtors only, contains about 2792 square yards. On the West side is a large arcade, for exercise in wet weather, or air in summer; and over it are six day-rooms, each 14 feet 9, by 12 feet 3. In a wing adjoining are three rooms, each 40 feet by 14: That on the ground-floor is used as a workshop for debtors.

In the Well Tower are four rooms; one of which is 20 feet square, and the average size of the rest is 23 feet by eleven.

In the gateway-tower are eight rooms, and an apartment for the Turnkeys: over which is a room for Debtors, called the Pigeon-Box, 33 feet 8 inches by 12 feet 10; and two very spacious reception-rooms, where diseased prisoners are put, until examined by the Surgeon.

Above the entrance is the ancient Court-room, now occupied by the Female Debtors, in size 25 feet 8 inches, by 15 feet 3. Also a narrow winding staircase to the attick story, on which are three ample rooms, of about 33 feet each by 16.

Every Debtor, on his commitment, pays 7s. 6d. towards coals, and 2s. for pots and pans. The Magistrates formerly allowed a mop for each room; but, from the insolence and extravagance of some of the debtors, that indulgence is now discontinued. When a poor debtor cannot pay for coals, he generally does the domestic work of the room instead of it; and if he cannot immediately pay for a bed, he obtains half a bed on credit, which is occasionally paid for by the Keeper out of the Charity Fund.

When the number of Debtors does not exceed seventy or eighty, many sleep in single beds; but when more, they are under the necessity of assigning a bed for two persons. At my visit there were only three single beds in the whole of the debtors' apartments.

All the wards are free; and poor debtors who hire beds from the town, pay from six-pence to eighteen pence a week for the use of one.

That part of the Great Tower, or Citadel, formerly called the Lungess, is now the Chapel, in size 55 feet by 26; where there is a commodious gallery for the Debtors, and seven separate divisions in the area below for criminals, who are placed in classes, and out of sight of each other:

I re-

I remarked with pleasure, that the men and women felons were particularly clean at Chapel, when I attended Divine Service on Wednesday the 22d September, 1802; and was informed that they were obliged to wash their hands and face every morning, before they can receive their allowance. The whole number (ninety) were present at prayers, except two or three, employed on necessary business: their behaviour was silently attentive, and the countenances of all clearly shewed their love and respect for Mr. Higgin, the Gaoler, who, to great humanity and firmness of character, adds those religious regards which do him honour.

LANCASTER.

Town Gaol.

Keeper, the Town Sergeant.

No Prisoners, at my visits in Sept. 1802, and Oct. 1805.

REMARKS.

This temporary place of confinement is a room under the staircase of the Town Hall, 15 feet 8 inches long, by 11 feet 5, and 8 feet 10 inches high. It has a fire-place, with a window about three feet square, and contains two barrack bedsteads.

The door has an aperture of twelve inches square; and over it, on a stone Tablet, is inscribed,

1669.”

Prisoners are sent hither before examination. When a debtor is taken in custody on a Borough process, the officer is under the necessity of keeping his prisoner in the Town Sergeant's house, until the business is settled.

LAUNCESTON; Cornwall.Town Gaol.

Gaoler, the Town Sergeant.

Salary, none. Fees, none.

Surgeon, from the Corporation, when wanted.

No debtors here at my visits in 1803 and 1806.

Allowance. Two-pence per day.

REMARKS. This Gaol, called the Dark-house, is over the South-gate: the ascent to it is by a flight of steps. The room for criminals has an iron-grated window to the street, and two sleeping-cells, which open in the room, about 7 feet square; the doors only 4 feet high, and 15 inches wide. The room above is the Gaol for Debtors; and its only light is from two apertures in the wall, about 36 inches by 9, almost totally obstructed by an iron bar placed lengthwise: straw on the floor, and a fire-place, but no fuel allowed. A half-tub supplies the place of sewer. No court. No water; the Constable brings it thrice a day. Debtors are sent here by process of the Borough Court, for sums to any amount. About a fortnight before my visit in 1803, a debtor had escaped, and none have been sent there since. The prison is much dilapidated, and very filthy. On asking the Keeper when it had been white-washed, he told me he had often applied to the Mayor to have it done; but the answer was, “The blacker it is, “the better: it has more the appearance of a Gaol.”

Salary, 130*l.* out of which he allows every prisoner a quart of small-beer daily.

Fees; see Table. Besides which the Under-Sheriff demands a fee of 6*s.*8*d.* for his liberate.
Garnish. Abolished.

Duty, Prayers four days; Sermon on Sunday.

Salary, 15*l.* for debtors and felons.

Number of Debtors,

1800, March 28th, - 18		1805, Sept. 26th, - 8
1803, Aug. 23d, - 12		1807, July 30th, - 11

Allowance. One pound six ounces of bread, sent every other day, in loaves of 2 lb. 12 ozs. each; and one quart of small-beer daily.

REMARKS.

This County Gaol, without, looks as it should do: it has a prison-like appearance. The architect, Mr. Money Penny, has shewn his knowledge of grand design, bordering on the terrific. It was first inhabited habited in 1793, and has four airy Court-yards, with water in all, and a day-room to each. The Court for debtors is 74 feet by 32, and the day-room 29 feet by  $13\frac{1}{2}$ : For those on the Master's side there are ten rooms, to which the Keeper furnishes beds, at 2s. 4d. per week, for a single bed; and if two sleep together, 1s. 6d. a week each. Common-side debtors have a free-ward, with ten good-sized sleeping-rooms, over the Men Felons' cells, to which they furnish their own beds. One room is set apart for an Infirmary, 30 feet by 16, with opposite windows, and a fire-place.

The Clauses of the Act against the use of Spirituous Liquors are painted on the same board as the Table of Fees. The Act for preserving the Health of the Prisoners not hung up. No firing allowed. Those prisoners who work receive all their earnings, but no county allowance of bread. Six of the debtors and two criminals were weaving stockings, and one making shoes, at my visit in 1803. Here, as in many other Gaols, is an useless tub, and two cold baths never used.

Formerly there used to be an annual collection, by a kind of voluntary brief. The Gentlemen of the Grand Jury recommended it to the Clergy, who promoted the good work in their respective parishes. A Table was kept of the sum received from each parish; a list of debtors clothed or discharged; and an account of the expenditure of the remainder in feeding and warming all the prisoners during the inclement season. The collection in 1774 was 74*l.* In 1779, it amounted to 12*l.* 5*s.* 6*d.* In 1780, to 6*l.* 1*s.* 9*d.*; and in 1781, only to 3*l.* 18*s.* Mr. Gregory informed me by letter dated 28th August 1803, that no collection had been made for several years; that from 1795 to 1803 the whole amount was only 5*l.* 1*s.* 6*d.*; and that the balance then in his hands was 32*l.* 6*s.* 11*d.*

Allowance, One pound six ounces of bread, sent from the bakers' every other day, in loaves of 2 lbs. 12 oz. each.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, built in 1793, has on each side a narrow slip of ground, partitioned off by open iron palisades, and divided into Courts for the different classes of prisoners. The Court-yard for debtors is 32 feet by 16, with a day-room, 13 feet by 12, and up-stairs eight lodging-rooms ; to which, if the debtor brings his own bed, he pays nothing ; the Keeper furnishes a single bed at 2*s.* 4*d.* per week ; and if two sleep together, 1*s.* 9*d.* each. The Chapel is very small : No proper separation of the prisoners. A room is set apart for an infirmary; and such care and humane attention to the sick is ever laudable, and a bounden duty: But the healthy also and the diligent require equal consideration. Instead, however, of encouraging industry, the very disposition to it seems here to be repressed, by a curious mode of penalty. Every prisoner, debtor, or criminal, in the Town-gaol of Leicester, that procures himself the means of labour, has not only his County allowance of bread stopped, but is even obliged to pay the Gaoler one shilling, or two shillings per week, for permission to work! A novelty of this kind seems severe; and is such as I have never before met with, in my wide perambulation of the gaols. The Bath never used. Prison seldom visited. No Rules and Orders. Formerly a regular Table of Fees, but not visible for these many years. Act and Clauses not hung up. The Gaol clean, and well supplied with water.

LEOMINSTER; Herefordshire.

Gaoler, James Morgan. He is the Town-crier.

Salary, 6*l*. No Fees.

Allowance. Sixpence a day on petition.

The Gaol consists of two rooms up-stairs, one of which is for debtors, the other for criminals. Here is a small court-yard, but of which prisoners have seldom the use. At my visits June 1802 and August 1803, no prisoners.

LENTON (late BASFORD), Nottinghamshire.

Gaoler, George Wombwell. Salary, none.

Fees, 13s. 4d. by the Court-roll.

Licence. Wine, Beer, and Spirituous Liquors.

Garnish. One shilling, spent in liquor.

Chaplain, or Surgeon, none.

Number of Debtors, 1805, July 20th, one.

Oct. 3d, none.

Allowance. Formerly none; but now three pence a day in bread.

REMARKS.

This is his Majesty's Gaol or Prison of the Court of Record of his honour of PEVEREL, and additional limits of the same, in the Counties of Nottingham and Derby. Henry Lord Middleton, by grant from Queen Anne to his ancestor, Sir Thomas Willoughby in fee, is the High Steward of this Honour, and its limits.

The prison, formerly at Basford, in this County, was afterwards removed to Lenton; and being in a decayed state, a new gaol was built in the back yard of the Keeper's public house, and first inhabited in 1805. It consists of a Court-yard, 30 feet by 16, paved with flag stones, and in it is a pump, and sewer. Here are two sleeping-rooms below, and two two above, each 14 feet 6, by 12 feet 6, with fireplace and iron-grated glazed window in each. To these the Keeper furnishes beds at 2*s.* per week ; or if two sleep together, 1*s.* 6*d.* each. Here is a work-room, 12 feet 6, by 9 feet 6, with a window the whole length of the room. No employment furnished ; but those who can procure it receive the whole of their earnings. Neither Act nor Clauses hung up.

The practice of this Court is trial before judge and jury, similar to the superior courts in Westminster-hall, but most resembling the Common Pleas : proceeding by capias, &c. and the suits are in like manner carried on to judgment and execution, except that every Tuesday in the year is a Court-day, or Term, so that the proceedings are quickly dispatched, unless the defendant files a plea, or demurrer, in which case the business is argued before Mr. Balguy, Barrister at Law, the Steward and Judge, and a respectable Jury, at two general courts in the year, which Mr. Balguy appoints about Michaelmas and Easter. The debt and costs are from forty shillings * up to fifty pounds. The Keeper informed me that the annual average of commitments was twelve ; and that one William Winson had been here confined for an original debt of four shillings and sixpence !

in the week in loaves of three pounds and a half each : the whole furnished by contract. Also four chaldron of coals every year, which are distributed half-quarterly.

N. B. Those debtors who receive their six-pences have no county allowance of food.

REMARKS.

This excellent Gaol for the County of Lincoln is situate in the Castle-yard, containing about seven acres of land, inclosed by a high wall. The premises are held by lease from the Dutchy Court of Lancaster, for a term of 30 years, at an annual rent of 10s. The new Gaol has been built about 18 years; is a good brick building, with stone facings. The front (which contains the gaoler's and debtors' apartments) is about 46 yards long, with near two acres of grass-plat fenced off in the front of it, for the use of the debtors, who enjoy the privilege of walking there during the day-time; with a well of good water in it. The sexes are completely separated by day and night.

One half of this building is occupied by the male debtors, having three day-rooms for Master's-side debtors, average size 20 feet by 15 feet 6 inches, and 12 feet 9 inches high; and one for Common-side debtors, 21 feet by 16, and the same height. On the first floor are five lodging-rooms with an

an airy passage communicating to them ; average size 17 feet by 15 feet 6. On the second-floor are five other lodging-rooms of the same dimensions, one of which is for Common-side debtors.

The other half of the building is the Gaoler's house, excepting two attic rooms for female debtors, one a day-room, the other a sleeping-room, 16 feet square, and each 10 feet high. In this story are also two large infirmary-rooms, 20 feet by 10, and 12 feet high. The chapel is 31 feet by 28 : it is neatly pewed : the debtors and felons are properly separated by a high framing, and the women out of view of the men : Here is no communication at any time between debtors and felons. The County furnishes no employment, but those of handicraft trades are allowed to work on their own account. Debtors and felons are all obliged to attend chapel. The prison is white-washed twice a year.

The Gaoler is required, out of his salary, to find three turnkeys, and a caterer, who attends every day at nine o'clock and three, to purchase in the town whatever prisoners may want (liquor excepted) : He also supplies eight chaldron of coals a year, and straw, mops, tubs, buckets, &c. for the use of the prison.

The worthy Magistrates of this division are not only very humanely, but very religiously attentive to the comforts of the prisoners ; having ordered any sum,

sum, not exceeding 5*l.* a year, at the discretion of the chaplain, to be laid out in the purchase of religious tracts for the use of all the prisoners. They are numbered and entered into a book when delivered out; are called in once a week, and then re-delivered in the same manner; by which they get a change of readers; and their being lost or destroyed is prevented by the regularity with which it is done.

I can form, by long practice, a tolerably good judgment of a gaoler, from the countenances of his prisoners. Complacency and good order were visible in every part of this well-regulated Gaol; a sure proof that the keeper is intelligent, and humane.

The county does not allow bedding to the poor or certificated debtors; but has set apart a spacious day-room and a large sleeping-room, free of rent or any charge whatever, for the use of those who chuse to find their own bedding.

Master's-side debtors, or those who can afford it, may go into rooms furnished by the gaoler; for which they pay, if two sleep together, 1*s.* 3*d.* per week each: if a debtor has a bed to himself, 2*s.* 6*d.* weekly. The number of debtors committed to Lincoln-castle in the last seven years was 365: of these 122 were for sums from 10*l.* to 20*l.*; and, of the whole number, 119 were discharged without their plaintiff's obtaining one farthing either of debt or costs; a proof of the folly of being so stimulated by their

their passions, as to go to law with fellow-creatures too poor and miserable to afford them any prospect of payment; for such those must be, who are certificated as Paupers!

Mrs. Rebecca Hussey, by her will, proved in London 10th May, 1715, bequeathed *the interest of 1000*l. to release poor debtors from this castle: but no debtors have received the benefit for many years past. I could get no account of it, and it seems to be entirely lost.

Mr. Thomas Hesleden, by his will, proved Sept. 21st, 17th 20, bound his estate called Works Chantry (a house now in the occupation of Mrs. Mary Cutlen) at Lincoln, with the payment of *3*l.* a year*, for the better maintenance of poor prisoners in the Castle; which is regularly paid.

Thomas-Robert Jenkinson, by will, proved February 13th, 1772, left *the interest of 120*l. to the debtors, equally to be divided among them on Easter Monday: with this proviso, “that if the whole year’s “ interest is sufficient to discharge any one debtor “ within fourteen days of the time of payment,
“ it shall be applied for that purpose, at the dis- “ cretion of his trustees.” From this legacy *5*l. a year is paid out of a farm at Ripham (now in the tenure of W. Glossop), left by Mr. Jenkinson to John Harrison, Esq. of Norton-place. The trustees were Dr. Hunter and Mr. Dealtree of York.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, at the Stone Bow-Gate, has one large room, 10 yards by 5, for men debtors ; and one smaller, for women ; both up-stairs, with iron-grated windows towards the street ; in each a fire-place, a wood bedstead with straw, two blankets and a rug. These rooms are occasionally used for criminal prisoners. No Court-yard. They have now (1806) good water accessible, and a sewer. The Clauses against Spirituous Liquors hung up, but not the Act for Preservation of Health *. The whole prison dirty and dilapidated in the extreme. A new prison is nearly finished, which will render this wretched Gaol unnecessary.

* The Gaoler told me, that in July 1801 he had nearly lost his life by four intoxicated felons, to whom a soldier's mask had been conveyed through the grating ; and observed, How is it possible for us to prevent liquors being handed in at the street-windows ?

“ TABLE of RATES and FEES settled by the Justices at a General Quarter Sessions, held at the Guild-hall, Lincoln, 14th July, 1759.

“ Every debtor that lies in a bed belonging to the keeper is to pay one shilling weekly, and no more.

Any debtor that finds a bed, and places it in the common room, is to pay nothing for his lodging.

Every prisoner for debt is to pay one fee to the keeper for his discharge out of prison, though he stands committed in several actions; and that fee no more than six shillings and eight pence.

Every felon is to pay to the gaoler for his discharge out of prison six shillings and eight pence, and no more. If not continued in prison above a week, then to pay only three shillings and four pence.

Every prisoner that will eat with the gaoler is to pay for his lodging and diet weekly four shillings and six-pence, having three meals a day.

Every prisoner committed from the bar, by the Judges of Assize or Sessions, is to pay the gaoler for his discharge three shillings and four pence, and no more.

REMARKS.

The castle of Liverpool, built by Roger de Poitiers, was pulled down in the reign of George the Second; but the Earl of Derby's castellated mansion has been for many years used as the Borough Gaol. Here is only one Court for all descriptions of prisoners: it is 20 yards by 10, paved with brick; and has a pump of excellent water, and two sewers. There are five day-rooms; three intended for men debtors, one for women, and the fifth for criminal prisoners; but they are now used indiscriminately by all. One small room is set apart for the sick.

The prison is surrounded by old buildings, called the Tower Garden, and without taking them down it cannot be made healthy or convenient. A dung-hill, in the Court-yard, is cleared away once a month. Common-side debtors have seven rooms, called free wards, in one of the towers, to which the Corporation allows straw. Master's-side debtors have three rooms in the other tower; and to these the keeper furnishes beds, at one shilling per week each, two sleeping together.

At my visit in 1805 a gallery was built in the chapel; and five new sleeping-cells added, for men debtors, 7 feet 6 inches by 6 feet, and 7 feet 6 inches high; to which the keeper furnishes beds at one shilling per week each: also two new rooms

Over the Pilot's Office, for women; one of which holds three beds, the other a single bed, fire-place, and glazed windows. To these latter rooms the Gaoler furnishes beds at the same price.

From the licentious intercourse between the sexes I imagined that little attention was paid to the minister; and therefore requested Mr. Staniforth (an able and active Magistrate of the borough) to accompany me; when, out of 109 prisoners, six only attended divine service, 11th Oct. 1802.

All persons arrested for debt by process issued out of the Borough Court of Liverpool are sent to this Gaol; and if the debtor intends to take the benefit of the Act of 32 George II. he must appear by his attorney in Court, which is held every Thursday, and get a rule for declaration: The plaintiff has two full Courts afterwards to file his declaration; and when that is done, the defendant obtains a rule to confess the declaration, and is in consequence brought into Court the court-day but one following; confesses the declaration, and then obtains a rule for the plaintiff to enter up his final Judgment, and charge the defendant in execution; which must be done the Court but one following. The defendant then gives fourteen days' notice to the plaintiff, of his intention to take the benefit of the Act, and at the same time delivers a copy of the schedule of his effects. On the Court-day following his fourteen days' notice, the defendant presents a petition to the Court, with a schedule of his effects, and an affidavit of the service of same on the plaintiff; and obtains a rule to be brought into court the next court-day, to take the oath prescribed by the statute, and have the benefit of the same: In which court the defendant takes the oath, and affidavit being made of the service of the Rule, the defendant is discharged; unless the plaintiff appears in person, and declares that he is dissatisfied with the schedule, which, if he does, the Court remands the defendant until the next court: at which court, unless proof be made of the insufficiency of the defendant's schedule, or the plaintiff gives his note for 3*s.* 6*d.* a week, the debtor is discharged.

Abstract of a Deed in the Old Church at Liverpool, respecting the distribution of the Legacies of 200*l.* and 300*l.* left by Mrs. Ann Molyneux, in the year 1727, to poor prisoners for debt, &c. in the Borough Gaol; also to poor sailors, and sailors' widows, especially those in the Alms-houses.

“ This Indenture, quadripartite, &c. made the 9th day of October, in the year 1732, between Ralph Williamson of Liverpool, &c. Merchant, and Robert Whittle of Knowsley, &c. Gentleman, executors of the last will, &c. of Ann Molyneux, late of Liverpool, &c. widow, of the first part; George Tyrer

Tyrer of Liverpool, &c. Merchant, of the second part; Hannah Tyrer of Low Hill, &c. widow, of the third part; and Richard Gildart, Mayor for the time being, John Stanley, and Thomas Baldwin, Rectors of the parish, &c. of the fourth part. Whereas the said Ann Molyneux, being charitably disposed, by her last will, &c. dated the 19th day of January, in the year 1727, gave, devised, and bequeathed to the said Mayor and Rectors, the sum of 200*l.* for the support and maintenance of poor prisoners for debt (or otherwise) in the gaol or prison for the Borough of Liverpool; and it was also declared to be her will and mind, that the said Mayor and Rectors should place the said sum of 200*l.* out at interest upon land security, if such could be had, and dispose of the said interest yearly, for the support and maintenance of the said prisoners."

In a subsequent part of her last will, as referred to in the said indenture, she also bequeathed to the said Rectors for the time being, the sum of 300*l.* the interest of which was directed to be distributed by the said Rectors to poor sailors, and sailors' widows, especially those in the Alms-houses. It is afterwards mentioned in the said Indenture, that with the said sums of 200*l.* and 300*l.* were purchased three closes of land in Mosslake, containing seven acres of land, of the large measure; which were subjected to the payment of two fifth parts of the rents and produce to the said Mayor and Rectors, for the support and maintenance of the said poor prisoners for debt (or otherwise) in the Borough Gaol; and the remaining three fifth parts of the rent and produce were to be paid to the Rectors, and distributed yearly to the said poor sailors and sailors' widows, especially those in the Alms-houses, by the said Rectors.

The foregoing statement was faithfully extracted from the original Deed, (kept in St. Nicholas's Church, Liverpool;) the 5th July, 1798, by

The above Legacies appear to have been most judiciously laid out; and from the local situation of the land, so contiguous to the town, it will, in all probability, be soon built upon; when the revenue must be immense.

A new gaol was built here by Mr. Blackburn, a little way out of the town; on which the Corporation spared no expence. It is upon a large scale, with a proper separation of the classes and sexes; and and for security, health, reformation, and convenience, appears to be one of the best gaols in the kingdom. Unluckily it was let to Government many years since for the confinement of French prisoners, who wantonly so damaged the building, that in 1807 it was not repaired nor inhabited.

The unhealthy Dungeons at the Town Gaol are still in use; of which, that the reader may form some idea, I will describe them, viz. Seven close dungeons, in a passage 11 feet wide, and 10 steps under ground; each  $6\frac{1}{2}$  feet by 5 feet 9 inches, and 6 feet high. The grated apertures in the doors are only 11 inches by 6. When I was here, in 1802, four prisoners were locked up at night in each dungeon, which could allow 20 inches only for each person; and yet, in 1805, I found three new additional dungeons, all of the same size!!!—Could the constructors of such scanty repositories but reflect, how very irksome it must be to aggravate the sorrows of the helpless, I flatter myself the above Remarks would tend to do away an evil so palpably injurious. When will those who sit at ease learn to grieve for the added affliction of fellow creatures? Justice is a sacred thing! but the extreme of its exertions is surely no less needless than deplorable.

REMARKS.

This is a Stannary Prison for Debtors, and the property of the Duke of Cornwall, Lord of the Stannaries. A large vaulted room below, called the Dungeon, was at my visit in 1806 filled with lumber. The room above is now called the prison: it is 14 yards by 6, having iron-grated windows towards the street, with inside shutters, and straw on a tarras floor, for men; and three rooms over it for women. There are several small sleeping-rooms, (to which the keeper furnishes beds at 1s. per week :) used one year as the Sheriff's ward for the County. Here were formerly Rules, as at the King's Bench and Fleet Prisons, and said to extend over the whole Borough. On the 14th Nov. 1805, Salathiel Harris, committed the 11th July preceding, was liberated by nonsuiting his plaintiff. There being no allowance, the prisoner was brought to the grated window; from whence he solicited casual charity, by means of a shoe suspended by a cord, which the keeper had humanely provided for him.

REMARKS.

This Prison was formerly one of the Gates of the City of London, and situated on Ludgate-hill, near the spot where the London Coffee-house now stands. It is at present appropriated for the reception of debtors, being Freemen of London, Clergymen, Proctors, Attorneys, or such other persons as the Court of Lord Mayor and Aldermen shall from time to time think fit to be removed hither. It is believed to have formerly had the privilege of permitting prisoners to go out (with a Keeper) for the purpose of calling upon their several creditors, to compromise their debts, or otherwise obtain their discharge: But that custom, whatever might have caused its origin, has many years been discontinued, and cannot now be traced.

About forty-six years ago, when old Ludgate (to which the Table of Fees, and Rules and Orders for its Government, were adapted) was pulled down, the prisoners were removed to the London Work-house, in Bishopsgate-street, a part whereof was fitted up for that purpose, and where Ludgate prisoners continued to be received until the year 1794; when when they were removed to the present prison of Ludgate, adjoining to, and partly encircled by, the Compter in Giltspur-street.

Ludgate has one small yard, 25 feet by 10 ; containing a pump, which supplies spring-water from a well in the Compter ; another, affording soft-water from the river Thames ; and a shed, under which is a bathing tub.

The yard leads to eight rooms ; viz. the Hall, fitted up with benches and tables, for the general accommodation of all the Prisoners, as a sitting-room in the day-time, and until they usually retire to rest : It is the custom of this Gaol for the prisoners to have access to the yard at all times, either by day or night. The hall has one fire-place, which is supplied by a subscription from the prisoners of six shillings at their entrance, and seven pence weekly afterwards : aided by charitable donations, the surplus of which, after payment of certain salaries hereafter described, is divided quarterly among such prisoners as have been in custody for the space of one month before the same became due.

The next is a long room over the hall, which will conveniently contain six persons, as a bed-room. The room over the long room will contain two persons, exclusive of two little rooms, partitioned from it, for the use of the sick.

There

There is a small room over the chapel (which is on the ground-floor,) and this, together with another room over it in the second story, are convenient bed-rooms for three persons each : likewise two cabins, used as bed-rooms for one person each.

Two other rooms are upon the ground-floor on the other side of the yard ; one of which is the bed-room of the steward and secretary, and the other a bed-room for three prisoners. The women's ward, over the steward's room, will contain three persons. There are fire-places in the rooms, to which two chaldrons of coals a year are given by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs.

All the prisoners here find their own beds and bedding, except one rug yearly, which the City allows to such as need it.

At Christmas every debtor receives one pound of beef, a pint of porter, and a loaf value three half-pence, or potatoes in lieu of it. On New Year's day, at Easter, and some uncertain day after, the same gift is made by the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs, who also occasionally give coals according to their discretion. Michael Angelo Taylor, Esq. M. P. on Christmas-eve gives eight pounds of beef, a half-peck loaf, and a sack of coals, to each prisoner, and the same also to the turnkey. A society of gentlemen give quarterly a pound of beef and a two-penny loaf both to each prisoner, and to the out-door-steward (a person whose office it is to collect the permapermanent donations ;) and one shilling for coals to dress the meat so given.

There are also certain established donations, of bread and meat, at stated periods, besides some private gifts. Money is likewise paid by several of the City Companies, and others, for the release of debtors from this and other prisons ; which is most frequently applied towards the discharge of such prisoners as cannot obtain the same without undertaking to pay some further sum * in addition to the money raised by such donations, and who are thereby prevented from availing themselves of the bounty of the Honourable and Benevolent Society for Relief of Debtors, held in Craven Street in the Strand ; of which description are, the legacies of Mr. Humble, (paid by the Leathersellers' Company, to the amount of eight pounds per annum), Mrs. Ashton, and others. The legacy of Lady Rich is usually applied in aid of the legacies of Mr. Humble, Mrs. Ashton, or any other benevolent donor, for the release of prisoners at one moiety by each legacy ; and if the sum of twenty-four pounds has not been advanced for such release, before the payment of Lady Rich's legacy, then the remainder is divided among those prisoners, who were in gaol on the Christmas-day preceding, and still remain in custody.

* The Society for the Relief and Discharge of Persons confined for Small Debts admit of no such undertaking, but always require a receipt in full from the creditor.

Mr. Thomas Cottle, Tallow Chandler, gave yearly, for ever, a hind quarter of beef and a peck of oatmeal, rated at one pound, by the Churchwardens of St. Dunstan in the East, to be sent in on Michaelmas Eve.

Lady North gave yearly in bread thirteen pence every Friday for ever, out of the King's Head Tavern, near Newgate; and twelve loaves every quarter. This is sent from the bakers, in threepenny loaves, every fortnight.

Mrs. Margaret Dane, widow, gave yearly, for ever, eighteen stone of beef and five dozen of bread, value one pound.

pound, by the Ironmongers' Company to be paid at Allhallows-tide, Michaelmas quarter.

Mr. Robert Rogers, Leatherseller, gave yearly by the Leathersellers Company, twenty shillings, to be paid quarterly in bread.

Mrs. Margaret Symcott, every eighth week for ever, by the Chamber of London, sixty-five penny loaves. This is Eleanor Gwynn's Gift, under that name.

Mrs. Frances Ashton, by will dated 30th March 1727, gave ninety-five pounds per annum towards discharging out of prison such and so many of the poor prisoners in Ludgate, the two Compters, and the Marshalsea, whose respective sums, for and towards such discharges, shall not amount to two pounds each. In 1803 seven pounds were paid from this legacy to discharge four prisoners from the Poultry Compter. In 1805 two pounds eleven shillings and sixpence to discharge two prisoners from Giltspur-street Compter; also two pounds ten shillings to discharge one prisoner from Ludgate: and in 1807 two pounds two shillings to discharge another from Ludgate.

Mr. Richard Jacob, vintner, gave yearly for 257 years, by Joseph Howell and Susannah his wife, their heirs, executors, and assigns, out of five tenements situate in Lincoln's-Inn-Fields, two pounds, payable at Easter. Will dated Oct. 13th, 1612. This is subject to land-tax. See the foregoing List of Benefactions in p. 348.

Mr. Thomas Stretchley, by his will dated August 6, 1678, gave for ever forty shillings, to be paid every three years, by the Treasurer of Christ's Hospital. This is regularly paid. He likewise gave four pounds to discharge two prisoners every fifth year. This is not paid.

The

The Chamber of London, in lieu of 250*l.* being the gift of Mr. Middleton, payable at Christmas and Midsummer, 3*l.* 2*s.* 6*d.* See List of Benefactions, pp. 348, 349.

George Humble, Esq. gave yearly fourteen pounds per annum, for the release of two prisoners at five pounds each, and two others at forty shillings each ; payable by the Leathersellers' Company.

Lady Rich gave yearly, for ever, towards relief and release of prisoners thirty pounds, payable at Christmas ; this is subject to land-tax, six pounds. If the money has not wholly or in part been appropriated to release prisoners, the remainder is divided among as many debtors as were in confinement at Christmas, and not discharged on Lady-day. Twenty-four pounds were divided the 6th April 1807 among ten prisoners, 2*l.* 8*s.* each, who had remained in custody since the preceding Christmas ; no person having, in the course of twelve months prior to the payment thereof, been released thereby. This legacy is paid on Lady-day old style, by Mr. John Roberts of Oakingham, Berks, attorney at law.

Mr. Robert Firebrace, Leatherseller, gave yearly by the Leathersellers' Company 6*s.* 8*d.* to be paid quarterly in bread.

Mrs. Elizabeth Misson gave by will dated 23d May, 1770, six pounds, the annual produce of two hundred pounds three per cent. India Annuities, to be expended in meat, bread, and coals. There has lately been some irregularity in the payment of this legacy.

LEGACIES not received.

Hugh Offley 5*s.* John Symonds 4*s.* Richard Jacob 40*s.* Lady Carew 40*s.* John Jackson 20*s.* Sir Ralph Freeman 5*l.* John Hobby, Esq. 22*l.* annually, for ever, for the release of eleven poor prisoners, at 40*s.* each.

The

The Rules and Orders for the government of this prison have been made by the several lord mayors and court of aldermen, and sometimes by the sheriffs for the time being, and the execution of them vested in the keeper and eight of the prisoners, under the title and description of “the Court of Keeper, Steward, and Assistants;” who are thereby empowered to make such further orders as are necessary for the good governing and quiet behaviour of the prisoners: But such further orders are never enforced, until they have first been approved by the lord mayor, or court of aldermen, or sheriffs, to whom an appeal lies against any improper decision of the court of steward and assistants. The principal Orders at present in force are—against profaners of the Sabbath, and neglecters of divine service: for chusing stewards, assistants, chapel-warden, reader, scavenger, and secretary; and to declare the duty of each; and for settling their several salaries: that is to say, Twenty-one pence weekly to the steward, whose business it is to keep good order, and be accountable for what monies are received from casual benefactions, or otherwise; and to divide the same amongst the prisoners: Three pence weekly to each of the assistants: Ten pence halfpenny per week to the secretary, for keeping the accounts; and one shilling and nine-pence per week to the scavenger, to keep clean the house, court-yard, &c. &c.;

but

but these salaries, and the quarterly and partial division of money, seem to militate against the benevolent intention of the donors, and prove a grievance to some of the poor prisoners, who are deprived of many of their benefits, if they fail in the payment of seven-pence per week. This might be remedied, by allowing a certain weekly sum, to the amount of, and to be repaid by, the annual amount of the donations, whereby the prisoners would be equally relieved, and animosities prevented from arising, in consequence of trivial benefits in favour of some, to the privation of their fellow sufferers. The remaining Orders are, to deprive offenders of their votes ; against slandering, or using opprobrious words ; against stealing ; against cursing and swearing ; against drunkenness ; against singing and ranting ; against abusing strangers ; against retailing spirituous liquors ; against keeping dogs ; to enforce cleanliness, &c. &c.

The mode directed to enforce obedience to these Rules and Orders is by fines and privations : This, in some cases, is peremptory ; and in others, is left to the discretion of the before-mentioned Court.

The accounts of Receipts and Disbursements of this prison are kept with great accuracy ; and the order and decorum observed in it do much credit to Mr. Teague, the keeper.

In August 1805 it was 8*d.* a day.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is nearly opposite to St. Margaret's church, and was built in 1784, as appears by the inscription in front. The ground floor is occupied by the keeper ; and the Gaol is separated by two iron-grated doors, in a passage four feet wide. The Gaoler's kitchen commands the only court-yard for all descriptions of prisoners, and is 82 feet by

15. On the left hand is the only day-room in the prison, 19 feet by 13, with a fire-place and stone sink. At the end of the court, and under arcades, are two sleeping-cells, about 8 feet square, with arched roofs, lighted and ventilated by two iron-grated windows each, with crib-bedsteads, straw, and three, or four coverlets, as the weather requires. Poor debtors and petty offenders sleep in these cells; and, if they bring their own beds, pay 6*d.* a week. At the end of the day-room a staircase leads to two infirmary-rooms, which have each a fire-place and two glazed windows, crib-bedsteads, straw, and coverlets. On the attic story, and in front of the keeper's house, are three good-sized rooms, about 16 feet by 11, and 9 feet high each, for Master's-side debtors; with glazed sash-windows, and fire-places in two of them. To these the Gaoler furnishes a single bed at 2*s.* per week; or, if two sleep together, 1*s.* 3*d.* each.

Debtors from the Courts of Conscience are sent hither, and have the same allowance as other prisoners: But it decreases on a second commitment; and a watch-maker, who had been confined before, had only six-pence a day. Act and Clauses both hung up. Here is a pump of excellent spring-water; and soft-water is laid on by a pipe.

REMARKS.

This prison, for the liberty of the hundred, manor, and forest of Macclesfield, in the Pinfold, or pound of that hundred, is the property of the Earl of Derby, who holds a court twice in the year, viz. in April and October.

Debtors are committed hither for indefinite sums, from one shilling up to any amount: And, as they cannot obtain their sixpences, by virtue of the statute, called “the Lords’ Act,” before the holding of the Court next after their commitment, it may be their hard lot to be immured in this dreary abode for several months together, without a chance of speedier deliverance.

Here is a court-yard, or area, of 24 feet by 18. The prison consists of four rooms; two on the ground-floor, about 11 feet square; and two above, 6 feet square.

No bedding, not even straw is allowed. The keeper furnishes those prisoners who can pay, with a day-room, bed-chamber, and fire, at 3s. 6d. each per week.

The Old Dungeon, which is seven steps down, in size 11 feet by 9, and lighted by a window only 6 inches square, was formerly used for the confinement of Deserters: But, at my visit in 1805, it was, happily, in a state of total ruin, and 6 inches deep in mud.

The Gaoler, who is a Bailiff or Sheriff's Officer, keeps the Eagle and Child publick house (the Derby Arms), and pays twenty-six pounds annual rent, with all taxes. He told me that one Isaac Wylde was confined here six months, for a debt of five shillings and three pence!

Of the three Debtors, (all women,) who have been here confined subsequent to the 1st of October 1807, the names and circumstances are as follow.

1. Eliza-

So that the three Debts together were 2 4 10

 Total, £.36 18 11.

These are facts verified, which need no comment.

How

How desirable then must it be, in such very extreme cases of poverty and woe,—of female poverty and female woe,—if a more lenient execution of BRITISH LAW could so operate, as to attach upon the goods only, not on the person of helpless, widowed debtors * !

I should have mentioned that Elizabeth Gosling's debt, 1*l.* 10*s.* 6*d.* was accepted from the Society for the Discharge and Relief of Persons imprisoned for Small Debts, and she was soon discharged, after presenting her petition at the office in Craven-Street. Mary Marsland and Margaret Ashton were ordered two shillings and sixpence each per week, for their support in prison, till the Committee should hold their next monthly meeting.

All these poor women had excellent characters given of them respectively ; which renders the consideration of their distresses doubly painful.

Marsland has a son, who should have been her greatest helper,

“ To rock the Cradle of declining Age,” but he enlisted for a soldier. Her goods have been seized and sold for rent ; and having no allowance in gaol, misery must have sunk her there, but for the incidental charity of some well-disposed persons * See my remarks on Penzance Prison, in a following page ; which is now humanely done away by Lord Arundel, and the wretched place turned into an innocent milk cellar.

(of whom one was a gentleman actually in the gaol as a fellow prisoner at the time), who felt for her accumulated trials.

From one of the Plaintiffs (a woman also) the Society received a letter, dated the 17th of March last, which is pointedly expressive. "I could not," says the writer, "make up my payments; therefore, was obliged to sue some, to make others pay me: but, little thought what the expence would be. I have since been told that Macclesfield court are allowed very liberal fees. When I went to Macclesfield on Gosling's account, I saw this woman [Marsland], and was very much shocked at her appearance. The weather being extremely cold, and having little to eat, she had been very ill; but some of her neighbours had subscribed 8s. and sent her; and Mr. Jones, the gaoler, has been very humane to her, in giving her a little broth now and then; for there is no allowance, not even fire, nor so much as straw for a bed."

Neither the Act for preserving Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are hung up. The prison rooms dirty, and out of repair.

☞ There is every reason to hope, as it is sincerely to be wished, that a radical and very beneficial change will ere long take place in the Town Gaol of Macclesfield.

REMARKS.

This Gaol was erected in 1746, as appears by the inscription on a stone in front, "C. Sloane, architect." The keeper's house separates the debtors' prison from that of the felons; but he has no proper view of the prison at large. For men debtors here are two court-yards; the upper one, paved with flag-stones, is 43 feet by 38'; the lower one, 96 feet by 48, with a hard gravel bottom: Also a common day-room, 26 feet by 19. The women debtors have no court-yard, and only one room, 13 feet by 10.

On the first floor are eight spacious rooms for debtors, opening into a lobby 6 feet 2 inches wide. Master's-side debtors pay 1*s.* 2*d.* per week; those who have a room to themselves 2*s.* 6*d.* per week; and there is one, handsomely furnished, for which a prisoner paid 5*s.* per week. For Common-side debtors here are two rooms, 26 feet by 19 each, called, by a singular fancy, "the Pennyless wards," because each poor debtor who sleeps there pays one penny per week. The Infirmary has two rooms, one 20 feet by 18, the other 15 feet by 12, and very improperly situated, in the common felons' court-yard, in the centre of the prison. No bath, but an old useless tub. The prison-wall is three feet thick, with double wooden bars, three inches and a half broad (instead of single iron ones), at the windows both of debtors and felons, by which the air and light are greatly obstructed. Prayers are read by the Chaplain, on the staircase, to the criminals, who are within the iron gate ; but not one third of them can either see the minister, or hear the divine service. Those under sentence of death are brought into a small open court, and the minister prays by them from the keeper's parlour. Debtors have prayers read in a large room at the end of the lobby.

Six windows of the debtors' rooms, and three of the felons', are towards the street, and occasion many inconveniences to the neighbourhood. Here are no rules respecting the quantity of liquor which may be admitted to the debtors : indeed, rules would be almost useless, where the windows are so situated ; and their irregularities frequently set the keeper at defiance, for want of knowing how to treat them.

The county allows three chaldrons of coals to the debtors yearly. No employment furnished ; but those of handicraft-trades, such as shoe-makers, tailors, &c. sometimes procure work from the town. No Rules and Orders. No books for the Chaplain, Surgeon, or visiting Magistrates to enter their remarks. The keeper is humane and attentive, and the whole prison kept very clean.

REMARKS.

To this prison of the Court of the Marshalsea, and of the King's Palace-Court of Westminster, are brought debtors, arrested for the lowest sums, any where within twelve miles of the Palace, except in the city of London.

King

King Charles I. in the sixth year of his reign, by his letters patent, erected a new court of record, called the Curia Palatii, or Palace-Court, to be held before the Steward of the Household and Knight Marshal, and the Steward of the Court, or his deputy; with jurisdiction to hold plea in all manner of personal actions whatsoever, which shall arise between any parties within twelve miles of his Majesty's palace at Whitehall.

The Court is now held once a week, together with the antient court of Marshalsea, in the Borough of Southwark: and a writ of error lies from thence to the court of King's Bench. But, if the cause be of any considerable consequence, it is usually removed on its first commencement, together with the custody of the defendant, either into the King's Bench or Common Pleas, by a writ of Habeas Corpus cum Causá. The inferior business of the Court also hath of late years been much reduced, by the new Courts of Conscience erected in the environs of London; in consideration of which, the four counsellors belonging to these courts had salaries granted to them for their lives, by the statute 23 Geo. II. cap. 27.

It is under the particular custody of the Substitute, who has his appointment from the Knight Marshal of the King's Household for the time being.

The

The great abuses practised by a predecessor of this officer were reported to parliament by the Gaol Committee in 1729.

This prison is held, under lease, by Mr. Cracklow, a Surveyor. One half of it is already fallen down in ruins; and of the remainder it may be almost said, with our Poet, that

The court-yard is spacious, and contains near fifty rooms, six of which only are for Common-side debtors *. There are two or three rooms for women; but as there is only one court-yard, men and women mix together in the day-time. No Infirmary. There is a Tap in the prison, which was let to William Matthews, a prisoner, at 40s. per week! The Court is well supplied with water. The prisoners sometimes employ themselves in cutting pegs for the Brewers, and are paid 2s. the thousand.

* If more debtors are on the Common-side than six rooms will contain, at three in a room, other rooms are allowed from the Master’s side. No pirates have been committed to this prison since the year 1789; but several persons have been, and still are, committed in execution, under sentence of courts martial, to suffer imprisonment for a limited time: they are committed by the Lords of the Admiralty, pursuant to the sentence. Of this description I have found from Four to Eight at my several visits within the last seven years. The whole building is in a most ruinous and insecure state; and the habitations of the debtors are wretched in the extreme.

At

At my visit, 28th December 1802, I found the court-yard very scanty, a wall being built across the end of it, and twenty new rooms in the centre of the court, about 11 feet by 10, and  $7\frac{1}{2}$  feet high, for the better accommodation of the prisoners to live in, and also to sleep in, if they can.

In 1786 there was a delay in the distribution of the Oxford Charity. The Court of Chancery, on application made, gave its directions: the arrears were paid up; and I have heard of no complaint since.

The average number of prisoners, about thirty years ago, was 200, as appears by the books; but, since the act of the 19th George III. cap. LXX. it has been reduced to 50.

The object of the Act for restraining arrests under 10*l.* is "That no person shall be held to bail, or taken to prison in the first instance, unless his debt amount to 10*l.*:" But, a creditor may still sue out a writ for any sum above 2*l.* prosecute his action against his debtor to a judgment; and then take him in execution for debt and costs, be that sum under or above ten pounds.

It is not necessary, where there is a judgment obtained, that the sum should exceed 10*l.*: If it were so, a person having 5*l.* or 6*l.* due to him would be without a remedy.

If an action be originally brought in the Marshalsea Court, and removed to any other by the debtor,
(for

(for the creditor cannot remove it), the plaintiff must follow the removal, or lose his debt; and when the said creditor, or plaintiff, has obtained a judgment, the debtor cannot be imprisoned in the Marshalsea, but in the prison of the court where the judgment was obtained.

 Mr. HENRY ALLNUTT, who was many years since a prisoner here, had, during his confinement, a large estate bequeathed to him. He learned sympathy by his sufferings; and left One Hundred Pounds a year to discharge poor debtors from hence, the payment, or composition, of whose debts does not exceed 4*l.* As he bound his manor of Goring, in Oxfordshire, for charitable uses, this is called “The Oxford Charity.” The present Trustees are, Henry Harding, Esq. of Abingdon, and Mr. John Bowles.

Allowance. To debtors, who are paupers, one pound and half of bread per day, and one penny per day in money : the bread is sent in from the baker's in loaves of 3 lbs.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, which is also the County Bridewell, has much the appearance of a castle. It is situated on a fine eminence : the boundary wall incloses about an acre of ground, given by the Duke of Beaufort. The outer gate has, on one side, the Turnkey's Lodge, and a small room. On the other side are the wash-house and oven, and cistern for soft soft water ; and up-stairs a sleeping room for the Turnkey. Over these is a flat roof, where criminals are executed. The Gaol is in the centre of the area, and the Keeper's court-yard and house front the Turnkey's lodge. On the ground-floor are the Visiting Magistrates' room, two rooms for the Keeper, and twelve sleeping-cells, 8 feet 9 inches by 6 feet, with glazed windows ; five of which are for Common-side debtors, to whom the County allows a wooden bedstead, a straw in sacking bed, a pair of sheets, a blanket, and a rug ; and in the winter an additional blanket or rug. Five other cells are for solitary confinement, and two, totally dark, for the refractory. The Master's-side Debtors have a court-yard, 57 feet by 45 ; a day-room 28 feet by 19 ; and above, a sleeping-room of the same size ; to which if the debtor brings his own bed, he pays one shilling per week, or else the Keeper furnishes the beds at 2s. 6d. per week each, for two sleeping together. If any debtor has a bed in the Keeper's house, he pays 5s. per week.

Mr. James Gabriel, of this town, who died March 26, 1754 (æt. 75.) had been very kind to the prisoners in his life-time ; and at his death he left them 100*l.* which is invested in the turnpike-security, from which each prisoner receives every quarter-day a six-penny loaf. A memorial of this legacy is fixed up in St. Mary's church.

In

In the centre of the building is the Chapel ; to which the prisoners enter, from their respective divisions, to the seats appropriated for them ; and all are required to attend divine service.

The attic story has two good-sized infirmaries, one for men, the other for women : and there are four circular rooms on the top, one in each tower, 12 feet diameter, and 7 feet high, totally dark, with straw on the floor, for refractory prisoners. The space between the court-yards and boundary-wall is from 15 to 30 feet, and affords the Keeper a convenient garden. Rules and Orders printed, but not stuck up. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, not hung up.

Prayer-books are supplied to those who can read ; and the Magistrates now visit frequently, as appears by their entries in the book. The Gaol very clean. I weighed the bread, and found every loaf full weight. The County allows firing to all parts of the prison, when used with discretion.

At my visit in 1805, I found the Gaoler was dead, and that the magistrates continued his widow in that situation ; with an assistant, at 50*l. per annum*, and likewise allowed 9*s.* a week to a Turnkey, to which Mrs. Phillips has added 3*s. per week*.

		1803, Sept. 8th,	- - 3

Allowance. Six-pence per day in bread.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is finely situated on a rising ground. One court-yard for men and women debtors, 44 feet by 32, with a sewer in it. A day-room 14 feet square, and a small room adjoining, with a bath, and a boiler. Up-stairs are eight good-sized rooms for debtors, three of which are free wards. The County allows no bedding, but straw on the floor: the keeper furnishes beds at 1*s*. 6*d*. per week a single bed, and 2*s*. per week, if two sleep together. A large room over the entrance-door of the prison is used as a chapel, and a small room is set apart for the sick. The well was out of repair, and no water. The Rev. Thomas Powell left by will the interest of 20*l*. to be laid out in coals for the use of the prisoners.

Fees, 12*s. 6d.* (No Table.) Besides which the Under-sheriff demands a fee of 2*s. 6d.* for each liberate; and if upon a supersedeas, 6*s. 8d.*

Duty, Prayers and Sermon, Sunday afternoon.

Surgeon, Mr. Douglas Sands; makes a bill.

Number of Debtors,	{	1801, Feb. 1st,	-	-	8
		1802, Sept. 9th,	-	-	11

Allowance. Four-pence per day to poor debtors, on petition to the Magistrates.

REMARKS.

On the left entrance is the debtors' day-room, 23 feet by 19, and 12 feet high. This is also the chapel. In the centre of the building is a small court, about 25 feet square, with a pump in it, principally used for the debtors to wash themselves: It is likewise a passage to the keeper's large garden, of which debtors have the daily use:

In

In this court are five sleeping-cells, two below, (not used on account of their dampness,) and three above, each 9 feet by 6 feet 7 inches, with arched roofs.

The middle tower, over the dungeon, is about 23 feet square, and occasionally used by debtors and felons, but not at the same time. It has a fire-place in it and a sewer. The two windows are glazed and iron-grated, 3 feet 7 by 3 feet each, with an aperture in the door about 8 inches square.

On the debtors' side of the prison, there is on the first floor one room for women, about 14 feet square, and another, 18 feet by 15. The second story has five rooms, to which the keeper furnishes beds from two shillings to one shilling per week. The upper story has two rooms, the largest of which, 18 feet square, is used as a free-ward, whenever the middle tower is occupied by felons. The other room, used as an infirmary, is 14 feet by 10, having a large closet, well lighted and ventilated. Water, accessible to debtors at all times, is carried to the felons. It was intended to present the want of a proper infirmary, bath, and oven, at the General Quarter-Sessions. I found the prison kept as clean as the bad construction of it would admit.

MUSSELBURGH; Scotland.

Gaoler, Wm. Robertson ; keeps a public house.

Salary, 5*s.* per week from the town.

Fees, 4*d.* per night. No table.

Surgeon, from the town, when wanted.

Number of Debtors, 1802, Sept. 17th, none.

Criminal, - - - - - one.

Allowance. To Criminals, 6*d.* a day. Debtors from 9*d.* to 18*d.* a day, according to their rank in life.

REMARKS. This prison is over the guard-house, and has, on the first floor, a large room for debtors, with two iron-barred windows towards the street: at the end is a room for criminals, about 9 feet by 6, with straw on the floor, and lighted by a pane of glass in the roof. Over these a room the length of the building ; the boarded floor very rotten and unsafe : it has four iron-grated windows, and an offensive sewer. No court-yard. No water. Very dirty ; never white-washed. Act and Clauses not hung up. Over the door of the Magistrates' room is this inscription :

“ Magistrates ! do justice, in the fear of God.

“ He that GOD doth fear

NEWCASTLE UPON TYNE ; Northumberland.
County Gaol.

Gaoler, John Gale. He is a tallow-chandler, and lives near the prison. Salary, 100*l*.

Fees, debtors, 14*s*. 4*d*. of which 1*s*. is to the Turnkey ; besides which the Under-sheriff demands 2*s*. 6*d*. on discharge of a writ from the Court of King's Bench or Common Pleas ; and 5*s*. on a supersedeas ! No Table. Garnish, abolished. See Remarks.

Chaplains. The Rev. Mr. Moiser, and The Rev. Mr. Perkins.

Duty. On Wednesday and Friday, Prayers ; and once a month a Sermon. The chaplains officiate alternately a month each.

Salary, 10*l*. the Corporation, and 10*l*. Sir Walter Blacket.

Surgeon, Mr. William Fife. Salary, none : he makes a bill, which is allowed by the Magistrates in Sessions.

Number of Debtors, Sept. 6th, 1802, - - 12

Allowance ; 2*d*. a day, on petition to the mayor.

REMARKS.

This prison is the Gate at the upper end of the town, and was formerly a fortified gateway. Here is no court-yard; but one might be made of the vacant ground West of the Gaol, at a little expence, as the town wall is on one side of it *.

The left side of the gateway is the gaol for debtors; on the staircase leading to whose apartments is the following inscription, framed and glazed. "Friends "visiting the debtors in this prison are to take notice, "that the following are the hours of admission, which "cannot be departed from, except on very particular
"occasions. From eight to nine in the morning :
"from twelve to one at noon: from four to five in the "evening. Those who neglect to come out at the ap"pointed hour, must remain till the next opening."

Debtors, having no court-yard, walk on the battlement above the gaol, which is nearly 34 feet square, with a flagged floor, and a sewer in one corner; and also on the flat leads, about 40 feet square: To these two places they have access at all times, from morning till night. Here is no distinction of debtors. The Corporation allows an iron bedstead, a bed-ticking filled with new chaff every three months, one under

* It is in contemplation to build six new rooms, and an Infirmary, at the West end of the prison; and to enclose the vacant ground for a debtors' court, which will be a great improvement.

blanket, two upper blankets, and two coverlets, scoured every three months, to debtors, felons, and all descriptions of prisoners. Here are eight lodging-rooms for debtors; and every one sleeps single, if the prison will admit it. They succeed to the best rooms by seniority of confinement, and every one is required to attend divine service, except prevented by illness, or professing himself to be of a different persuasion. All prisoners are allowed as much firing as they can consume without waste; and mops, brooms, pails, &c. to keep the gaol clean. Any one who misbehaves is tried by a prison-court, (at which the senior debtor presides,) and fined, according to rules laid down for preserving good behaviour in the gaol. All communication with him is interdicted till the fine is paid. If he conceives himself hardly judged, he applies to the keeper, who examines into the matter, and settles it accordingly. The above relates solely to petty offences committed against the peace of the prison.

This is one of the very few gaols, that have what are called in London "the RULES." They extend South of the prison to a running water, arched over, called Execution Dock, and on the East of the Prison down High Fryer-street about 200 yards, to a rivulet called Lork Burn, now arched over with stone. As the keeper cannot find by what authority these Rules were granted, no debtors are indulged in the use of them, but those of good character who are confined for small sums.

The debtors' day-room (in which divine service is performed) is 27 feet by 21; and here, conspicuously painted on a board, the following notice is hung up. "BE it understood, that no debtor, on his entrance into, or departure from this prison, is liable to the payment of any sum of money for the purchase of beer, heretofore exacted under the title of Garnish. No money, under any pretence whatever, can be levied on the relations and friends of debtors visiting them in this prison."

Every debtor committed by process issuing out of the mayor's or sheriff's court, for a debt exceeding 10*l.* is entitled to his sixpences in about six months; but, as he must employ an attorney of the court, whose charge is four guineas, they are seldom obtained. It is a pity that, in so respectable and opulent a town, there is not a fund established for that purpose, as at Winchester, Gloucester, &c. &c. If the debt be under 10*l.* by serving the plaintiff with 14 days notice, he is entitled to his sixpences the first sheriff's court, which is held twice a week. Debtors are sent here from the Court of Conscience. Act and Clauses hung up. The whole prison very clean:

Fees ; Debtors, see Table.

Garnish. On the cabin-side, a subscription of one guinea for coals, candles, mops, brooms, &c. at entrance ; and a gallon of ale on quitting the prison. On the master's-side, a subscription of thirteen shillings and four pence for coals, &c. and a gallon of beer at entrance. On the common-side, a subscription of eight shillings and ten pence for coals, &c. and a gallon of beer. Those who from their poverty cannot pay this last mentioned sum, are to wash and clean the wards: The Stewards of the wards have each a double allowance of bread.

In a room, formerly the tap, Anne Sell (a free vintner) supplies the criminal prisoners with wine, and serves out the beer which is sent to the prison from the publicans, and for which she is allowed two pence per gallon.

Chaplain (or Ordinary), Rev. Dr. Forde.

Salary, 200*l.* and a house adjoining to the gaol ; 6*l.* per annum from Lady Barnardiston's legacy ; and 10*l.* a year from an old legacy legacy paid by the Governors of St. Bartholomew's Hospital; over and above which, sundry sums have been presented to the Ordinary by the Court of Aldermen.

Duty, Prayers and Sermon on Sunday morning, and Prayers in the afternoon; also Prayers every Wednesday and Friday morning; and private Prayers, on Tuesday and Saturday, to those under sentence of death. After the Report, he attends each condemned Convict twice a day, and on the morning of execution; as does a Catholic priest also those who are of the Romish church.

Surgeon, Mr. William Box, jun. who visits the prison daily.

Salary, 100*l.* and medicines, paid for by the City, for debtors as well as criminals. There is no Surgeon's book kept in Newgate: But I am informed he makes a regular return to the Court of Aldermen; and also another return to the Justiciary Court every day, during the Sessions at the Old Bailey, of the prisoners' state of health.

There are also sundry donations to the poor men and women debtors, paid at different times, some of which are regularly paid, and others discontinued. See the following List.

* In four months after the discharge by the Act in 1804, I found 145 debtors in prison; and during the same period, after the Act in 1806, 171.

*.* Through the exertions of the attentive Keeper a very excellent arrangement has now (1807) taken place in the distribution of the Prison-Charities; by which every prisoner is equally benefited, and the money arising therefrom laid out in necessaries for their use, instead of the quarterly distribution (as formerly) in money; which was too frequently spent in liquor by those prisoners only, who happened to be detained at the time the said charities became payable.

Mr. Carter, 12*s.* 6*d.* every 2 years, at Christmas, not paid.

The Debtors are also especially relieved by the humanity of the SOCIETY, held at No. 7, Craven Street, in the Strand, who monthly vote large sums of money towards procuring their discharge, and paying their fees. Money is likewise paid for the same purpose by some of the City Companies, by a Society at Mile End, and, for unfortunate inhabitants of Christ-Church parish, by the Common Council-men there.

Twice in a year the Debtors have also a share of One hundred pounds laid out, first by the Lord Mayor, and secondly by the Sheriffs, in provisions and coals; and distributed to all the prisoners in Newgate, Ludgate, and the two Compters, according to the number of persons in each of those prisons.

Broken victuals are sent by the masters of the London Coffee-house, and by Mr. Alderman Birch, in Cornhill; of which the more distressed debtors sometimes partake. The masters of the City of London Tavern also give broken victuals to the debtors, who have lately appointed a person to collect the same daily.

RE-

REMARKS.

NEWGATE, formerly one of the gates of the city of London, was first erected in the reign of Henry the First, or of King Stephen, for the conveniency of such as had occasion to pass from the North-East part of the city to Holborn, the passage being much obstructed by the enclosing of ground for the building of St. Paul's cathedral, so that the way became very circuitous and dangerous from thence through Ludgate, which had theretofore been the usual thoroughfare.

This New Gate, having for upwards of 600 years been used as a prison for felons and other offenders, was, about 38 years ago, pulled down, and the present gaol erected ; which having been destroyed by the rioters in 1780, has since been rebuilt, and appropriated (as before) for the reception of persons charged with offences committed in London and Middlesex ; and also for the reception of all manner of persons committed by either House of Parliament, by the Secretary of State, by the Court of King's Bench, or either of the Judges thereof ; by his Majesty's Judges of Assize ; by the several Courts of Sessions ; by the several Commissioners of Bankrupts, Customs, Excise, &c. and by the Magistrates in and for the City of London and County of Middlesex ; as also of Debtors arrested by the Sheriff of Middlesex ;—no London debtor debtor being brought there without being also charged with an offence cognizable by some Court or Magistrate having criminal jurisdiction, or unless sent by the Sheriffs of London from the Compter, or Ludgate, by Duci facias.

The Mayor and Commonalty of London, or their deputies, may also arrest and take felons, thieves, &c. who are found in the Borough of Southwark, and commit them to Newgate.

The prison is divided into eight separate and distinct Yards; of which two, on the North-West angle, are appropriated for debtors: viz.

No. 1. The men's yard, 49 feet long by about 31 feet wide, leading to three wards, called the Cabin-side; each ward being 37 feet long by  $14\frac{1}{2}$  wide, and having four cabins in each, of about seven feet and an half square, and capable of containing twenty-four persons within the three wards, reckoning two to each cabin; also leading to two other wards, called the Master's Side, being each 23 feet long by  $14\frac{1}{2}$  wide, capable of containing about twenty persons; and to a day-room of the same dimensions, fitted up with benches and settles, after the manner of a tap-room in a public-house; and also leading to eight other wards, called the Common Side, one of which is 36 feet; six others about 23 feet; and the other eighteen feet in length: all of these are about 15 feet wide, and together capable of containing about 90 persons.

No. 2.

No. 2. The women debtor's court-yard, about 49 feet long by 16 feet wide, leads to two wards, one of which is 36 feet long by 15 feet wide, and the other 18 feet long by 15 wide : and these calculated to contain about 22 persons. All the before-mentioned wards are about 11 feet high. These yards are separated from each other by a stone wall, 15 feet high, and both well supplied with water. The debtors all find their own beds and bedding ; but the poor, as well debtors as criminals, are sometimes supplied with rugs by the City.

The greatest number of debtors ever confined here at one time, has been 285 men and 40 women. But, astonishing as it may appear, I have been informed there have been near 900 criminals, making altogether upwards of 1200 * prisoners.

An excellent opportunity was afforded to the City, of building a detached prison for DEBTORS on the site where Surgeon's Hall stood. Indeed, unless the debtors be removed, to give room for the separation of criminal prisoners, I fear it will be very difficult to restrain that licentious intercourse, which every where presents itself, and which the utmost vigilance of the * Newgate will conveniently accommodate 94 men and 16 women debtors, and 300 men criminals and 80 women, making a total of 490 persons. The gaol is capable of containing about 750 persons in the whole, allowing a space of 7 feet 6 inches by 3 feet for every criminal, and rather more (according to the size and shape of the room), for every debtor.

The Fee to the Middlesex Sheriff's Office, for every debtor's discharge, for one action, is 4s. 6d.
And for every additional action - - 2s. 6d. more.

Messrs. Burchell, the present humane Deputy Sheriff, frequently remit this fee, upon the Keeper's certificate of the debtor being poor, and unable to pay the same. The warrant of such discharge is given under the hand and seal of the Sheriff of Middlesex, and is called the Red Seal *.

The fee for a London debtor's discharge from the Sheriffs, is the same as before stated in my description of LUDGATE prison, p. 343.

* A Seal in which are quartered the arms of both the Gentlemen (appointed by the City to be Sheriffs), who together make one Sheriff of Middlesex; the impression of which seal is always placed after the names of the Sheriff upon the said warrant in red sealing wax, from which it has obtained the name of the Red Seal.

From

FROM the frequency of my visits to this prison, I have so often witnessed the very distressful state of clothing, and filthy appearance of the poorer females, particularly convicts, crowded like sheep in a pen in a few rooms, that it was matter of surprise to me there were so few on the sick list, or that the gaol-fever did not prevail! One half of the prisoners, particularly the women, are miserably poor, and having pawned or sold their clothes, are covered (scarcely covered) with rags. To prevent which every criminal should be clothed in some uniform, which could not be disposed of; and their own clothes tied up in a bundle, to be exchanged for the same upon their quitting the prison. This also might be very beneficial to the debtors, who, in any prison, are with difficulty kept in a state of cleanliness.

Here are two rooms set apart for the sick felons, and lately, a room on the attic story has been fitted up, with four iron bedsteads and bedding, for the use of the debtors; who, before, had no such accommodation, and were therefore necessarily obliged to be in the Felons' Infirmary. Upon this subject I had a conference with that truly philanthropic character, Dr. Lettsom, who humanely accompanied me several times, visited the sick, examined every part of the prison, and gave it as his opinion that an additional convalescent-room was absolutely necessary.

The want of a sufficiently thorough air is a very great inconvenience to this prison: and although, from its structure, the evil may in some measure be irremediable, yet, at the back part of the building towards the East, there is a yard belonging to the College of Physicians, which, if that learned body could be induced to part with, would be a great acquisition to NEWGATE. A space might thus be obtained to make every practicable improvement to this prison: a wall about twenty or thirty feet distant from that part of the prison might then be built, and back windows might be made in those wards; and if some premises in Warwick-square were also taken in, it would allow room sufficient for more spacious Infirmaries, together with warm baths, and another cold bath; the present one being very inconvenient, since no person can use it, without coming into the Press-yard amongst the capital convicts.

There are no established RULES and ORDERS hung up in this prison for its government (the whole resting with the Keeper); but the Court of Aldermen have appointed a Committee, for the purpose of framing some Rules to be observed by the debtors; and, in the mean time, several regulations have been judiciously adopted, and attended with such salutary effects, that the Keeper says he has now no complaint to make against the debtors.

The CHAPEL is plain and neat: the prisoners silently attentive: no noise in the court-yard, nor devotion interrupted by opening and shutting the door during divine service, as in the King's Bench prison. Below is a pew belonging to the Chaplain; and adjoining to it a larger pew for men criminals; opposite to which are three benches, inclosed with an iron-railing, set apart also for men of that class, capital convicts excepted, who sit in a pew about the middle of the chapel, with a large table in it, whereon a coffin is placed, whenever any persons, but murderers *, are ordered for execution. Facing the communion-table are the pulpit and reading desk. On the South side is a gallery for debtors, and on the North side another for women criminals; in which last-mentioned gallery at the West end, and over the Chaplain's pew, is an enclosed seat for the Sheriffs. The chapel being not large enough to contain all the prisoners in the gaol, they are left to their own option: Those, however, who do not attend divine service on Sunday are generally detained in their several wards, and not permitted to hinder the edification of such as are better disposed.

The danger in point of health to the prisoners, and to the City, has at times been very imminent, from the great number of persons crowded together in a space comparatively small. The number of prisoners here in May 1802 was 867; and the average number for some years previous had been from 600 to 700. The number of deaths between the first of January and the first of May in the year 1803 was 49, many of whom, we may reasonably suppose to have died of putrid disorders, as I have been informed that some very hale and robust men, who had been removed from the Poultry Compter in a perfect state of health, but a few days before, were among the number above mentioned. Since, however, a more frequent removal of convicts has taken place, the deaths have happened more among the debtors than the criminals; because the average number of them has not been so much reduced (except immediately after the passing of an Insolvent Act) as the felons, whose average has been reduced by nearly one half, and of whom two only have died within the last two years: And of the whole Gaol List, whether debtors or felons, not one died of putrid or infectious fever within the same period. Here let me observe, that if all the Sheriff's debtors in the vicinity of London were taken by Habeas Corpus (as formerly) before a Judge, to be charged in execution, their average number in the common

gaols would be much reduced, as there would then remain none but those upon mesne-process, together with the Court of Conscience Debtors; and a still greater security from the danger of contagion might be expected.

Heretofore, the gaol was not sufficiently supplied with soft water to cleanse the court-yards, and the well of the pump was frequently dry: But the City have now (1807) caused the supply of water to be daily, instead of three times a week; and have also erected an engine, by which the water can easily be forced through leathern hose into every part of the prison.

The Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up; and the Gaoler is equally intelligent and humane.

Prisoners discharged by Proclamation are liberated in a morning, and have one shilling each given them. Others are discharged, as acquitted on Trial, in the day time, or the evening, without any money being given to them. This is the more to be regretted, as I am credibly informed that an instance has occurred, of a woman's having been discharged penniless on one day, and brought in again on the next.

The number of prisoners on Mesne Process for want of bail in Newgate, on the 4th May 1807, for debts under 20*l.* was forty-eight, having 85 children.

C c

Number

Number of prisoners for debts above 20*l.* and under 30*l.* at the same time, twenty-five, having 57 children. Ditto, for debts above 30*l.* and under 40*l.* thirteen, having 25 children.

Since writing the above account of Newgate, I am informed that the College of Physicians have determined to dispose of the whole of their premises in Warwick-lane; and it is hoped that so excellent an opportunity will not be lost by the City; as every means will thus be afforded, to build a separate Gaol for the debtors, and thereby render that for the felons far more commodious and wholesome.

☞ There seems to be some deficiency in the mode of conducting the Chapel-service, from the want of a discreet and steady person, able to lead the Responses, and to set, and join in singing the Psalm. This, I should conceive to be an essential business, and especially worthy of attention in all Gaols; inasmuch as the neglect of religious duties, both in principle, and in manner, is generally the first fatal step towards a reprobate and dishonest course of life. Criminals imprisoned, being for the most part ignorant of their most important duty, are often at a loss how to conduct themselves at Chapel, without having some person in the Lay Clerk's Desk, to whom they may look up, as a guide for their proper demeanour.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is also the County Bridewell, and ad-joins the Town-Hall. The Turnkey's lodge in front, the Grand Jury-room on the first floor: three rooms for men debtors on the second floor, each about 23 feet by 14, and a smaller one for the women debtors. To these the Keeper furnishes beds at 2*s.* per week; and and two sleep together. If the debtor finds his own bed and bedding, he pays 1s. per week.

On the ground-floor is a day-room, about 28 feet by 20, and a work-room 15 feet by 10. The court for men and women debtors is 17 yards by 14, well supplied with water, which is laid on.

Common-side debtors are allowed a straw bed, a sheet, and a rug.

The Keeper's house, which is in the middle of the prison, has on the first floor the Chapel, 31 feet by 25, where the prisoners are seated in sight of each other; and over it two infirmary-rooms, the same size, with a fire-place in each. There is a warm and cold bath, and an oven to purify infected clothes.

The whole prison very clean; mops, brooms, pails, and soap being allowed for that purpose. In the centre of the building is an alarm-bell.

No work furnished by the County now. In some of the rooms I saw work in the looms half-finished, at my visit in 1801; but the expence exceeding the profits caused the County to discontinue it.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, which is also the town Bridewell, is situate in Fish-lane, and was built in 1792. The Keeper is a tobacco-pipe maker; his house fronts the street, and the windows command a view of the two court-yards for criminal prisoners, which are both 19 feet by 15, with cisterns for pump-water, and a sewer in each.

Here is one court-yard for all descriptions of prisoners, 21 feet by 18. Debtors have only one room up-stairs, adjoining the Bridewell-room, 14 feet by 11, and 9 feet high, with a fire-place, and two glazed iron-grated windows: the sewer in one corner.

The

The Town allows to poor debtors, one blanket, and straw upon the floor. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, hung up.

No room set apart for an Infirmary.

As there are no mops, brooms, or pails allowed to keep the prison clean, the cells were very offensive, for want of proper drains.

Debtors are sent here by process issuing out of the Borough Court; and the Gaoler told me that no debtor had received the six-pences during the time (eight years) which he had kept the prison.

Divine service was occasionally performed by the Rev. John Stoddart, without a stipend; but that gentleman becoming blind, no religious attentions have been paid to the prisoners for several years.

☞ Here, as in too many other Gaols, I found a poor Lunatick. This melancholy state I have commented upon in various instances; and most heartily wish it were well considered by an humane Magistracy, and some effectual improvement adopted.

RE-

REMARKS.

The Castle is situated on the summit of a hill, and the prison has been enlarged by additional buildings. The Gaoler's house is on the right of the entrance, and on the ground-floor is his parlour, and the Visiting Magistrates' committee-room; but seldom used, on account of the drain under the window, which, at times, makes both rooms extremely offensive. A small area, 18 feet 6 inches by 15, divides the Keeper's house from the Turnkey's lodge on the left; and over it is the Chapel, the lower part of which is appropriated to criminal prisoners, and the Gallery for Debtors. The Master's-side, or better order of Debtors, who are on the Keeper's side of the prison, have five rooms, 12 feet by 7, with fire-places in each, and glazed windows; but the casements (20 inches by 12) are too small.

On the Chapel side are three rooms, 10 feet square, with glazed windows, but no fire-place: and four others, 15 feet by 10, with fire-places, and glazed windows. The debtors' court-yard is 37 feet by 26, with a pump in it, which is supplied with water from another pump in the felons' court. The women debtors, of the master's side, have three cells, each 9 feet by 7, with a day-room 12 feet square; a fire-place in it, and glazed windows: their court-yard is 17 feet by 7. To all the above rooms the Keeper furnishes beds and bedding, and the price per week is painted on the doors, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. each; but none of the rooms have sufficient air to be wholesome. Common-side debtors, men and women, have six sleeping-rooms, each 9 feet by 7; a day-room, 12 feet square, with a fire-place, and all the windows are glazed. These rooms are furnished by the county with a bedstead, rush mat, two blankets, and a rug, with the addition of another blanket in the winter. Their court-yard is 24 feet square, with an arcade of 18 feet square; and the pump there is likewise supplied from that in the felons' yard. Male and female debtors have only one day-room. Every debtor is allowed to purchase one quart of ale or porter daily, but not more: no other liquor is permitted, except by order of the Surgeon, in case of sickness. The Clauses prohibiting Spirituous Liquors are hung up in the gaol, but the Act for preserving Health is placed in the Crown Court of the Shire-Hall adjoining; so that prisoners have no opportunity of seeing it. Debtors are allowed to work, if they can procure it from without; and they have all they earn. The general employment is shoemaker's and taylor's work, cutting pegs, skewers, and making nets.

Here is a nurse, or matron, who is paid 6s. per week by the County: her duty is to attend the sick,

as well poor debtors as criminals, and to provide for them broth, gruel, milk-pottage, wine, &c. by order of the Surgeon ; of whose professional abilities, humanity, and assiduous attentions, the hospital and prison-books bear ample record.

Many are the comforts here afforded, to soften the sorrows of imprisonment, by the considerate Magistrates : But, the defects in the construction of this gaol are many and great. Frequent escapes prove that it is not secure ; hence almost all the prisoners are in irons. The court-yards are small, and the air is impure : every chimney smokes ; the sewers are all dead wells, about five feet deep, most intolerably fetid, and sufficient to poison the whole building. The situation and construction of these receptacles of filth are of the greatest importance in prisons, and have always engaged my peculiar attention, as a principal cause of unhealthiness in many of our gaols.

The two cells for refractory debtors, 9 feet by 7 each, are made under two of the arcades in the felons' court.

The lobbies, or passages, are scarce wide enough for a single person. No proper separation by classes ; and the Gaoler's house commands but a very small part of the prison.

The worthy Chaplain has a discretionary power to purchase (at the expence of the County) bibles
and

and common prayer books, and such pious tracts as he may think conducive to the religious instruction of the prisoners, and distribute them.

Every prisoner attended divine service when I was here, on the 8th September 1805; and their behaviour was orderly, and attentive to a very suitable and impressive discourse.

Mops, brooms, pails, towels, washing-bowls, coal-boxes, &c. are ordered by the liberal magistrates for the use of the prisoners, so that their persons, and all parts of the prison, may be kept in a state of cleanliness: and their orders I found literally obeyed by the attentive Keeper.

Mrs. Frances Kempe (an extract of whose will I have by me) formerly bequeathed three pounds to the poor of Norwich and Heydon: thirty shillings, for preaching three sermons a year, and thirty shillings to the prisoners in the Hall and Castle Gaols, annually, for ever. For the payment she bound an estate in Heydon, left her by her father, John Mingay, Esq.

The payment of these legacies to the poor prisoners has for many years been cruelly withheld. The Gaolers could furnish me with only one solitary instance of 5s. being paid by the parish of St. Stephen.

Extract from the WILL of the late J. NORRIS, Esq.
of Witton.

“ AND I do also give and bequeath, out of my personal estate, unto the Dean of the cathedral church of the Holy and Undivided Trinity of Norwich, of the foundation
tion

tion of King Edward the Sixth, and the Chapter of the said Church, so much money as shall and will purchase so much three per Cent. Consols. transferable at the Bank of England, to be transferred into the names of the said Dean and Chapter, as will annually produce the sum of five pounds and five shillings, for the interest or dividend thereof; upon trust, that the said Dean, and the then resident Prebendaries of the said cathedral church, shall and do annually, within ten days after the feast of the Nativity of our Lord, in every year (except the feast happening after my decease), lay out so much of the said annual sum of five pounds and five shillings as shall be requisite in purchasing the New Testament, and a book called the "Great Importance of a Religious Life," and also some manual of Devotion for each and every of the prisoners within the county gaol of Norfolk, (called the Castle,) who can read; and shall and do pay and distribute the overplus of the said annual sum of five pounds and five shillings to and amongst such of the said prisoners confined for felony in the said gaol, as shall be most necessitous, or as the said Dean and resident Prebendaries shall think most deserving objects of such charity; in such shares and proportions as they shall, in their discretion, think fit; or shall lay out and expend such overplus in the purchasing beef, weekly, for all and every of the prisoners confined for felony in the said gaol indiscriminately, as the said Dean and resident Prebendaries shall, in their discretion, best please."

An addition was made to this legacy 28th Nov. 1797, by the purchase of 75*l.* 3 per Cent. Consols. so that seven guineas is now annually allowed by the Dean and Chapter to be expended as aforesaid.

The annual average number of Debtors confined in the Castle the last seven years, fifty-seven.

REMARKS.

This prison is opposite the Town-hall, and the gaoler's house fronts the street. At the back part is the debtors' court, which is of an irregular form, about 83 feet by 36, with a pump in it. It is paved with pebble stones, and has a gravel-walk in the centre. A small garden, 33 feet by 21, divides it it from the male felons' court, but it is separated from that of the female felons' by open palisades only. Master-side debtors have twelve good-sized rooms; ten of which have fire-places: these are furnished by the Keeper with beds and bedding, from 2s. to 5s. per week; the price of each room is painted on the door. Here are also two spacious and well-ventilated infirmary-rooms, 22 feet by 17 each, and 11 feet 8 inches high, with fire-places and glazed windows, iron bedsteads, and bedding.

Common-side Debtors had heretofore a room, or more properly a cellar, 10 steps below their courtyard, 17 feet by  $13\frac{1}{2}$ , and 7 feet high, with a fire-place: it was lighted and ventilated by a small iron-grated window, 24 inches by 22, with straw on the damp brick-floor. This room, or cellar, has since been discontinued, and over it Common-side debtors have now a good day-room, 20 feet by 14, and 8 feet high: also above it a good lodging-room, 19 feet by 14, and 8 feet 9 inches high; and a third room, 22 feet by 14, and  $8\frac{1}{2}$  feet high, with glazed windows.

These three are all free-wards, in case the debtor brings his own bed: but if the Keeper furnishes one, he is paid 1s. 6d. per week for a single bed; and if two sleep together, 1s. each. The old Chapel, which was a small room in front of the street, is now (1806) converted into a wash-house, and a new chapel made at the upper end of the Court, over a room called Potters Cellar : it is 27 feet by 15, and 11 feet 8 inches high. There is an excellent cold and warm bath, with coppers, &c. The Keeper's house commands every Court. The Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up ; and the whole prison kept very clean.

The City allows to Debtors one chaldron of coals yearly. A begging-box is sent about the town, which averages about one shilling per day, and a basket to collect broken victuals : The person thus employed is a pauper from the workhouse, who receives one penny out of every shilling he collects, and one shilling per week from the city. Ten shillings are annually paid on New-year's day, the legacy of Mr. Blackhead, of which there is a written memorial in the gaol. Ten shillings annually from the Corporation, 10th May, 4th June, 22d September, 25th October, and 5th November ; and nine pence to each prisoner upon the Saturday before Shrovetide, Easter, Whitsuntide, and Christmas.

On New-year's day 5*s.* paid by the parish of St. Stephen ; and on the 10th May 5*s.* by the parish of St. John Sepulchre : this had been discontinued for more than sixteen years ; and both seemed to be the legacy of Mrs. Kempe. See Remarks on NORWICH Castle, p. 413.

REMARKS.

This Gaol adjoins to, and stands on the South side of the County or Shire Hall. It is situate on the declivity of a hill. The entrance to it is down a passage

sage from the street, leading to the Turnkey's lodge ; and close to this is the debtor's court-yard, of 100 feet by 41, with a flagged terrace, and handsome iron palisades, commanding a view of three counties.

On the East side of the debtors' court is their day-apartment, or common mess-room, seventeen feet by ten ; with a glazed window, a fire-place, and side-oven ; and also three good-sized sleeping-rooms.

On the North side are three other sleeping-rooms ; one of which, near the Bath, was lately converted to this its proper use, out of the Keeper's stable, now disused. The average size of these rooms is 22 feet 8 inches by 10 feet. At present there is no place set apart for an infirmary. Women debtors have a room 20 feet square, which has a flagged floor, arched roof, a fire-place, and a large window, that very improperly looks into the men's court.

To all the abòve-mentioned rooms the Keeper supplies beds and bedding, at 3*s.* per week for a single person ; or at 2*s.* per week, if two sleep together. Over the mess-room is a small chapel, 23 feet by 20 feet 6 inches ; which has four glazed windows. The sexes are separately placed, and all attended divine service when I was here.

Those poorer debtors who cannot afford to pay for a bed, are most uncomfortably provided for in this County prison. Their descent is by twenty-eight steps, to three miserable sleeping-rooms, called free wards: the two largest, about twelve feet by 9, have fire-places; the third, which formerly was the condemned room, or place assigned for convicts under sentence of death, is about 9 feet square, with a wooden bedstead in it; and all have a small iron-grated and glazed window. The debtors here confined are obliged to furnish their own beds, which yet necessity only in the extreme can induce, or rather compel, them to occupy.

A considerable part of the North side of the debtors' court-yard is still occupied by a large dust-hole and dung-yard, leading to arcades, under which are a capacious and convenient bath, with a copper to warm it when necessary; but they are seldom used. Two pumps and three cisterns supply the bath, the Gaoler's house, and the whole prison, with soft water from the river Leen: It is sometimes muddy, and at other times must be fetched from the bath.

There is a well sunk in the felons' old court-yard, near the Keeper's parlour; which, if a pump were put down, would supply the whole gaol with excellent spring-water. The well was covered over in the year 1799; for which the only reason I could hear assigned was, that some prisoners, then here, had thrown improper things into it.

 The

 The arcades under the County-hall would afford good room for workshops, and comfortable free-wards for the poor Common-side debtors : and adjoining to the Turnkey's lodge there is sufficient space for a small court-yard, to accommodate the women debtors.

LIST of LEGACIES, and other DONATIONS, to Nottingham County Gaol.

John Sherwin, Esq. of Nottingham, four pounds per annum, now paid quarterly by John Longdon, Esq. out of an estate at Bramscote, purchased by Mr. Sherwin of the descendants of Henry Handley, Esq. the donor.

Samuel Smith, Esq. M. P. for Nottingham, pursuant to the will of Mr. Abel Collings, four shillings monthly to the prisoners, for coals.

John Elliott, Esq. of Nottingham, sends to all the prisoners beef, bread, and ale, at Christmas.

The Rev. Mr. Gill, Chaplain, sends a large piece of beef at Christmas.

Lady Warren sends twelve stone of beef at different times to the debtors.

The High-Sheriffs, for the three last years, have sent five tons of coals ; and also bread, beef, and ale, to all the prisoners.

The Grand Jury, at the Assizes, make a collection for the criminal prisoners, to the amount of from thirty to forty shillings.

Here, as I have before noticed at Derby, Horsham, &c. a man goes round the country about Christmas, and collects money at gentlemen's houses for the Debtors.

in September 1805, they resided at Calverton, in this county. The sanction for the confinement of a prisoner upon the above-mentioned process runs thus: "Forasmuch as the Royal Power ought not to be wanting to the Holy Church in its complaint, you are commanded to attach the said * * by his [or her] body, according to the law and custom of England, until he [or she] shall have made satisfaction to the Holy Church, as well for the contempt, as for the injury by him [or her] done unto it." One cannot help wishing, however, that the Reformation, or the Revolution, or any other adequate and legal interference, had done away the power of such imprisonment.

I here beg leave to pay my respectful acknowledgements to William-Elliott Elliott, Esq. of Gedling House, late High-Sheriff of this county, who humanely accompanied me to the prisons, hospital, and work-houses: And also to the worthy Magistrates in general, for the polite notice they were pleased to take of my suggestions, relative to the state of the gaols at Nottingham and Southwell.

Allowance. A threepenny loaf per day each ; weight, in October 1805, 1 lb. 1 oz. and when a debtor has obtained his sixpences, he continues to receive the County bread.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is partly under the Guildhall: The Keeper's house fronts the street ; and his windows, as well as those of the Turnkey's lodge, command a view both of the debtors' and criminals' courts. For debtors here are two court-yards ; the upper one, 33 feet by 23, has a flagged floor, and is over the Felons' Pit, which receives its light and ventilation from a circular iron-grating, 11 feet in diameter, placed in the the centre of this court. The lower yard is  $38\frac{1}{2}$  feet by 23, with a dust-hole and a sewer at the upper end. They have nine good-sized sleeping-rooms, with fire-places and glazed windows, well furnished by the Gaoler ; for which they pay, if two sleep in one bed, 2*s.* per week ; or if the debtor has a bed to himself, 3*s.* The debtors were employed in weaving, making shoes, cutting pegs, &c. and receive all they earn. The whole prison is well supplied with river-water, and there is a pump in the adjoining street, from which excellent spring-water is fetched by the Keeper for all his prisoners. Debtors have, from a legacy, one shilling a week for coals. A collection is annually made through the town at Christmas for the prisoners in general, which, in 1804, amounted to 9*l.* 6*s.* The collector was paid for four days trouble 14*s.* and the remainder was divided among the sixteen prisoners, 10*s.* 9*d.* each.

Colonel Elliott humanely gives here, as at the County Gaol, one pound of beef, a threepenny loaf, and a pint of ale at Christmas, to each prisoner. The Mayor of Nottingham likewise gives to this prison one ton of coals at Christmas. The Table of Fees, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are hung up ; but not the Act for Preservation of Health.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is also the County Bridewell: the Keeper's house fronts the street, and his back windows command a view of the different Court-yards. That for the debtors is 48 feet by 10, with a day-room 15 feet square; a glazed window to the street, and a fire-place. Up-stairs is a work-room, 25 feet by 14. On the other side the court, up a flight of ten steps, are two lodging-rooms, strongly planked with oak: in each of them are two beds, for which they pay as per Table. Here is a free ward for common-side debtors, to whom the county allows a straw mat, two blankets, and a rug. No room set apart for the sick. Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are hung up, but not the Act for Preservation of Health. The whole prison is thatched.

REMARKS.

This Gaol has a very castellated appearance. The boundary wall encloses about three acres of ground; and, being at a considerable distance from the prison, affords the Keeper a convenient garden, which supplies, not only his family, but the whole prison, with sufficient vegetables. On one side the entrance is the Turnkey's lodge, about 16 feet square, with a room above, for himself and assistants to sleep in, an office, and a store-room. On the other side, corresponding therewith, is a reception-room for prisoners, when first brought to Gaol, and above it a Lazaretto. There is a warm and cold bath, a general kitchen and bake-house for the use of the Gaol, and rooms above for the prisoners' clothes, and the Gaol uniform. Up-stairs is a remarkably neat Chapel, where the prisoners are seated in classes, out of sight of each other: and the flat roof above is the place of execution.

In the centre of the area is the keeper's house, which overlooks all the inner court-yards, and the visiting Magistrates' committee-room. The wing to the right of the Keeper's house is attached to the old tower. The bottom part contains three day-rooms for debtors, 16 feet by 12, with a fire-place in each, appropriated to the three classes, two for males, and one for females: also nine sleeping-rooms, 11 feet by 8 each, with boarded floors and glazed windows, to which the debtor brings his own bed, or hires one from the town. No room-rent whatever is paid. The first story contains twelve sleeping-rooms, the same as those below.

At the East end is a circular bastion, 28 feet diameter, at present (1806) unfinished, four stories high, each containing two rooms of a semicircular form, 30 feet by 15, with a fire-place in each: these are intended for work and sleeping-rooms. No employment is furnished by the County; but those who can procure it from without, are allowed to work, and receive the whole of their earnings.

At the end of this building, and adjoining the old tower, are four cells, 11 feet by 8 each, to which there is a day-room, of an irregular polygon shape, about 25 feet by 13. These are intended for the separation of prisoners, such as king's evidence, refractory, &c. The ground-floor of the old tower is the dungeon, 20 feet square and 20 feet high, the floor of which is mud, and it receives a glimmering light through a small treble-bar iron-grating, 15 feet high, just sufficient to make darkness visible. This is used as a Black Hole, for the short confinement of those taken in an actual attempt to escape, or the very unruly and turbulent.

The first floor contains a room of the same size as the dungeon below: it has a boarded floor, with one treble-bar iron-grated window, and is called the Condemned Room. The second and third stories contain each one room, the same size as those below; but the keeper assured me they had not been used these fifteen years. The upper room of this tower is of the same size as the others: it has a boarded floor, one window, and a large lanthorn light; and is intended for the use of debtors (as formerly), if found necessary. An engine throws water into a leaden cistern cistern, from which every part of the gaol is well supplied. The sewers are conveniently constructed, and not offensive.

The following TABLE is hung up in the Turnkey's Lodge.

Corpus Christi College, and other colleges, send 7*s.* 6*d.* every month in bread, and a peck of oatmeal for debtors. Soup is sent from several colleges frequently in the winter, but at no stated periods.

Christ Church College sends fifty shillings every Christmas, and six pounds of mutton every Saturday, of which debtors partake in common; and the Vice Chancellor gives annually thirty shillings, at Christmas.

The Rev. Mr. Swinton, formerly Chaplain to this Gaol, bequeathed the interest of One Hundred Pounds, three per cent. South Sea Annuities, to be distributed in bread (three penny loaves) every Sunday, while it lasts, to each prisoner who regularly attends chapel.

Every prisoner was present at divine service on my last visit (31st August 1806), and their behaviour was orderly and attentive.

It is pleasing to add, that this Gaol is in a continued state of improvement.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is surrounded by a boundary wall 20 feet high, inclosing about an acre of land; and being at the distance of 25 feet from the prison, the Keeper has within it a convenient garden for the growth of vegetables. There is an alarm-bell at the top of the prison. The Gaoler's house, in the centre of the building, fronts the outer gate; and has on each side a small flower-garden, 40 feet by 20, enclosed with open wood palisades. At the entrance is a room, about ten feet square, in which the Act for preserving Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are conspicuously hung up.

In this small room is an old door, with the following Inscription, engraved on a brass plate, " This door " was at the entrance of a cell in the old city gaol.
" BOCCARDO, called the Bishops' Room; wherein " the Bishops Cranmer, Ridley, and Latimer were " confined, and from whence they were taken to " suffer martyrdom in the town-ditch, behind the " houses opposite Baliol College, in the reign of " Queen Mary." Over the door are the heads of the three prelates, burnt in wood.

Here are five court-yards, each about 54 feet by 29, enclosed with wooden palisades, three for criminals, and two for male and female debtors.

The ground-floor of the prison consists of the visiting Magistrates'-room, the Gaoler's kitchen; a place called the Hall (an irregular octagon of 23 feet diameter), and two day-rooms for criminal prisoners, one for men, the other for women, with a fire-place in each, and shelves for putting their provisions on. The hall has on each side a lobby, 43 feet long and 5 feet wide, with three work-cells, 8 feet by 6, and 9 feet high to the crown of the arch; and both terminate with a cold bath, and a staircase leading to the Chapel; which is on the first story, and being over the hall, is the same size, and open to the top of the building, with a sky-light in the roof: the debtors sit below, and the felons in the gallery. On each side the chapel is a lobby, similar to

to those below, each containing eight sleeping-cells, of the same size as the workshops. Two day-rooms for debtors, about 14 feet square, with fire-places, and a sleeping-room, to which the Keeper furnishes beds at 1*s.* 6*d.* per week each. Common-side debtors sleep in cells, to which the Corporation allows a plank-bedstead, 22 inches wide and 6 feet long, a straw mat, and two blankets. The second, or attic story, contains two dark cells for refractory prisoners, two lazarettos, and 16 sleeping-cells. Two hospital-rooms, with fire-places, one for men, the other for women, 15 feet square, and a water-closet in each.

Here is a dispensary, with a door opening into the chapel; and over it is a large cistern, filled with water by a forcing-pump at the back of the gaol, which supplies the whole prison. Towels, soap, &c. are allowed by the City for prison cleanliness. Coals in the Winter, and meat and soup, are frequently sent by the considerate Magistrates; and when a prisoner is ill, the Surgeon has a discretionary power to order such food, &c. as he thinks necessary.

Here are seldom any debtors; none being sent but by a writ issuing from the City Court. The Magistrates visit in monthly rotation, and enter their remarks in a book at the Gaol.

REMARKS.

This prison, for the hundred and liberties of PENWITH, is an appurtenance to the manor of Connerton, which is the property of Lord Arundel ; who, in right of the manor, is bound to provide such prison. This right is delegated by his Lordship to his Steward, or to his Bailiff ; who gives security for the safe custody of all prisoners confined there for debt, taking the whole responsibility upon himself.

The Court of Penwith is a Court of Record, holding pleas of debt to any amount.

This

This wretched prison (which is in the stable-yard of a public-house) is 13 feet by 10 feet 5 inches, and 6 feet high, with an offensive sewer at one corner. The floor is very damp, paved with pebble-stones like the street, and without a fire-place; and the only light or ventilation it receives, is from an iron-grated aperture, two feet square, without casement or glass to keep out the cold. No court-yard. No water. In December 1801 two debtors, Nicholas Basset and Thomas Nicholas (a carpenter aged 70), were released from this miserable gaol by the Society for relief of persons confined for Small Debts, after suffering twelve months imprisonment. Their letter of thanks I have preserved. The number of debtors committed to this prison is about 10 or 12 in the year. The last pitiable inhabitant was Thomas Hoskin, farmer, of Mardon parish, aged 64. He was committed the 25th of March 1803, for a debt of 20*l.* or thereabouts, and released the 6th of May following. Here is no allowance, even of bread; so that if his friends and some neighbours had not been charitable, he must have perished with hunger. He never but once was let out for fresh air, and then only for half an hour, to speak with his children. The Gaoler lives half a mile off; and in case of sudden illness, or fire, he might have perished before relief could come. His provisions were given to him through the centre bars of the small small iron grating (five inches apart), and so the Keeper had no occasion to come near the prison. Hoskin had a bed supplied him by his friends, or he must have slept upon the scanty pittance of straw on the floor!

The Gaoler has for many years received from the butchers in the hundred of Penwith, at Christmas Market, one shilling each for every bullock killed. The amount at Christmas 1802 was as follows:

					l.	s.	d.
Marazion,	-	-	-	-	0	6	0
Penzance,	-	-	-	-	1	8	0
Redruth,	-	-	-	-	1	10	0

Manor-Pound, per annum ,				-	0	14	0
Total,					5	17	0

The Bailiff may choose any place for his prison where he can hire a room the cheapest. At my visit in 1806 I was glad to find this prison turned into a milk-cellar.

The Gaoler informs me, by letter dated January 1808, that he is not likely to have any more prisoners, "because execution is now issued against the goods, instead of the person of the debtor*."

* An example worthy of imitation. See Macclesfield, p. 359.

PETERBOROUGH; Northamptonshire.

Gaoler, William Millwood, Sheriff's Officer.

Salary, 30*l.* Fees, 6*s.* 8*d.*

Chaplain, none. But when a prisoner lies under sentence of death, the Vicar of St. John's, for the time being, is required to attend him.

Salary, none.

Allowance to debtors, none. Felons, &c. 6*d.* per day.

REMARKS.—This Gaol, for the liberty called the Soke, which contains thirty-two towns, is the property of the Marquis of Exeter. It is now also the prison of the Dean and Chapter of Peterborough. Here is one court-yard only for prisoners of all descriptions, 63 feet by 21, with a pump and sewer; and a day-room 19 feet 6 inches, by 13 feet 6.

Master's-side debtors have a spacious good room above stairs; for which, if the Keeper furnishes a bed, they pay each 2*s.* 4*d.* per week; if the debtor finds his own bed, 1*s.* per week. Common-side debtors are allowed a bedstead only and straw. No employment provided. The gaol was very clean.

PLYMOUTH; Devonshire.

Gaolers, Tho. Tatam, Geo. Pardon, Tho. Towton, who are likewise Serjeants at Mace.

Salary, 15l. per annum each.

Fees: Arrest, 15s. Discharge, 15s. 4d. No table.

Chaplain, none.

Surgeon, Mr. Richardson; makes a Bill.

Number of Debtors,	{ 1803, Oct. 9th,	-	1

Allowance. A three-penny loaf per day, on petition, weight (9th Oct. 1803 and 1806)
1 lb. 5 oz.

REMARKS.

This Gaol adjoins to, and is partly under the Town Hall. A door from hence opens into it, through which the prisoners are brought into court for trial, by a flight of seventeen steps. The three lowermost cells, 9 feet by 5, with arched roofs, have two iron-grated and opposite windows; one of which looks into the corn-market, and the other into a lobby, or passage, three feet wide, that has a grated window opening toward Bowl Hill.

The next story has two cells, about 12 feet by 10, and 7 feet high.

The story above this is called the Women's Gaol, containing two rooms with boarded floors, glazed

glazed windows, and a fire-place in each. Over these are three rooms for debtors, with fire-places ; but no firing is allowed. Their accommodation is straw in sacking on crib-bedsteads, one blanket, and two rugs. They have also the use of the attic story, which is 19 feet by 12, and 7 feet high, and likewise of the flat roof, 21 feet by 12, to take the air upon. It is enclosed by a wall 14 feet high, and a wooden chevaux-de-frise.

The prisoners hold a constant communication with passengers in the street, and, by letting down a canister or hat, receive money, &c.

The whole prison very dirty : the lowermost cells filthy in the extreme, with urine and excrement.—In the Women's Gaol there are two rooms ; yet in 1806 three female criminal prisoners were put together into one of these rooms, although one of them had a young child ; another had the itch ; and the third said that the straw in her bed had not been changed in seven months : it was indeed literally worn to dust.

The Gaolers live distant. There is no court-yard, and the prison is ill supplied with water.

The respectable Mayor of Plymouth, who politely accompanied me, said it was in contemplation to build a new prison.

Salary, 8s. per week.

REMARKS.

A court-yard, 51 feet by 47; and a day-room 11 feet by 9. Four rooms above-stairs, for which debtors pay one shilling per week each.

The County allows firing from November till May, to debtors; but not to felons.

Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are hung up. The prison very clean.

Felons have a court-yard, the same size as that of the Debtors; but no day-room; and two sleeping-cells, 9 feet by 5 feet 10, and 8 feet 10 inches high, with wood crib-bedsteads, straw, two blankets, and a rug. Both Courts are well supplied with water, PONTEFRACT; Yorkshire.

Gaoler, Francis Fryer. He lives at a distance, and keeps a public-house: is also Sergeant at Mace, and a Sheriff's Officer.

Salary. One Guinea per annum.

Fees, 13s. 4d. No Table.

Chaplain, none.

Surgeon, none.

Allowance, none whatever:

REMARKS.

Debtors are sent hither by process issuing out of the Borough Court, for any sum, great or small.

This prison is under the Town Hall. The passage to the Felons' Cells is 33 feet by 12, with a fire-place at one end. It is lighted and ventilated by three very small iron-grated windows, nearly at the top of the lofty roof: And this is called "the Room for Debtors!"

The

The one debtor whom I found here in 1802, was a shoemaker by trade. The debt for which he suffered confinement was of his son's contracting, for whom he had been security. His case was much commiserated in the town : he had constant employment, and the Corporation had humanely allowed him to work in one corner of the Town Hall, the stone passage below being too dark.

Without these indulgences he must have been in a miserable state ; especially should the Gaoler have been from home, on a caption, or other business, so as to have forgot him ; as he could neither see, nor be seen by, any person for relief.

The felons have two cells, each 12 feet by 9 ; the windows of which are toward the street, and the doors open, as I mentioned, into the debtors' room. They were very offensive, from the want of means for decent cleanliness. The roofs of the cells are of stone, arched, and lofty. Straw laid on the floor.

No firing allowed : No court-yard : No water.

Town Gaol.

Fees, Caption 3*s.* 4*d.* Discharge 6*s.* 2*d.*

Chaplain, none. Surgeon from the Parish.

Number of Debtors,  $\left\{ \begin{array}{l} 1802, \text{ March } 17\text{th}, - 5 \\ 1807, \text{ Sept. } 10\text{th}, - 2 \end{array} \right.$

Allowance. To paupers, on petition, one penny in money, and a three-penny loaf per day ; and every Wednesday 1 lb. of meat, with vegetables.

REMARKS.

This despicable gaol has but one small court-yard, 45 feet by 15, for prisoners of all descriptions ; so that, on my visit in 1802, I found the five debtors (four of them women), twenty felons, and twelve for misdemeanors, all promiscuously crowded together ! The Debtors' Ward, or day-room, opens into the court-yard, and is 17 feet by 9 feet 6. Above stairs is a sleeping-room for female debtors. The Corporation allows a wooden bedstead, with straw in sacking bed, and a rug, each. In the Keeper's house are five rooms with beds, for which those who can afford it pay 6*d.* per night. The Act and Clauses are hung up. A new Gaol was greatly wanted, and is now (1807) nearly finished.

Salary, 180*l.* of which 150*l.* paid by the them every Saturday ; besides a quantity of broken victuals, collected from the different taverns and eating-houses about the Royal Exchange. For Legacies, and other Donations, see Remarks.

REMARKS.

In a former edition of this work, I have spoken of this ruinous receptacle for debtors, felons and other criminal prisoners, as it once stood, in spite of age and debility. Its whole history is now singular ; and it must, hereafter, become incredible, whenever its locality is considered to have been in the centre and very heart of the British Metropolis !

For Master's-side debtors heretofore there were fifteen rooms betwixt the inner and the outer gates ; for the use of which each prisoner paid as per Table. For Common-side debtors, six wards within the inner gate ; two of them on the ground-floor, called the King's Ward, and the Prince's Ward ; in the former of which, Nov. 12th 1803, were seven debtors, and in the latter the same number. .

On the first floor, or story, were the Women's Ward, with two debtors ; the Middle Ward (so called, as I conceive, from its being between the women's and jews' ward) containing six debtors ; and the Jews' Ward, in which were two jew debtors, with a separate staircase leading to it.  This, let me pointedly observe, is the only prison I ever visited, in which persons of their persuasion were allowed to have the generous, humane, and just indulgence of being kept entirely distinct from the other prisoners : And very sincerely do I hope, that, in the projected change and improvement of this building, some similar allotment will be assigned, of a place of retirement, security and comfort, for debtors, or others, of their peculiar description. Reason suggests the motive for such a hint ; and Christian principle sanctions its adoption. It may easily be done, as no great space will be requisite.

with

On the second story, or floor above, were also the Queen's Ward, which had ten debtors ; and a small room adjoining to it for the sick.

The 34 debtors whom I found here at my visits, had ten wives and fifteen children living with them in the prison. All are allowed one rug each by the City, but are expected to provide their own beds.

To each ward there is a fire-place. In one of the rooms on the second floor, called the Pump-room, the debtors had the convenience of water. The court-yard here is very small, paved with flag-stones, and had water continually running through it. In the passage-court was a day-room for felons, and a small small one adjoining to it for debtors. They have iron-grated windows, opposite the public house, kept within the gates of the prison; and from which they were constantly supplied with liquor.

Men Felons slept in two "Stroug Rooms," planked with oak, and studded with large broad-headed nails, on boards raised about three feet from the ground; having each a rug allowed them: And up-stairs was another large room for men, and one for women.

The Chapel, which was below, had a gallery for Master's-side debtors; and the felons, and other criminals, were seated on forms or benches in the area beneath.

At the top of the whole building are spacious leads, where the Master's-side debtors were occasionally allowed to take the air. The Keeper, however, or Turnkey, was always with them; because the adjacent houses were thought capable of furnishing the ready means for escape.

SUCH was this prison in the year 1803; but the building being in a very dilapidated state, and in many parts shored up with props, it became at length so dangerous, not only to the lives of the prisoners, but of other persons resorting thither, that in July 1804, an Act passed, (with a degree of uncommon expedition, suited to the supposed pressure of the occasion,) for the removal of “all the Debtors and Prisoners “here in custody to the Gilt-spur Street Compter, or “to such other safe, secure, and convenient place “within the City, as should be approved of by the “Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Commons thereof, in “Common Council assembled.” It was also ordained to “be lawful for the Sheriffs, from time to “time, and until the Poultry Compter shall have “been rebuilt, or made secure, and fit, and commodious for the reception of prisoners, or another “Compter shall be provided, to receive, keep, and “detain them in such place of intended removal.” This took place in consequence without delay, and prisoners continued to be received in the Gilt-spur Street Compter till the 20th of May 1805 ; when the very crowded state of that temporary receptacle occasioned a necessity of sending all the night-charges to their old place of destination in the Poultry.

Nor was this step sufficiently adequate ; for in August 1806, the Gilt-spur Street Compter not being found large enough to contain the criminal prisoners of both Gaols, they likewise were re-consigned to the Poultry. This ruinous and tottering pile, therefore, (so long before deemed hardly tenable) has now, for above eighteen months, been made the only

only place of confinement for the criminals of the two Compters; and the Chapel of the present, being turned into a sleeping room, for want of space, no divine service is performed there.

The result is, that Gilt-spur Street Compter is now wholly appropriated to the confinement of the debtors only belonging to both prisons, until a new Poultry Compter shall be provided, or the old one rendered "safe," for we can hardly say, "fit, and commodious for the reception of prisoners."

More than three years have now elapsed: the circumstances above narrated are matter of notoriety; and yet, how little, if any thing is done!!!

The two rooms already mentioned, as fronting the public house, the one set apart for debtors, the other for felons, are at present both shut up: and the Queen's Ward, with nearly the whole East end of the prison, have been taken down, to prevent their falling.

Master's-side felons, or those who can pay for beds, sleep in strong-rooms above stairs, to which the access is from the Keeper's house.

Common-side felons have, within the wooden gate, a small court, paved with flag-stones, and a miserable room, called the Rat Hole, with an iron-grated unglazed window; and two dismal cells to sleep in, upon boards raised about a yard from the floor, with a rug or two each, according to their number,

number, but no straw. One of these cells is for four prisoners, and the other for two : Above which are two other rooms, of a similar description. The Chapel, since its conversion into a dormitory, has barrack bedsteads laid on the floor.

The women felons are shut up in a dreary place below, called the Mouse-hole. This will hold sixteen prisoners, and is fitted up in the same manner as the above are for the men. Over it is that which was formerly called the Jews' Ward for debtors, but now set apart for the sick.

Sheriffs' Court, two pence each judgment, from the Clerk of the Judgments, Mr. Higden, Curriers Hall, at Christmas.

The prisoners receive 65 penny loaves every eight weeks, as the gift of Mrs. Margaret Symcott; but which is Eleanor Gwyn's gift under that name.

N. B. Master's-side Debtors partake of no Charity, except it be particularly ordered by the donor.

The Public House within the passage leading to this prison, is rented from the City at Thirty Pounds per annum. I was constantly assured that it had nothing to do with the Compter, although I as constantly saw that the iron-grated rooms of the Debtors and Felons were supplied from thence with liquors, the windows of both being opposite to it. It is worthy of remark, that this public-house was shut up, as soon as the Poultry prisoners were removed to Giltspur Street Compter, but was opened again immediately, on their being returned hither.

Allowance. A sixpenny loaf every other day.

REMARKS.

This Gaol adjoins the County Bridewell. Besides the Keeper's apartments herè are five rooms, about 12 feet square, for debtors, to which the Keeper furnishes beds at 1*s*. 6*d*. per week ; and if two sleep together, 1*s*. each. Common-side debtors have a free ward, and straw is furnished by the County. The day-room, or hall, is 22 feet by 14, and used as a chapel. Act and Clauses both hung up : a useless tub for a bath. The Gaol seldom visited, very dirty, and out of repair. Only one court-yard, 66 feet by 46, for men and women, debtors, felons, and all descriptions of prisoners.

Allowance. Ten ounces of bread, half a pound of rice, or two pound of potatoes, to each debtor, daily, on proof of his being a pauper, and willing to work *.

* This was the allowance in 1801 : but on my subsequent visits I found it altered to a contract with the Gaoler, who receives 5*d.* per day, and 4*d.* per week each ; for which he supplies the prisoners on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, with 1½ lb. of bread ; Thursday, ½ lb. of meat, and 1 lb. of potatoes, made into soup ; Friday and Saturday, 1½ lb. of bread ; and on Sunday (for which the additional 4*d.* is allowed), with a dinner of offal meat, made into soup, with vegetables.

RE-

REMARKS.

This Gaol and Bridewell is situated in a very healthy place, a little way out of the town, and enclosed by a boundary wall, 210 feet in length, and 327 in depth; which, being about 30 feet from the prison, the Keeper has within it a very convenient garden for the growth of vegetables. The wall which encloses the buildings is 28 feet high, with a chevaux de frise about four feet from the coping. The Keeper's house, in the centre, has an alarm-bell at the top, and the visiting Magistrates' committee-room fronts the entrance-gate.

The men-debtors have two courts: The front is 69 feet by 57; the back yard 28 feet by 9, with arcades to both. They have also a hall, or common day-room, with two iron-grated glazed windows, a fire-place, seats, two tables, and proper conveniences for frugal cookery. Here are likewise two day-rooms for debtors, who maintain themselves; over which are six sleeping-rooms, fitted up with wood bedsteads, and sacking bottoms, a straw-in-sacking bed, a sheet, a blanket, and two rugs, at the county cost. Those who furnish their own beds are not charged for room-rent; and there are accommodations in the Gaoler's house for those who can pay as per Table.

Every debtor inclined to work may be employed, on application to the Keeper, and allowing him one third of his earnings. But if the debtor can procure work from without, he receives the whole of what he earns.

Women-debtors have a small garden to walk in, about 14 yards square, and a sleeping-room, 16 feet by 9, fitted up like the men's; or, if they can pay as per Table, they may be accommodated in the Keeper's house; at the back of which, in the centre of a spacious court, is the Chapel, a very neat building. The debtors are seated in the galleries, and the felons, &c. below; and all are required to attend divine service who receive the county allowance. Above the chapel are rooms furnished by the Keeper with beds, at 2s. 6d. per week each; of which the county receives 1s. 6d. There are a warm and cold bath, and four separate infirmary-rooms. The Act and Clauses conspicuously hung up: the courts well supplied with water; and the prison clean.

The worthy Chaplain is empowered to purchase books of moral and religious instruction, and distributes them at his discretion to the prisoners.

Mrs. Elizabeth Deane (who died on the 5th July 1787) widow of H. A. Deane, Esq. late of Reading, by will bequeathed *150*l. to the Corporation, upon trust to buy fire-wood for the County-gaol. Accordingly, on the 24th November 1787, with this legacy *156*l.* 17*s.* 3*d. was purchased in the 4 per cents; and the dividends arising are to be laid out in the purchase of fire-wood, "for the " sole

“ sole use and benefit of the prisoners, who shall from “ time to time be confined in the county-gaol of “ Berkshire, situate in Reading.” This is regularly received, and appropriated according to the will of the donor.

REMARKS.

This prison, for the very extensive Liberty of Richmond and Richmondshire, was formerly the property property of Lord Holderness, afterwards of Sir Thomas Dundas, and now belongs to the Duke of Leeds. It is solely appropriated to debtors.

It consists of two courts: the outer, of 29 yards by 13, is occupied by the keeper's garden: the walls but six feet high; so that those only who are detained for small sums, and in whom the gaoler places confidence, can be indulged with the use of so beneficial an accommodation.

The inner court is 21 yards by eight, and has a well in it. The prisoners have a day-room, with a large work or sleeping-room, which opens into the court. This is a free ward, for which they pay nothing, but find their own beds. There is likewise a free-ward for women in the keeper's house.

Master's-side debtors have good rooms in the house; to which the keeper furnishes bed and lodging at 2*s.* 6*d.* per week; or, if the debtor finds his own bedding, he pays 2*s.* per week.

The poorer class have beds supplied by the keeper at 1*s.* 6*d.* per week; and all have the use of the gaoler's fire. As the County allows no fuel, it is a very fortunate circumstance that the keeper is compassionate and humane, for his salary is evidently not sufficient to provide coals even for his own use.

The prison is clean. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are hung up.

Fees, 6*s.* 8*d.*

Number of Debtors, 1802, Sept. 4th, none.

Allowance, none.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is likewise the poor house ; placed in a fine situation, with a corn-field in front.

For debtors here are two good rooms, if properly ventilated, up-stairs. These are free wards, in case the debtor finds his own bed ; but if the Gaoler furnishes one, his charge is 2*s.* per week. To this prison all those debtors are consigned, who are arrested by process issuing out of the Borough Court.

For felons there are two cells, ill-ventilated, of about four yards square, with straw to lie upon. Each cell is lighted by a semicircular window, and has a small court attached to it, separated from that of the Poor-house by a wall. The criminal is let down into his cell, through a trap-door in the flooring above ; and the ladder, of seven rounds, or staves, is then drawn up !

Here is no employment. No water accessible to prisoners. Neither the Act nor Clauses hung up. The Gaol very clean.

RIPON, Yorkshire; Liberty Gaol.

Gaoler, Robert Braithwaite, Sheriff's Officer.

Salary, none. Fees, 10s. 6d.

Prisoners, Sept. 3d, 1802, none. Allowance, none.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is the property of the Archbishop, by charter from King Edward IV. His court, adjoining, is called the Court Military. The liberty includes 24 parishes. For debtors here are four good rooms in the keeper's house, and a large room for the Grand Jury, to which the ascent is by 12 stone steps. This is called the HIGH GAOL. No free ward. If the debtor furnishes his bed, he pays 1s. per week; if the keeper provides one, each debtor pays 2s. per week.

On the ground floor, called the LOW GAOL, are two cells for felons, dark, damp, and offensive; one 5 yards by  $2\frac{1}{2}$ , ventilated by a small iron-grating in the door; the other, about four yards and a half square, has a small iron-grated and glazed window. Straw on the floor. No sewer. No water. The Act and Clauses conspicuously hung up.

The court spacious and airy, being 80 yards by 50; but the wall is only six feet high, so that the prisoners have no use of it.

RIPON, Gaol and Bridewell.

Surgeon, none. When one is wanted, he is ordered by the Mayor.

Number of Debtors, Sept. 3d, 1802, none.

Allowance, none.

REMARKS.

This gaol for the Canon Fee Court, belongs to the Dean and Chapter of Ripon. It is not only a gaol for that court, but a house of correction for the Liberty. Three upper rooms for debtors, but no free ward. If the debtor finds his own bed, he pays 6*d.* a week ; if the keeper furnishes a bed, each debtor pays 1*s.* 6*d.* per week.

The Bridewell part, two rooms on the ground-floor, 8 feet by 7, one of which is totally dark, the other has no light but what is admitted through a small hole in the door. No court. No water.

Neither the Act for the Preservation of Health, nor the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are hung up. The whole prison very dirty. No religious attentions whatever.

REMARKS:

Two close offensive cells on the ground-floor, 15 feet by 5 feet 6 inches, with a bedstead in each. No sewer. No court-yard. No light, nor air, but what is admitted through the iron-grated door. No water. One room in the keeper's house (10 feet by 9), for such debtors as can pay. This prison, not being large enough at my visit in 1804, I found a woman debtor in one cell, three felons in the other cell, and a woman, with a child at her breast, and also a boy, confined in the house.

I was informed that the city intended to build a new gaol; but at my visit in 1807, I found this wretched prison continued as the sole place of confinement for debtors and felons.

REMARKS.

This prison, for debtors only, belongs to the Liberty of the Honour of Pontefract, in the dutchy-court of Lancaster. There is only one court both for men and women, about 30 yards by 14, which is not paved, and has a pump and sewer in it.

Here are two day-rooms, one about six yards, the other about five yards square. Common-side debtors have seven rooms, with beds and bedding, furnished by the Keeper, as per Table.

Master's

Master's-side debtors have six rooms, with bedding supplied by the gaoler to each prisoner also, as per Table.

There is one room up-stairs for women, with two beds in it. At the top of the house is a work-room, with spinning wheels, and looms for weaving, &c.

The average number of prisoners confined here is 36: they are principally mechanics and manufacturers from Leeds and Huddersfield. No employment is furnished; and only four were able to procure work when I was here in August 1802. Without firing in Winter, without any allowance of food, except casual charity, the distress of the poor debtors must at times be very great.

I cannot omit the FEES to be paid in this private prison at Rothwell, because some of them are high. It is much to be regretted that they are not abolished, and a proper salary allowed to the Gaoler, in lieu thereof. The document is curious.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is also the County Bridewell. In front are the gaoler's apartments. Backwards, on the ground-floor, is a day-room for debtors, 27 feet by 15; and another the same size for criminals: for the latter only 4 cells,  $7\frac{1}{2}$  feet by  $6\frac{1}{2}$ ; 2 on each side of a passage only 3 feet wide. The cells are arched with brick, and lined with oak-plank: in each a bedstead, with two blankets and a coverlet. A window in each, 3 feet by 1. In both debtors' and felons' day-rooms are 8 cupboards, with separate locks and keys, to secure their provision. Above are 9 rooms for debtors, about  $13\frac{1}{2}$  feet by  $11\frac{1}{2}$ , and a neat chapel. These are all free-wards, the County allowing to the keeper 1s. per week for room-rent; but, if he furnishes a bed, each debtor pays 1s. weekly for the use of it. In each of the debtors' rooms are an iron-bedstead, two chairs, and a table. Here are separate Courts for debtors and criminals, about 29 yards by 14: in each a pump, with excellent water, and a bathing-room, with a copper, &c. No infirmary. Men and women, debtors and felons, associate together daily. Act and Clauses hung up.

To the honour of the County, this gaol is undergoing very considerable improvements. New apartments are building for the gaoler; a separate kitchen, rooms, and court-yard, for female debtors; the like for female felons; an infirmary, with rooms above, for males and females; three penitentiary cells, each 10 feet by 6: and work-rooms for the prisoners; which, when finished, will make it very respectable.

At the front of the gaol, on an oval white marble, is this Inscription:

“ The Magistrates,
sensible of the miserable state of the antient Prison, in compassion to the Unfortunate, caused this building to be erected, in the year
M DCC LXXV.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is situate in the middle of the town. Those debtors who can pay, have very good lodging-rooms, and sometimes the use of the Town Hall, to which it adjoins, for air and exercise, there being no court-yard.

Debtors from the Courts of Conscience are confined in two very dirty, close, offensive rooms below, with an iron-grating toward the street. No fire-place. In these two rooms felons are also confined. Neither the Act for Preservation of Health, nor Clauses against Spirituous Liquors are hung up. Debtors remain here but a very short time. I have not met with one at my several visits during the last six years.

THIS LIBERTY GAOL, for twenty-two parishes, is the property of Lord Salisbury. One court-yard, 36 feet by 30, with flagged floor, a pump and sewer, and a day-room about 12 feet square. A spacious airy room for debtors, with a fire-place, but no bedding, not even straw allowed. No Infirmary. Neither the Act nor Clauses hung up. For men criminals, four dark sleeping-cells, the largest 12 feet by 8, with straw on the boarded floor, a blanket and rug. Women criminals have a large room up-stairs, with two sleeping-cells, 9 feet by 7. Under the gateway two offensive sleeping-rooms, one totally dark; the other has a post, to which refractory prisoners are chained.

REMARKS.

This gaol, for Debtors only, is part of the old castle, within the Forest of Dean. The castle is the property of the crown; and was formerly surrounded by a moat, which enclosed about a quarter of an acre of ground. It is now held by lease, as I am informed, granted to Lord Berkeley, who is chief Ranger of the Forest, and Constable of the Castle.

Over the prison gateway is a painted board, inscribed "The CASTLE INN: Spirituuous Liquors." Company resort to it as to a common ale-house.

Here is one dismal room for men debtors above stairs, 17 feet 10 inches by 16 feet eight; and another for the women; both greatly out of repair. No bedding allowed, not even straw to sleep on: but the gaoler furnishes beds, at 1s. per week, to those who can afford to pay for them.

Of the two poor objects, both sickly, whom I found here in 1806, one was Richard Jordan, a labourer, who told me he had a wife and seven children; and that, since his confinement, three of them were sent to the work-house. His debt was for rent, 6*l.* 5*s.*; Costs of prosecution, 5*l.* 11*s.* 6*d.*; Levy-pence 19*s.* 8*d.*; and bringing to gaol, 5*s.* So that the expence exceeded the debt by eleven shillings and two-pence! Such cases cannot be known to Earl Berkeley, who I understand seldom, if ever, visits the town.

This is the only gaol remaining in the respectable County of Gloucester, that, for construction and polity, is not worthy of imitation; and I have hopes that, through the humane exertions of the great presiding genius of reform here, Sir George Paul, the dreary abode in question will ere long be abolished.

No court-yard. No water, but what is brought by the gaoler.

REMARKS.

The prison in this city, called Fisherton Anger Gaol (from the name of the parish in which it stands) near a fine stream, is also one of the County-Bridewells. On the outer gate, towards the street, is painted “Pray remember the Poor Debtors’ Box.”

The debtors’ court-yard, which is separated from that of the felons by a double iron palisade, placed at such a distance as to prevent their conversing with each other, is sufficiently large to admit of the debtors’ playing at tennis, fives, &c. There is no day-room either for them or felons; but two might be very conveniently made, where the cart-house and stables now stand.

For master’s-side debtors there are four rooms in the keeper’s house; one of which, 17 feet square, has a fire-place in it, and four beds, at 2*s.* 6*d.* per week: two sleep in a bed. If any debtor has a room and bed to himself, he pays 5*s.* per week. Common-side debtors have only one room to eat and sleep in, size 20 feet by 16, formerly without bedding, or even straw: but in 1804 the County humanely allowed a straw in canvas bed, and two blankets to every poor debtor, gratis. There is a fire-place, but no firing allowed; the room was extremely dirty, not having been white-washed many years. Over this are two rooms (to which the ascent is by a stone staircase from the court-yard) set apart for infirmaries: These also have fire-places, but were equally dirty, and filled with lumber: in the smaller room women-debtors are confined. At my visit in 1807 I found this room clean, and a woman in it.

Twenty pounds a year of the Chaplain's salary are paid by Lord Weymouth, as the bequest of Thomas Thynne, Esq. who bound for the payment the manor of Wrobley and Ross, in the County of Hereford. The bequest was recognized by his Lordship in a deed of settlement, dated 2d November 1709. The Bishop of Salisbury sends every Christmas 40s. worth of meat, and 20s. worth of bread. Lord Pembroke pays a legacy of 5*l.* a year, out of the manor of Swallow Cliff in this County; part to the chaplain himself; viz. a guinea for a hat; the remainder to be by him distributed amongst every description of prisoners. One pound fifteen shillings, being the interest of 50*l.* left by Mr. Smith of Salisbury, is likewise divided amongst them, in meat purchased by the keeper. No memorial of any legacy hung up in the gaol. Every Christmas one of the turnkeys goes through the city and adjacent parts with a box: the collection, when I was here in 1802, amounted to 9*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* which is laid out by the keeper (as he informed me) in purchasing meat for the felons.

Any

Any debtor refusing to attend chapel is locked up during divine service : And it is the custom here to lock every debtor in his room from two till four on a Sunday, that the turnkey may go to church.

The chapel, on the debtor's side of the prison, has a pew for the gaoler, but no gallery : the felons sit on one side, the debtors on the other ; and the women in the middle ; in sight of, and almost close to, each other.

I could obtain no accounts of the several monies arising from donations since my visit in 1802. The Gaoler said they were lost or destroyed. From the only book extant, I copied as follows :

There does not appear to be any examination made either into receipts or disbursements in this Gaol: the whole seems to rest with the Keeper:

I cannot close this account without a few remarks on the Felons' Gaol. Their cells are very damp; the lobbies, or passages, only 3 feet wide. Young beginners and old offenders, vagrants and faulty apprentices, are alike confined here, and let out for air only one hour in the day. I happened to be there during that hour in January 1802: it was a heavy fall of snow, sleet, and rain, and most extremely cold; yet the prisoners, (17 felons and 7 for misdemeanors,) rushed out into the midst of it, eagerly gasping for a mouthful of fresh air. Some of them were cruelly ironed with fetters called bolts and sheers: With the former the prisoner cannot move either foot four inches before the other; but the latter having a joint in the middle, the prisoner can walk with difficulty, though his feet are kept both night and day thirteen inches asunder.

This wretched gaol is now (1807) presented: the County intend to build a new one; and it is to be hoped that Rules and Orders will be not only established, but enforced.

SCARBOROUGH; Yorkshire.Town Gaol.

Chaplain, none; nor any religious attentions whatever.

Surgeon, none. When one is wanted, he is paid by the town.

Number of Debtors, 1802, Aug. 28th, - 2.

Allowance, none, except certificated paupers; and then, the same as the poor of their respective parishes.

REMARKS.

This Gaol is over the Newborough Gate, at the entrance into the town. The apartments below are occupied by washerwomen, employed by the gentry visiting this place, and the small court-yard is used to dry clothes in; so that the debtors have no use of it. The only place they have to walk in is a lobby, about 9 yards long, and 4 feet wide.

Debtors have four well-ventilated and airy sleeping-rooms, to three of which the keeper furnishes a bed, at 3*d.* per night each: the fourth is for those who find their own bed, and pay 6*d.* a week. No water water accessible to the prisoners, nor any to the gaol, but what is bought. The Felons' prison is upon the ground-floor, on the other side the gateway, and consists of four cells, about 9 feet square and 7 feet high : two of these are dungeons, four steps below the ground, with straw on plank bedsteads, very damp and dirty, but whitewashed while I was there. The iron-grating of the farthest dungeon is just over an open and very offensive drain. A small court for the felons might be made from the waste ground adjoining : and the common sewer's being arched over would make this part of the prison more healthy.

I copied the following Rules and Orders, which were hung up in the gaol ; viz.

General Quarter Sessions of the Peace, held in and for the Borough of Scarbro' and Liberties thereof, in the Common Hall of the said Borough, on Tuesday 3d April, in the 6th year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George II. and so forth.

GAOLER'S FEES

Settled in pursuance of the late Act of Parliament :

	s.	d.

6s. 8d. and to the Turnkey, 1s.       -       -	7	8
For the first week's diet of all the prisoners,	-	0
		And

And for all further time 3s. 6d. a week, or as the prisoner and gaoler can agree : but the gaoler is to permit the prisoner to provide his own meat after the first week, if he pleases. For lodging, if the gaoler find bed, bedding, and sheets, for the first night 6d. and for every other night 3d. If two in a bed, 3d. each : and every prisoner shall have the liberty of finding the same, if he think proper. The gaoler shall have the liberty, if he see occasion, to have two beds in each room, but no more. Every prisoner committed from the bar by the Bailiff's shall pay the gaoler 5s. and the turnkey 1s. Every person committed on suspicion of felony, or misdemeanour, 5s. and to the turnkey 1s. For allowing every supersedeas, in every action, 6s. 8d. For allowing every writ of Habeas Corpus, besides conduct-money to be paid and allowed, according to the distance from the said gaol to the place where the body is to be removed, 6s. 8d.

Perused, examined, and allowed by us, Henry Cotterill, and William Batty, esqrs. Bailiffs of Scarbro'.

The Clauses against Spirituous Liquors were hung up, and underneath them was written :

“Ordered, by the Bailiffs, that the gaoler do provide fresh water for the prisoners every morning, and that the same be placed in such convenient part of the gaol as the prisoners may have access to. That such of the prisoners as are unable to work, or cannot find employment, and have no other means of subsistence, shall, on application to the magistrates, be supplied with provision from the poor-house.

Gaoler, Godfrey Fox. Salary, none.

Fees, in the High Court, for commitment, and turnkey, 1*l.* 5*s.* In the Low Court, 6*d.*

Garnish, 2*s.* 6*d.* for High Court debtors; Low Court debtors 1*s.* 2*d.* This is expended in coals, candles, and soap, for their mutual benefit.

Chaplain, none; nor any religious attention paid to the prisoners.

Surgeon. Mr. Moorhouse attends the sick in prison, as surgeon for the overseers of the poor, from whom he has a salary.

Number of Debtors,	High Court.	Low Court.

1802, Aug. 14th,	- - 5.	- - - 17.
1805, Mar. 30th,	- - 7.	- - - 15.

Allowance. None, but casual relief from the overseers of the poor to those who cannot work; in which case the High-Court debtors have 3*s.* and Low-Court 2*s.* per week.

REMARKS.

This gaol, for the liberty of Hallamshire, is the property of the Duke of Norfolk, Chief Bailiff of that liberty, liberty, and lord of the manor of Sheffield : It is for debtors only, and those of two descriptions, commonly called the HIGH COURT and LOW COURT prisoners.

The HIGH COURT prisoners are detained for debts above ten pounds, by process from the courts at Westminster, directed to the chief bailiff of the liberty of Hallamshire, &c. ; and are entitled to the same legal privileges as the prisoners in York Castle. They have a day-room, about five yards square, which has two windows that look into the street : and four rooms up-stairs, two for men, and one for women to sleep in : the fourth is a work-shop. The keeper furnishes beds at  $10\frac{1}{2}d.$  per week each ; and two sleep in a bed.

The LOW COURT prisoners are detained for debts under 40s. by virtue of a process from the court-baron of the manor of Sheffield, held under a particular act of parliament obtained for that purpose, directing that three months' imprisonment shall discharge the prisoner from debt and costs, if the same be not sooner paid or satisfied. They have two rooms, about 5 yards by 4 each, with fire-places : the iron-grated windows look into the court. In these they work and sleep, which makes them filthy beyond description : and four rooms were lately added at the top of the house, one of which is for the women at night. Prisoners find their own straw and firing. The court-yard has a damp earth floor, and is 36 feet by 18. It is the only one, and here the sexes associate together. At my visit on Sunday, 15th August 1802, the Low Court prisoners were busy sifting cinders in it ; the ashes of which they sell for three shillings per load. There were then about two cart loads, which were to be fetched away next day. On conversing with the civil and communicative Gaoler, I found that their debts were frequently for the non-payment of alchouse-scores ; and this I have observed to be the case in most large manufacturing towns, where idleness and drunkenness prevail. It would operate a good effect, if, in Bills for the recovery of small debts, there were a clause to prohibit arrests for those contracted in public-houses. The actions entered in Sheffield Court every three weeks are on an average three hundred ! and, the gaol being small, it frequently happens that there are more warrants against the persons of defendants than can be executed between court-day and court-day.
and

Here is no difference in the length of time of commitment between one penny damages and 39s. 11d. ; to either of which the costs are always added, and are of the same amount ; viz. 1l. 3s. 6d. on trial, and 17s. 6d. on enquiry.

Water is accessible to all during the day, and to fill their pitchers at night.

SHEFFIELD Town Gaol.

The Lobbies under the Town-hall.

Three dark cells, which open into a narrow passage, the largest eight feet square, and six feet high. Each door has an aperture of six inches diameter. Plank bedsteads with straw. An offensive sewer in the corner of each cell. When the quarter-sessions are held at this town, offenders are locked up a night or two in this prison. I went into it (though in day-time) with a lighted candle.

Prisoners, 14th August, 1802, none.

SHEFFIELD GAOL,

for the Manor of ECCLESHALL,

the property of Earl Fitzwilliam, built 1722.

Gaoler, William Needham. Salary, none.

Fees, on discharge, 6*d.* · Garnish, 1*s.* 2*d.*

Allowance and Regulations, the same as for the Low Court debtors in the town.

A court, 18 yards by 15, with a pump: a day-room, about 14 yards square, in which debtors work; and two lodging-rooms, 6 yards by 3, with two large glazed windows. The rooms are partitioned off, to receive six debtors, singly, who find their own beds. The average number of prisoners here is five: There were none at my visit in August 1802.

Salary, 300*l.* for gaol and bridewell.

Fees, as per Table : But the Under-sheriff demands a fee of 7*s.* 6*d.* upon discharge of a common writ ; and from those under execution 1*s.* in the pound, if less than 100*l.* if above 100*l.* then 6*d.* in the pound.

Garnish. Abolished.

Duty. Prayers on Thursday, and Sermon on Sundays, Good Friday, and Christmas-day.

Surgeon, Mr. William Thomas.

Salary, 50*l.* for debtors and felons.

Number of Debtors,	{	1800, May 2d,	-	23
		1802, Nov. 3d,	-	12
		1803, Sept. 11th,	-	11

Allowance. Debtors, 1 lb. 8 oz. of wheaten bread, made by the female convicts, and baked in the gaol. When wheat is at 11*s.* the strike (or bushel), a loaf of 1 lb. 8 oz. costs two-pence half-penny.

RE-

REMARKS.

This gaol, which is likewise the house of correction, is near the castle, and was first inhabited 1793. The boundary-wall encloses two acres of ground, and is 16 feet high. The entrance in front, is called the Porter's Lodge, and over the gate is a bust of Mr. HOWARD. In the door are two apertures to receive donations, viz. "To Debtors, in a state of Industry," and "To Prisoners in a state of Reformation." The ground-floor, on the left, has the Turnkey's apartments, and his sleeping-rooms are above. On the right hand is the Lazaretto, a hot and cold bath, with an oven to fumigate and purify prisoners' clothes, which are taken from them on admission, and the gaol uniform put on.

Up-stairs are two reception-rooms, a room for the irons, and a sitting-room (with a fire-place) for the Clergyman, where he performs his last offices to persons under sentence of death, who suffer on the flat roof above.

The court fronting the Keeper's house is about 20 yards square, and the inner Turnkey's lodge adjoins. Master's-side debtors have a court-yard 36 feet square, a day-room 14 feet by 12, and eleven sleeping-rooms with boarded floors. They sleep single, and pay 4*s.* per week for County furniture ; but if they find their own beds, 2*s.* per week.

Common.

Common-side debtors have a court-yard 70 feet by 39, and a day-room 20 feet by 14, fourteen sleeping-cells 7 feet by 6, with arched roofs and boarded floors; to which the County allows a bedstead, a hair mattress, a pair of sheets, one blanket, and a rug in Summer, and two blankets in Winter. No firing allowed, except the debtor is very poor; but in severe weather they have frequently coals given them, the cost of which is only 7*d.* per hundred weight.

And no greater or other fee shall be taken by the governor from or on account of any prisoner."

The name of every prisoner who does not attend Divine Service is inserted in a book kept for that purpose. A manufacturer is employed by the County, with a salary of 40*l. per annum*, who furnishes work, and deducts one-third of the prisoners' earnings, which is paid to the County-treasurer: but, if the Debtor can have the means of labour brought to him from without the prison, he receives the whole of his earnings. Female debtors have a court-yard, and eight sleeping-rooms, and are under the same regulations as the men.

Here is a detached Infirmary, with separate courts, two day-rooms, and four sleeping-rooms, for male and female sick prisoners, where extra food and wine are provided by direction of the surgeon. There are no sleeping-cells on the ground-floor.

The Chapel is in the centre of the building. The several classes enter at different doors, and are separated by partitions. Debtors are in the gallery.

All the cells are well ventilated, and divided by passages 6 feet wide. The whole prison is amply supplied with spring water from a pump, and with river water thrown by a forcing engine into a large reservoir at the top. There are several work-rooms, for men and for women, with store-house, store-rooms, bake-house, bread-room, and wash-house. A watchman with his dog, goes round the prison, and cries the hour.
 for

There is a committee-room for the Visiting Magistrates, who are appointed at the Sessions. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously hung up.

The whole prison is very clean, and has excellent Rules and Orders for its good government ; some of which, however, do not appear to have been yet put in execution. For instance, I never heard of any School within the prison, nor of any prisoners' being instructed by a School-master there.

When I attended divine service in September 1803, all the prisoners were present ; their behaviour silent, and they were attentive to a very impressive discourse.

The employment here consists in making shoes, slippers, gloves, and bottle-stands. There are looms likewise for weavers, and the iron machinery for a corn-mill ; but, for want of a pair of mill-stones, it is useless.

SOUTHAMPTON; *Hampshire.*Gaoler, Jeffery Truss ; Serjeant at Mace.

Allowance. Six pence a day to paupers ; and a bushel of coals per week, for the whole prison.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, for debtors only, is a part of the old tower, at the lower end of the town. Here is a small court-yard, 46 feet by 36, well supplied with water, not paved, and ducks, fowls, &c. are kept in it. Two rooms with glazed windows and fire-places, 16 feet by 12 each, to which the Corporation allows a wood bedstead, woollen mattress, two blankets, and a rug. A room at the top of the tower is furnished by the Keeper at 2*s.* 6*d.* per week. Act and Clauses not hung up.

Saturday 3 lbs. of bread, and  $\frac{1}{2}$  lb. of cheese. Sunday, meat and vegetables. N.B. Debtors who receive the Sixpences from their plaintiffs have no County Allowance.

REMARKS.

This prison is surrounded by a boundary-wall, inclosing three acres of ground. In the centre (detached by a neat garden, of 30 yards by 14) is the gaoler's house, through the hall of which lies the passage to every part of the prison. On the ground floor is the Visiting Magistrates' Room, the Gaoler's parlour and office, and a small room, used by the debtors to see their families and friends, no one being permitted to go into their day-room, or court-yard. Behind the keeper's house is the inner court, 65 feet by 40, which leads to the men debtors' day or mess-room, 30 feet by 26, fitted up with two fire-places, coppers, &c. for the purposes of frugal cookery; and on each side are eight small work-rooms, and two narrow spaces, or slips, where the relations and friends of the prisoners are allowed to see them at stated times.

Men debtors have a spacious court, 56 yards by 30, the greater part of which they are allowed to cultivate for their own use, and there are arcades for their accommodation in wet weather. Near this are fifty sleeping-cells, each 9 feet by 8 feet 6, with arched roofs, well ventilated, and divided by passages, or lobbies, 6 feet wide. To each cell there is an iron bedstead, a straw mat, three blankets, and a coverlet, allowed by the County.

Female debtors have a separate court, 30 yards by 8, a day-room 24 feet by 15, and over it a sleeping-room, of the same size. They have the same allowance of bedding as the men, but their bedsteads are wood, with sacking bottoms.

On the first story is a neat chapel, properly pewed off, to separate the sexes and the classes.

In the keeper's house, on the second story, are two large rooms set apart for the sick.

There are about three acres of ground belonging to the gaol without the walls, which is cultivated with vegetables, for the use of the prison, by those who are sent to the House of Correction. Many parts of this gaol are very damp : the considerate Magistrates humanely allow to the men debtors' day-room 2 cwt. of coals per week, from the 1st October to the 1st April, and 1 cwt. per week the remainder of the year : but, if the number of debtors exceed 20, they are allowed the above quantities to each fire-place in the room. Female debtors have 1 cwt. per week throughout the year.

The RULES and ORDERS (which are excellent) direct that a Journal shall be kept by the Chaplain and Surgeon, stating the times of their attendance, and observations ; and books are provided for that purpose : But, I was sorry to observe a total neglect of attention to this very important branch of duty, no such entries having been made in the books for ten years past.

It appears, that on the 11th of October, 1796, there was a balance of 171*l.* 5*s.* remaining in the hands of the County Treasurer, out of a sum which had been subscribed for the benefit of the unfortunate prisoners, at the time a fever raged in the old gaol : on which day Mr. Wright, the late County Treasurer, bought 300*l.* 3 per cent. Consols, in the name of Mr. Hinckley, the Clerk of the Peace. The dividends thereon have been regularly received, and applied to the use of the prisoners, under the direction of the visiting Magistrates.

The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously hung up. So small a portion of the court-yards is paved, as to prevent this gaol from being kept properly clean.

RE-

REMARKS.

This noble building does honour to the County of Surry. It is situate in an open and airy part of Horsemonger-lane, in the Borough of Southwark. The boundary-wall encloses about three acres of ground : The Sessions-house adjoins it, to which there is a communication from the prison, and a housekeeper appointed to keep it clean, with a salary, and apartments for her use.

The Gaol, which is likewise the County Bridewell, was first inhabited the 3d of August 1798, and has in front the Turnkey's Lodge, on the ground-floor of which is a day-room ; another room with a cold bath ; and a third is the wash-house, with an oven, &c. Over these are four rooms, 18 feet by 15, for the turnkeys to sleep in ; and at the top of all is a spacious lead-flat, where criminals are executed. After passing through the lodge, an avenue paved with Yorkshire-stone leads on to the keeper's house, which is in the centre of the prison, and from which the several court-yards are inspected.

For master's-side debtors there is a court-yard paved with flag-stones, 75 feet by 30, enclosed by handsome iron-palisades, so that a thorough air is admitted : and arcades, paved in the same manner, 31 feet by 26, under which to walk in wet weather. Close to these is a day-room, 27 feet by 20, with a fire-fire-place ; and they have likewise sixteen sleeping-rooms, each 14 feet 6 inches by 9 feet 3, with an iron-grated and glazed window. For these they pay as per Table here subjoined, which I found printed, and properly put up on the master's side, for general inspection.

Common-side debtors have also a court-yard with arcades, a day-room, and twelve sleeping-rooms, the same as those on the master's-side : but they sleep in hammocks, and find their own bedding.

Women debtors have a court about 20 feet square, a day-room 18 feet square, and four sleeping-rooms, of the same size as the men's ; to which they also find their own bedding, and pay nothing.

Pumps are fixed in all the Courts : Thames-water is laid on ; and at the top of the four corners of the gaol is a reservoir, each containing about 800 gallons of water, supplied from a well by a forcing pump. There are four spacious airy rooms, each 25 feet by 16, set apart as infirmaries, fitted up with flock-beds, blankets, pillows, and rugs ; and adjoining to them are court-yards, 30 feet square, for convalescents to walk in. Also two rooms for the nurses ; another for the surgeon ; and a fourth with a warm-bath.

The Chapel is a very neat building, where prisoners are seated in their different classes ; and all are required to attend divine service who receive the County allowance.

The

The lobbies are well ventilated, 6 feet 3 inches wide. Rules and Orders excellent. The Magistrates visit in rotation, and enter their remarks in a book. The Act for Preservation of Health, and the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, conspicuously hung up. The whole prison is remarkably clean.

I beg leave here to pay my acknowledgments to the Right Honourable Lord Leslie, Sir Thomas Turton, Bart. M. P. for the Borough, and the Visiting Magistrates, who did my worthy friend Dr. Lettson and myself the honour to accompany us over every part of this excellently well-regulated gaol. Its cleanliness and good order I have noticed in the first and second editions of this work; and to these, probably, may be ascribed its healthiness: twelve persons, only, having died by illness since it was first inhabited in August 1798, although the average number of prisoners in it has been annually, from 150 to 200.

REMARKS.

Over the gate is this Inscription:

“ There are several sorts of Work for the poor of “ this Parish of St. Margaret's, Westminster, as “ also the County, according to Law: and for such,
 “ as will beg, and live idle, in this City and Liberty
 “ of Westminster. Anno 1655.”

At the entrance, on the left hand, is a room, in which are deposited the bonnets and other articles of of clothing, taken from the women prisoners at their coming in.

The room over the gateway is called Newgateward, and contains five beds, for the use of which each prisoner pays 6*d.* a night : two sleep in a bed. If a prisoner has a bed to himself, he pays 1*s.* per night. The turnkey's sleeping-room adjoins.

Almost the whole area of this prison is engrossed by the Keeper's melon and cucumber garden ; and on the sides of it are four narrow court-yards. The first of these, for Felons, has a day-room, with a fire-place ; and two rooms, which are free wards, with barrack-beds, and one or two blankets each, as the weather is mild or severe. The doors open into the court-yard, and the iron-grated windows are not glazed.

The second, called the Sick Court, is very small : the door of the men's infirmary opens into it : the room is about 20 feet by 11, and 6 feet 8 inches high, with a fire-place, and two iron-grated windows not glazed ; barrack-beds, straw-mattress, and two or three blankets each. The sick must suffer a continual disturbance in this miserable room.

The third court is for Vagrants, and has a day-room and two sleeping-rooms on the ground-floor ; one of which is about 25 feet by 12, and the other 18 feet by 12. Both have barrack-beds, and in the winter, blankets are allowed.

The

The fourth court is for men debtors, and those who are committed for assaults or bastardy. Three sleeping rooms open into this court, which are free wards, with barrack-beds, loose straw, and a blanket each: those who can afford to pay 6d. a night for a bed, sleep in a part of the gaol, called the Old Bridewell; in which there are two rooms, with three beds each.

Women debtors have the narrow passage which leads to the keeper's house to walk in; which being separated from the felons' court by a low paling only, they can at all times converse with them; and at my visit (11th April 1805) the two debtors were in the felons' court. They have a small day-room, with a fire-place: those who cannot afford to pay for a bed, sleep in the solitary cells, and a blanket is allowed to each.

For faulty apprentices there are four solitary cells on the ground-floor, about 9 feet 7 by 6 feet 9, and 6 feet 9 inches high: the upper and lower door-panels are iron-latticed, and open into a lobby paved with flagstones, about 3 feet 11 inches wide, which separates them from the other parts of the prison. Above these are four other cells, with iron-grated windows and wooden blinds, to prevent their looking into the courts. A blanket is allowed to each prisoner.

Here is plenty of water at all times, and the whole prison is washed twice a week: mops, brooms, pails, &c. being allowed by the considerate Magistrates.

Women

Women have a comfortable room up-stairs, with a fire-place and two glazed windows, at the North East corner, set apart for an Infirmary; with barrack-beds, straw mattress, and two or three blankets each: and adjoining are two sleeping-rooms, with glazed windows and two beds each, at 3s. 6d. per week.

The Chaplain's access to his desk is from the top of the staircase; and he has a full view of the two rooms where men and women assemble at divine service. A better chapel is much wanted.

The old GATE-HOUSE, Westminster, (a prison, the property of the Dean and Chapter,) having been taken down, another prison is erected in Tothill-fields, joining to the Bridewell, first inhabited in 1789. It is now entirely appropriated to the women, and has two spacious airy courts, about 19 yards by 14 each, and three rooms for dressing provisions, &c. about 15 feet by 10. To these courts there are four free wards, near 20 feet square, with barrack-beds; and one blanket each is allowed during the winter. Seven chaldrons and a half of coals are allowed to both prisons; besides which coals have occasionally been sent by the Dean and Chapter, from a legacy of Mrs. Letitia Cornwallis. Her will bears date 13th December 1731, and through the politeness of Mr. Gell, I was favoured with the following extract.

“ 1797, June 9th. Received at the Bank eight half-years dividends of 5*l.* 7*s.* 7*d.* each, ending 5th Jan. 1797, on 358*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* three per Cent. Consols, being the produce of the legacy of 100*l.* given by the will of Letitia Cornwallis, spinster, dated 13th December 1731, the interest whereof to be for ever applied, on the 7th of November, either in discharge of, or for other relief of such poor prisoners in the Gatehouse-prison, Westminster, as the Dean of Westminster for the time being shall think fit. Which said sum of 358*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* was transferred by the Accountant General of the High Court of Chancery (by order of the said court) to the Dean of St. Peter's, Westminster, and the Chapter of the same Church, who, by deed-poll, under their common seal, dated 25th January 1786, acknowledged to have accepted the said stock, in trust for the purposes mentioned in the said will; which said sum of 358*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* standing in the transfer books under the title of the Dean of St. Peter's, Westminster, &c. and under the letter P. occasioned divers searches, before the same was found: And therefore, in order to prevent the like trouble in future, it was transferred, on the 2d of June 1797, by Anthony Gell, Esq. the present Receiver, by power of Attorney from the present Dean and Chapter of Westminster, from and out of the name of the Dean of St. Peter's, Westminster, into the name of the Dean of the Collegiate Church of St. Peter, Westminster, and the Chapter of the same Church.”

“ 1804, July 20th. Received half year's dividend on 458*l.* 15*s.* 3*d.* one hundred pounds stock having been bought 22d January 1804.”

It is in contemplation to enlarge the Bridewell from some waste ground adjoining: But I would submit to the magistrates, if it might not be better to build a new one, so, as that the keeper's house may have a command of the different courts, &c.

Master's-

Master's-side debtors have a court-yard 82 feet by 37 ; a day-room 20 feet by 16 ; and nine lodging-rooms about 10 feet square, for which they pay as per Table. Above stairs are fifteen rooms, of about the same size, which open into passages only three feet wide.

Common-side debtors have a court 82 feet by 37 ; a day-room about 14 feet square, and up-stairs three sleeping-rooms, furnished with chaff-beds, for which they pay nothing. Women debtors have two rooms, each 16 feet by 14.

The chapel is so partitioned off, that the sexes are out of sight of each other; and all the prisoners attended divine service when I was there (21st August 1803). Under the chapel are two work-rooms, in one of which the men weave, and eight looms were employed: in the other, the women spin, and mend and wash for the men prisoners. Here is a warm and cold bath.

Formerly, the debtors, in common, received 30*s.* a year, the rent of a house in the town; and from another legacy eight three-penny loaves twice in every month. No memorial of either is hung up in the gaol; and I learnt that the legacy of 30*s. per annum* has been discontinued many years.

The Act for the preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously hung up; and the whole prison is very clean.

REMARKS.

The prison is in a very dilapidated state, and filthy in the extreme. There are five rooms in the Keeper's house, three of which are totally dark: The gaoler, paying window-tax, has stopped them up.

No court-yard; no water; no sewer; no Table of Fees. The Act for preserving Health, and Clauses, not hung up. Seven years since the gaol was white-washed. The straw allowed for bedding was worn to dust upon the floor.

Debtors from the Hundred of Bradford are brought here. The gaoler told me that two prisoners had been released from hence by the Insolvent Act, after a confinement, in such a place, for two years!

REMARKS.

This is a prison of the Baron Court, for the Liberties and Manors of Stepney and Hackney, and is private property. It consists of four rooms fronting the high-road, two on each story, of about fifteen feet by thirteen, and eight feet high. Every debtor who sleeps in any of these rooms, pays to the keeper for the use of a bed, one shilling the first night, and sixpence per night afterwards. The court-yard is 40 feet by 20, in which is the men's day-room, of 12 feet by 10. From the court is an ascent by a wooden staircase to a gallery; in which are two sleeping-rooms, and the women's day-room, of equal size with that below. These latter are free wards.

In

In this prison are confined those whose debts are above two pounds, and not exceeding five pounds.

By statute of 21 Geo. III. intituled “ An Act for “ diminishing the Fees payable, and altering the “ Mode of proceeding, in the Court of Record within “ the Manors of Stepney and Hackney,” &c. imprisonment is fixed for a time, not exceeding one week for every pound of the total debt and costs : by which salutary statute no prisoner can be confined here for more than five weeks. The court is held every Thursday ; and a regular general court once in six weeks.

☞ The very excellent mode of adjusting the duration of custody, and diminution of debt, in this gaol, is worthy the attention of considerate Magistrates, and particularly of those in agricultural counties ; where a debtor is frequently committed at the commencement of the Hay or Corn Harvest : By which means the country is denied his labours, when most essentially requisite, and husbandmen, in too many instances, are forced to pay exorbitant wages for getting in the produce of their lands. Nor is this the only grievance. It too frequently happens that the family of the debtor, during his confinement, must inevitably fall as a burden upon their parish ; and thus an increase of the Poor’s Rate is occasioned, which it is matter of surprize should have so long been suffered to escape the vigilance of the Magistracy.

REMARKS.

To prevent encroachments by the construction of other buildings, the ground purchased by the county extends about twelve feet beyond that which is occupied by the gaol. The prison is enclosed on three sides by a low fence wall, ten feet high ; in the centre of which, on the East, or principal front, is the entrance. This is rendered very conspicuous by a noble and spacious gate, of the Tuscan order, constructed from a design of Vignola at the Farnese Gardens' gate, or entrance into the Campo Vaccini ; and adorned with rustick columns and pilasters, supporting a handsome entablature.

On a Tablet over the entrance is the following Inscription :

“ THIS COUNTY GAOL was erected in the Forty-fifth Year of the Reign of His Majesty, KING GEORGE THE THIRD, and in the Year of our Lord, MDCCC V.
MONEYPENNY, Architect.”

At sixty feet distance on each side of the gate, are rustic piers, connected with the gate by an iron railing. The principal front of this building is 220 feet in length, and is designed to form three advanced structures. The chief entrance is in the middle structure ; and on each side are the publick entrances entrances to the Turnkey's rooms and the courtyard adjoining.

The spaces between the advanced structures are ornamented with niches, finished in a style of chaste simplicity, and the angles are embossed with rustic quoins. The parts of which all are composed, are large, few in number, and of a bold relief, characteristic of the purpose of the building.

Over the niches are moulded square compartments, which give a simple and easy relief to the space between the crowning of the niches and the beautiful Doric cornice; which is a grand and striking object, imitated from the theatre of Marcellus at Rome, excepting in the dentil band, which here remains uncut, and the soffit of the corona is divested of its ornaments.

The keeper's house, a large and convenient dwelling, is in the centre of the building; and affords from each floor an entire communication, by arcades, all round the prison, without the necessity of passing the courts. These arcades are likewise very commodious for the debtors; giving them an easy and open avenue to their apartments, and a great accommodation for walking and exercise in bad weather.

The ascent to the floors of these arcades, which are paved with flag-stones, is by stone staircases, guarded by iron-railing. Over each arcade, on the master-

master-debtors' side, are six sleeping-rooms, 16 feet square, and nearly 11 feet high; and a kitchen or mess-room 24 feet by 22, with a large fire-place, dining table, shelves, and cupboards for provisions. They have also two rooms on the ground floor, of the same size; one of which is a day-room, and the other for the debtor to see his friends in. The bed-rooms are furnished with a wood lath bedstead, straw mattress, feather-bed, blanket, sheets, and rug, at 2*s.* 6*d.* each per week.

The court for common-side debtors is separated from that of the master's side by iron-railing, and of equal size, viz. 84 feet by 74. They have likewise three floors of arcades, that lead to their sleeping-rooms; three of which are on the ground-floor; three on the first-story, with a mess-room, the same as on the master's side; and three on the attic-story, with an infirmary. To these sleeping-rooms, which are similar to those on the master's side, the county allows a straw-in-sacking-bed, a blanket, and coverlet gratis.

In the women-debtors' court, which is 80 feet by 35, and situated on the South side of the prison, are four spacious rooms, of like construction with those for the other debtors. One of these rooms is furnished by the keeper, at 2*s.* 6*d.* per week; and the others have a straw-in-sacking bed, blanket, and coverlet, at the County's expence. Every room has a Bath-stove grate, an iron shovel and poker, and a coal-box, to hold two bushels: the recess on each side the chimney has a shelf 18 inches wide, for placing their provisions, &c. All the debtors' rooms are boarded, with each a sash window, 5 feet 6 by 3 feet 6, and a grated unglazed aperture over the door, 3 feet by 18 inches. This court has no arcades: a door out of it communicates with the chapel.

Here is a reservoir, filled by an hydraulic pump, from a well of fine water adjoining; which being judiciously placed in the centre of the men debtors' courts, is both convenient and ornamental, forming an elegant arcade beneath the cistern. Within this arcade are placed two large stone troughs, with each a pipe and cock, so that the debtors may enjoy all the use of a constant supply of water under cover from the reservoir. Pipes are also laid on to the keeper's house, and to the court assigned for women debtors.

The various sewers are placed at the end of the several wings of the Prison, on the outside of the staircases, the vaults of which are 60 feet deep. There are also pens adjoining the sewers, for ashes, &c. forming together little buildings, equally useful and ornamental.

The court-yards here are so extensive and open, that the paving of them entirely with flag stone was

was thought unnecessary ; yet, in order that prisoners may enjoy the free use of them, spacious foot-paths of stone are laid out in various directions, and the intermediate parts are covered with fine gravel.

It is to be regretted, that when this addition was made to the prison, a new Chapel also was not built. The present old one is 28 feet by 25, and 12 feet high ; therefore low and inconvenient. And although the sexes are separated in the area of the building, they sit on benches, or forms, very near to, and in full view of each other.

Debtors have the option of attending Divine Service : but, if they neglect, are locked up in their rooms till it is over. The Rev. John Lee, a Romish Priest, gratuitously attends those prisoners who are of the same persuasion.

Underneath the Chapel is a large store-room, in which are deposited the fuel, &c. granted for the use of the prisoners.

The day-rooms have coals allowed, with kettles and other utensils for cooking. Common-side debtors have about forty bushels of coals for Winter consumption.

Within the Gaol is hung up an Account of Fees, which, after a recital of the preamble of the statute enjoining it, is as follows :

No employment has hitherto been provided by the county : but such prisoners as are of handicraft trades trades are permitted to procure work from without, and have the whole of their earnings.

Saint Cross's Hospital Bread, called the Dole, is a small loaf, given to each of the prisoners at six times in the year: viz. Easter Eve, Whitsun Eve, May the 3d, August the 10th, Oct. the 31st, and Christmas Eve. Upon sending thither the number of prisoners in custody, on each of those days, the same number of loaves is put by, and they are sent for the day following.

The prisoners are obliged to wash their hands and face every morning: they have clean linen once a week, and are shaved twice weekly.

Mops, brooms, brushes, soap, and all other requisites for prison cleanliness, are provided for the whole gaol by the considerate Magistrates; and every prisoner must sweep his room, and wash it daily in Summer, and weekly in Winter.

Here is no gaol uniform provided; but if a prisoner be ragged or filthy, he is furnished with suitable clothing. A large tub is provided as a bath.

No Rules and Orders. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors, are conspicuously fixed up.

 All prisoners are prudently discharged in a morning, and have money given them according to the distance from home.

The

The worthy keeper is humane, intelligent, and attentive : and the prison remarkably clean.

Through the exertions of that active and excellent Magistrate, Sir Henry St. John Mildmay *, Bart. M. P. for the County, a fund has been established here, for the relief of those poor debtors, who are unable to sue for their sixpences, superse-deas, &c. and likewise for giving them the pecuniary assistance before-mentioned, to enable them to return to their respective homes.

If similar Institutions were set on foot throughout England and Wales, it would be productive of great advantage to the helpless prisoner, both whilst under durance, and at his enlargement : in Wales particularly, where many poor debtors are confined for three or four pounds, and the expence of suing for their alimment is greater than the original debt.

* My worthy friend, and able coadjutor in an examination into, and report of the state of Convicts in Portsmouth and Langston Harbours, drawn up 16th March, 1802 ; and to whom it will give great pleasure to be informed, that since the new system has been adopted, the Convicts are in every respect more healthy and comfortable,

REMARKS.

This prison is a neat brick building, erected in 1800, during the Mayoralty of Joseph Barker, Esq. Debtors arrested on process issuing out of the Borough Court may be here confined for any sums great or small ; but at my several visits I have not found any in custody.

A court-yard, paved with flag-stone, of about 20 feet by 14, and two rooms about 13 feet square and 9 feet high, were at first set apart for debtors.

L L

They

They are now, however, chiefly appropriated, the one to petty offenders, and the other to female criminals, or deserters.

The felons have also two rooms on the opposite side of the building, and below stairs, opening into their two paved court-yards, and of the same dimensions as those before mentioned. The four rooms, which have all of them boarded floors, with glazed windows and fire-places, are ventilated by iron gratings over each door, and a small aperture in the doors, of 9 inches by 7: and to each room the city allows a straw-in-sacking bed, without bedstead, a bolster, blanket, and rug. A bushel of coals also per week, is granted in Winter for the common use of all.

At my visit in 1802, there being only one fire allowed, the two prisoners, a man and a woman, were locked up together during the day-time.

No employment. No Rules and Orders. The Act for Preservation of Health, and Clauses against Spirituous Liquors not hung up.

The court-yards well supplied with water, and the prison very clean.

Salary, 200*l.* for Gaol, and Bridewell which adjoins.

Duty, Prayers Wednesday and Friday ; and Prayers and Sermon every Sunday, Christmas-day, and Good Friday.

Surgeon. Mr. Rayment, for felons only.

Salary, 20*l.* and paid for medicines.

Allowance, none : But, in 1806, the considerate Magistrates ordered an allowance to every poor debtor having no property, and the bill to be brought in every Quarter Sessions.

REMARKS.

The Castle-yard is spacious: the county members are chosen in it: but the wood and iron work of the entrance gates are so much decayed, as to render the court very insecure and unsafe. The debtors' side of the prison is separated from that of the criminals by a brick-wall, and divided into two classes, viz. the master's ward and the common ward. The ample court-yard allotted for the use of both, is one hundred and eleven feet by sixty-five. Master's side debtors have a day-room, 21 feet by 13 feet 3 inches : they pay 2s. 6d. per week for a single bed ; if two sleep together 1s. 6d. each ; and there are eleven good lodging-rooms in the gaoler's house. Common-side debtors have a free ward, 18 feet by 17, to which the County allows straw, but no bedding nor fuel. The cooking-room, which is common to both, is 19 feet square. Here is no distinct or separate apartment for male and female debtors ; they are confined together in one common ward. Those females who can afford to pay for a bed, sleep in the gaoler's house. The poor debtors complained grievously that, as they had no allowance, and were both able and willing to work, there should be no attention paid to the means of industry: that they had no place or room to work in ; (but which the compassionate gaoler told me he should find no difficulty to procure in this manufacturing city ;) adding, that they were often poor and pennyless, in a miserable state, bordering even on starvation ; and that many must have perished from want, had they not been relieved by casual charity. This shews how full of emphatical tical meaning is that malediction of a severe creditor, who pronounces it as his debtor's doom, "to starve and rot in gaol!" There are (very improperly) two windows in this ward, through which the debtors may converse with the felons, or even assist them with tools to effect their escape, as practised at York, &c. and which the utmost attention of the keeper cannot prevent.

The Chapel is between the Bridewell and the Gaol. The debtors' attendance on divine service is optional; and at my visit, in 1802, only three of them, out of 12, were at chapel: but all the felons and other criminal prisoners were there, and their behaviour was orderly and attentive.

The sick ward of the male felons is in the debtors' court; and as it consists of two rooms, which communicate with each other, the males and females are obliged to be put therein, because the other ward intended for sick females is both very remote from the house, and an insecure place of confinement. There is also but one privy for the sick debtors, to which the male and female felons, whatever may be their disease, resort.

The gaoler's house, which forms a considerable part of the prison, is not only insecure for custody, but in a very dilapidated and uncomfortable state to reside in. Under all these circumstances, however, it is fortunate for the prisoners, that their keeper is a man of benevolence and humanity, and accommodates them as well as he can.

REMARKS.

This Gaol, situate in Fryer Street, is also the City Bridewell. Debtors have a court about 18 yards square, with a day-room 14 feet square ; and there are five rooms on the Master's side, to which the Keeper furnishes beds, at 3*s.* per week, if single ; if two sleep together, 2*s.* per week each.

One large room, which serves as a chapel, is the debtors' free ward ; to which the City allows straw and a rug each.

Criminal prisoners have a small court-yard, a day-room, and a sleeping-room, on the ground-floor ; to which straw and two rugs for each are allowed.

Bridewell-prisoners have a small day-room upstairs, and a large sleeping-room, separated off for men and women.

The prison is well supplied with water. No room set apart for an Infirmary. The prisoners procure work for themselves, and have all they earn.

Fees, 6*s.* 8*d.*

Allowance. One pound of bread per day each.

REMARKS.

Here is only one court-yard, 30 feet 6 inches by 19 feet 6, for all descriptions of prisoners : it has a passage 18 feet long and 4 feet wide, which leads to the pump and sewer.

The Master's-side debtors have 4 rooms above stairs, to which the keeper furnishes beds at 2*s.* 4*d.* and 3*s.* 6*d.* per week, and 4*d.* per week to the turnkey. Common-side debtors have a free-ward, to which the Corporation furnishes straw-in-sacking-beds, two blankets, a pillow, and a rug. Here is a common day-room, 10½ feet by 9, to which a peck of coals per day day is allowed throughout the year. Mops, brooms, pails, &c. are supplied, to keep the prison clean ; oil for the lamp, and saucepans, kettles, gridirons, &c. to cook their provisions. One room is set apart for the sick, 20 feet by 12, with a large iron-grated and glazed window, but no fire-place ; wood bedsteads, straw-in-ticking beds, two blankets, a pillow, and rug.

Debtors from the Courts of Conscience are sent here, and have the same allowance as other prisoners.

Mr. Reynolds, the Mayor of Yarmouth in 1805, generously added two shillings per week, in money or provisions, to the prisoners in common ; and he politely accompanied me over the gaol : when I pointed out to him, that by purchasing the adjoining public house, the Bridewell might be consolidated ; work-rooms made ; the sexes kept separate in courts distinct from each other, and the loathsome Cells bricked up.

No Rules and Orders. Act and Clauses not hung up. No employment ; though plenty might always be procured, if there were work-rooms.

This prison adjoins the Toll-house Hall, where prisoners are tried by the Recorder ; and the court is said to have the power of life and death.

YORK CASTLE.

Gaoler, William Staveley. Salary, 45*ol.*

Fees, 12*s.* ; Besides which the Under-sheriff demands, if the debtor is discharged by plaintiff, 5*s.* 4*d.* if by supersedeas, 7*s.* 8*d.*

Garnish. Every debtor pays a bag (containing a bushel) of coals, and a bag of turf, to the room which he inhabits ; also two shillings to be spent amongst the other debtors.

Chaplains, Rev. Mr. Brown, and Rev. Mr. Richardson.

Duty. Mr. Brown, Prayers every Monday, Tuesday, and Friday ; and, in Summer, on Sunday afternoon : Sacrament administered three times a year ; also attends twice a day persons who are left for execution. Mr. Richardson, Prayers and Sermon on Thursday.

Salary. Mr. Brown 50*l.* from the County. Mr. Richardson, 23*l.* 15*s.* from a legacy. See Remarks.

Surgeons, Messrs. Champney and Drake.

REMARKS.

Within the ample area, of about four acres, that surrounds this antient Castle, stands a noble County-Hall, in which are two courts ; one for the trial of criminals, the other for Nisi Prius, or civil causes. The prison for debtors is in the centre of the area, to which the ascent is by a fine flight of stone-steps, to a floor, on which are eight rooms, 16 feet square, and 12 feet high. Above these are eleven rooms for common-side debtors, which are all free-wards, airy, and healthy ; the passages leading to them spacious and lofty. The County furnishes neither bedding nor straw for the debtor ; and he that chooses to have a room to himself, pays for the furniture, bedding, &c. three pence a day. If a single bed amongst other debtors, two pence a day. If two debtors sleep together, one penny each. Their court-yard is about an acre of ground. Mr. Watson, Clerk to the Justices, attends all their meetings held at the castle, and regulates the weight of the bread : Salary 21*l.* per annum.

The County finds no employment for any ; But Mr. Staveley, the present humane Keeper, is active in procuring employment for handicrafts. such as taylors, shoemakers, saddlers, weavers, wool-combers, &c. and those who cannot follow their own profession soon learn to make laces, garters, purses, &c. which they expose to sale in the Castle-yard ; and thus many of them comfortably maintain themselves, and assist their families. As there is no work-room, this manufacture (in rainy weather) is carried on in the passages, or lobbies, which are wide and airy.

The origin of the salary for prayers and a sermon every week is interesting and exemplary. Having, through the politeness of Mr. Gray, been favoured with a copy of the writing of endowment, I give with pleasure the following extract, viz.

“ 16th January,” [1634] “ 10 Charles I. PHINEAS HEDGSON, D. D. Chancellor of the Cathedral Church of York, by his deed of that date, (after expressing his desire, out of commiseration and pity to the souls of such prisoners as then were, or should be, in the CASTLE of York, to provide that they, for ever afterwards, might be instructed in the knowledge of God, to their eternal bliss and happiness, which he hoped would be by providing some godly minister, or preacher of God’s word, to preach unto them in the said castle, which, by reason of their imprisonment, they were hindered elsewhere to hear ; and, in regard that ‘Richard’ [Neile] “ then late Archbishop of York, did license, or allow, that godly preachers, for ever thereafter, might be allowed to preach there to that purpose, although there was no church or chapel,) GRANTS to John Scott, D. AND, to the intent that five pounds, residue of the 30l. should be distributed weekly, (by two shillings a week), in bread, amongst the poorer sort of the prisoners, upon the sermon days, to such of them as should be present at the said sermons: HOPING and desiring that some others would attend to this pious and charitable work, and, in time, increase the allowance and stipend; and that the work might be acceptable to God, and profitable and comfortable to many distressed and poor souls."

THE INSTRUMENT then goes on to make provision for continuing and perpetuating the trust, on demise of the then trustees.

N. B. This writing mentions that Mr. William Hart, merchant at York, had formerly bequeathed 100*l.* to the like use. Nothing certain can be obtained concerning this legacy ; which, (like many others I have heard of in my different visits to prisons,) is probably lost, or diverted to some other purpose ; and, from the lapse of time, it is not likely that any thing can now be made out.

Alderman White's and Mr. Bowes's legacies seem to be both lost."

The debtors have, from the lobbies or passages, and also from their sleeping-rooms, a full view into the felons' court and the solitary cells; by which means dangerous implements have been conveyed to them, and the regularity and orderly conduct of the gaol frequently disturbed. Sloping boards placed before the windows, in the manner I have seen them in other gaols, would prevent this hazardous communication.

No firing allowed to any part of the gaol; except for sick prisoners; to whom every comfort is administered, which, in the opinion of the Surgeons, is judged necessary.

It is matter of option with the debtors either to attend chapel, or not. If this may be deemed an indulgence, it is surely a very faulty one.

This gaol upon Ouse-bridge, and called the Kid-cots, has on one side of the bridge eight convenient rooms for debtors, about 11 feet square, with a fire-place in each: these are all free-wards: But if the keeper furnishes a bed, he is paid 1*s.* 6*d.* per week each. Below them are two other rooms, with brick-floors; one of which, 15 feet by 13, has a window looking to the river, and was used as a lumber-room when I was here: the other, 11 feet by 8, is a shop for the sale of articles manufactured in the prison, such as nets, purses, laces, &c. the window of which fronts towards the street: in each of them a fire-place. No court-yard. There is a stone-tablet fixed in the wall, on which is inscribed, "Remember the poor debtors. He that giveth to the poor lendeth to the Lord." All debtors committed by process issuing out of the Sheriff's court are sent to this prison, and on application are entitled to their six-pences the third court-day. A court is held every week. The Act and Clauses are conspicuously hung up.

REMARKS.

ST. PETER'S GAOL, for the liberty of St. Peter at York, near the Minster Gate, is the property of the Dean, who holds his Courts here.

There is no court-yard for the use of prisoners. The debtors have four sizeable rooms up-stairs, which the keeper furnishes with bed and bedding, at 6s. and 10s. per month.

Down eleven steps are two dungeons for felons, each 19 feet by 8, and 6 feet high, lighted and ventilated by an iron-grated window, which looks to the street: These dungeons had several loads of ashes and other filth in them, which appeared to have lain a long time. One of the debtors, who had his wife and four small children with him, occupied the room above, for which he paid 2s. 6d. per week. He complained to me of the very offensive cells below, which, together with the crowded state of his room, made it (in that hot weather) almost unbearable. The boards of the floor were rotten; and the roof of the cells not being cieled, there was a fissure of communication a foot long.

The next morning I waited on the Dean (the Rev. Mr. Markham) who politely accompanied me to the prison, and gave orders to the gaoler to take away the rubbish immediately, and to whitewash and cleanse the whole prison: which the gaoler promised should be set about the next day.

The only prisoner in the cells at that time was a run-away apprentice; and he was pounding tile-sherds. On my return in September I found nothing had been done: the prison was in the same state of filth;

filth: and two lewd women were confined in the same cell with the boy before-mentioned; and with them several persons in the street were conversing.

The Act for preserving Health was not hung up; but the Clauses against Spirituous Liquors were. This, however, must be of little effect, when spirits can be so easily handed to the prisoners from the streets, and which, if the gaoler were ever so vigilant and attentive, he could not prevent.

Water is accessible to all the prisoners, and there is now a sewer.

In 1801, Doctor Fountayne, the late Dean, gave 100*l.* and the four Residentiaries 25*l.* each, making together 200*l.* for the benefit of this prison: which sum is invested in the public funds, and the dividends are directed to be applied towards the relief of debtors and felons confined in the said gaol, in such proportion as the Dean and Chapter shall from time to time think proper.

There is also a donation in bread, of twelve shillings, given every Christmas amongst the debtors and felons.

WITHIN THE

THEIR PRESENT MUCH-IMPROVED CONDITION, EFFECTED BY

---

COURTS OF CONSCIENCE, anciently denominated Courts of Request, had their origin in 1518 (the 9th of Henry VIII); when the Common Council of the City of London issued an Act for the Recovery of Debts under Forty Shillings due to Citizens, by a court to be called a Court of Conscience, and to be held in Guildhall: and those debtors who failed to obey the award of that Court were to be imprisoned in one of the City Compters, until they complied with such award; even though it were durante vitâ. In 1605 (the 3d year of James I.)

the powers of the Court so formed in 1518 by the Common Council of London, were established by Act of Parliament.

In 1750, Alderman Dickenson brought in a Bill for extending similar powers to the whole County of Middlesex; but with this difference, that all persons refusing to submit to the decision or award of the Court, were rendered liable to imprisonment, in Newgate, for three calendar months, which cancelled the debt.

Thus it seems evident, that different degrees of punishment were inflicted for one and the same offence, contrary to true policy, justice, and common sense: as will appear by stating the various expences and fees that were incurred to recover a debt from one shilling * up to forty shillings; and which were nearly the same in all the Courts of Conscience:

☞ Such was the legally-sanctioned, the severe, and miserable lot of these poor, unthinking, and unfortunate classes of mankind, at the time of the institution of our SOCIETY: Nor was it till near fourteen years after its auspicious establishment, that their repeated applications were so attended to, as to effect a total change in the horrid system. At length, however, Truth and Humanity prevailed. The exactions before specified were published by order of the Society in February 1785; and in the same year an Act of the legislature passed “for reducing the Time for Imprisonment of Debtors “ committed

“ committed to Prison upon Prosecutions in Courts “ of Conscience in London, Middlesex, and the “ Borough of Southwark, to the same Periods in “ each Court; and for abolishing Fees paid by “ those Debtors to GAOLERS, or others, on Account “ of such Imprisonment.” The happy result has been, that all Fees to Gaolers on these petty and injurious prosecutions are every where abolished; expences are reduced; the term of imprisonment is restricted (as hereafter mentioned); and in most of our county gaols, throughout the kingdom, a due separation is observed betwixt unhappy debtors and the most flagitious offenders.

The perfect completion of so salutary a reform cannot fail to excite the just hope and warm expectation of every feeling heart. Particular care ought to be taken, that Debtors of the kind here specified, should never be suffered to mix with Criminals: but in my various tours of visitation to the Houses of Correction, and Bridewells, in places remote from the metropolis, I have but too often found them associated with Felons, and other offenders of the worst description; who, both by instruction and example, frequently make them as abandoned as themselves; nay, and even extinguish every spark of modesty in the females, by daily habits of intimacy with the lewdest of their sex.

Another

Another consideration, of much importance, demands also the peculiar attention of every conscientious Magistrate. Whilst the law ordains imprisonment, there ought to be a County Allowance of Food, and of Bedding for every indigent and friendless prisoner: instead of which, I have sometimes found debtors, who have in prison become indebted to felons for their food; and, in some instances, have painfully witnessed, that when liberated from a gaol, they were fitter for an hospital than for labour.

The following observations of Mr. Justice Blackstone demand a peculiar attention. He tells us, that “ divers trading towns, and other districts, had
“ them Courts of Conscience, upon nearly the same “ plan as that in the City of London. The anxious desire that has been shewn to obtain these “ several Acts, proves clearly, that the nation in “ general is truly sensible of the great inconvenience “ arising from the disuse of the antient County and “ Hundred Courts; wherein causes of this small “ value were always formerly decided, with very “ little trouble and expence to the parties. But, it “ is to be feared, that the general remedy which “ of late hath been principally applied to this inconvenience (the erecting these new jurisdictions)
“ may itself be attended, in time, with very ill consequences: as the method of proceeding therein
“ is

“ is entirely in derogation of the common law ; as “ their large discretionary powers create a petty ty“ ranny in a set of standing Commissioners ; and as “ the disuse of the trial by jury may tend to estrange
 “ the minds of the people from that valuable pre“ rogative of Englishmen, which has already been “ more than sufficiently excluded in many instances.
 “ How much rather is it to be wished, that the pro“ ceedings in the County and Hundred Courts could “ again be revived, without burthening the free“ holders with too frequent and tedious attendances ;
 “ and at the same time removing the delays that “ have insensibly crept into their proceedings, and “ the power that either party have, of transferring
 “ at pleasure their suits to the Courts at Westminster !
 “ And we may with satisfaction observe, that this “ experiment has been actually tried, and has suc“ ceeded, in the populous county of Middlesex ;
 “ which might serve as an example for others. For,
 “ by Statute 23 George II. c. 33. it is enacted,
 “ 1. That a special County-court shall be held,
 “ at least once a month, in every hundred of the “ county of Middlesex by the county clerk.
 “ 2. That twelve freeholders of that hundred, qua“ lified to serve on juries, and struck by the shē-“ riff, shall be summoned to appear at such “ court by rotation, so as none shall be sum“ moned oftener than once a year. 3. That in all “ causes

“ causes not exceeding the value of forty shillings,
 “ the county clerk and twelve suitors * shall pro“ ceed in a summary way, examining the parties
 “ and witnesses on oath, without the formal pro“ cess antiently used ; and shall make such order “ therein, as they shall judge agreeable to con“ science. 4. That no complaints shall be removed “ out of this court by any process whatsoever ; but “ the determination herein shall be final. 5. That “ if any action be brought in any of the superior “ courts against a person resident in Middlesex for “ a debt or contract, upon the trial whereof the jury “ shall find less than 40s. damages, the plaintiff “ shall recover no costs, but shall pay the defendant “ double costs ; unless upon some special circum“ stances, to be certified by the Judge who tried it.
 “ 6. Lastly, a Table of very moderate Fees is pre“ scribed and set down in the Act ; which are not to “ be exceeded upon any account whatsoever. This “ is a plan entirely agreeable to the Constitution and “ genius of the Nation : calculated to prevent a “ multitude of vexatious actions in the superior “ Courts ; and at the same time to give honest cre“ ditors an opportunity of recovering small sums ;
 “ which now they are frequently deterred from by

* Sic Orig. Q. Jurors, or Jurats ?

“ the expence of a suit at law : a plan, which, in “ short, wants only to be generally known, in order
 “ to its universal reception *.”

It may be necessary here to observe, that my Remarks on the Borough Compter (See p. 96) were prepared for publication on the 28th of May 1806. But in August of that year an Act passed, extending the limits of jurisdiction beyond the parishes to which I there alluded, and enlarging the powers of the Commissioners, by the style and title of “ ‘The Court of Requests for the Town and Borough of Southwark, and Eastern Half of the Hundred of Brixton, in the County of Surry : ” Three Commissioners to have jurisdiction over debts not exceeding Forty shillings ; and five over debts not exceeding Five pounds.

By the above Statute it was enacted, That the several FEES and sums of money following, and no other, should be taken by the Bailiff, Clerks, and Officers of the said Court of Requests, for their respective services in the execution of the Statutes 22d and 32d of King George II. instead of the fees limited and expressed in the former of those two Acts ; viz.

The foregoing Tables of Fees were ordered to be conspicuously hung up in the Court-house, or where the Commissioners meet, that all concerned may see and peruse them at all times.

In consequence of the said Act, the term of imprisonment was ordained to be thenceforth limited as follows ; and accordingly it now is, upon each action,

Courts of the kind in question are deemed, I know, of indispensable necessity, and much convenience, in populous and commercial towns. But one thing I cannot forbear to urge on the subject, as highly worthy of legislative sanction : I mean, some positive clause unalterable, to prevent the coercive recovery of debts contracted for ale-house scores.

As to Courts of Conscience in agricultural Counties, they certainly are of the most injurious tendency.

dency. The plaintiff often loses more time in prosecuting his demand, than it is worth if recovered; which however is very seldom the case. The debtor is locked up during the harvest, or other important season, and loses that gain which he had looked to for the support of his family in the short winter-days: and during his absence, they are thrown on the parish for relief. Meanwhile, all the creditor's satisfaction is fruitless revenge: and to this he not only sacrifices his time, but his money too: For costs he must pay, in the first instance.

THE approbation with which my former narratives of Debtors have been honoured by the Publick, and the essential benefit which some of them have in consequence received by County Allowances, again induce me to present a continued statement, equally, as I hope, adapted to sanction the favours of the one, and to lessen, all we can, the miseries of the other.

With respect to Bridewells, or Houses, as they are called, of Correction, it may truly be said that

Much is the Patriot's weeding hand requir'd.”

All, in short, that hath hitherto been advanced from experimental investigation and well-founded knowledge, exhibits (I am sorry to repeat it,) but a very faint picture of the great misery, and the still greater corruption and depravity, which exist in the wretched abodes abodes alluded to. I do not include all; there are some very excellent exceptions to this censure: but I most seriously and painfully point at several of the kind, to which I was led by accident; and which therefore constitute a part of my Report, as resulting from my personal inspection into prisons.

Of these forlorn retreats, it appears undoubted, that the great increase of immorality is principally owing to the useless, and therefore injurious, state of our Bridewells. They afford little indeed, or nothing, of "Correction" but the name: In Holland they were called Verbeter huizen; that is, "Bettering Houses."

The proper management of such legal asylums from rapidly increasing Vice, is now become matter of more than ordinary concern. For instance, Offenders liable to this mode of punishment, are sometimes committed to a Bridewell, even for so long a term as two years!

The prisoner, sentenced, for whatever term, "to hard labour," often finds no employment.

And to the very important point of separating the prisoners into suitable and safe classes, as little attention too frequently is paid, as to the means of profitable and wholesome industry.

A young creature, male or female, guilty of some petty theft, is often sent to a Bridewell, where the term of commitment is spent in idleness and filth, amidst company the most profligate and abandoned! What is this, but devoting the victim of Ignorance to the destruction of Vice and Infamy? Yet, how many are there, who may date the total loss of every principle of virtue from the hour of their confinement in those schools of wickedness!

The keeper of every Bridewell should be master of, or well instructed in, some kind of simple manufacture; the better to enable him to set his prisoners to a suitable employment.

But, surely, it argues a reprehensible neglect in the Magistracy, where such employment is not provided. Imprisonment, in the abstract, implies idleness, which wisdom should mercifully preclude. In honest work, most certainly, should every offender be employed. This is so indispensably requisite, that no one should be idle who is not sick. Confinement in idleness not only ruins the morals, but even frequently destroys the capacity for labour.

Happy, or peculiarly fortunate, shall I esteem myself, if the result of my investigations prove sufficiently powerful to call forth the attention of the Magistrates. It cannot fail, if duly persevered in, to lessen abundantly the misery of many a confined fellow-creature. It will tend to correct, and possibly to remove, those vices, which are ruinous to the interests and welfare of our country; and which, if unrestrained by wholesome correction, must combine,

I do not presume to tread passibus æquis with that great and good HOWARD, whose steps it is my honour and my wish to follow in the faithful inspection of Prisons. With respect to Bridewells and Houses of Correction, however, my labours have been great and unwearied ; and the fruit of my experience may be summed up in few words.

If such places as I have above scrutinized are to be continued as the receptacles of Convicts from gaols ; if those convicts are to have a constant communication with young offenders, whose misdeeds are comparatively light, and for the chastisement of which, and the prevention of greater ones, Bridewells and Houses of Correction were originally and solely designed ; if also, offenders consigned to such abodes are not classed and separated according to the nature and degree of their transgressions ; and, lastly, if no religious attentions are paid to them, as in too many instances is flagrantly the case ; then vice and corruption must increase their malignity, through the sanction of neglect : Bridewells and Houses of Correction must become the surest nurseries for our Gaols ; and the melancholy list of Executions will be swelled to a degree of horror, ten fold more shocking than humanity has at present to deplore.

REV. SIR,

I AM unwilling to close these pages without embracing the opportunity they afford me of thus publicly expressing the ardent gratification I feel, in common with you, at the success and stability of this benevolent Society ; and of uniting my congratulations with yours on the incalculable benefits which the publick have long derived, and, under Divine Providence, through the most remote periods of time, will, I trust, continue to receive, from its establishment, and the extension of its objects ; aided by the bounty of the Christian, the Philanthropist, and the Man of the World, to all of whom the great end of relieving human misery, the peculiar object of the Institution, is of equal consideration.

When I look back to the distant period of our lives, and observe that of the first Committee of the Society, you, Reverend Sir, and myself, remain the only survivors ; I cannot but feel the most powerful, and at the same time, the most humble gratitude to the Great Disposer of all human events, for having suffered me to live, and witness the happy

result of our early and well-meant endeavours. And when I pursue the course of reflection, and find, that in addition to the consequences naturally attendant upon an advance in years, I labour under painful infirmities, that hasten to plunge me into that awful, yet hopeful, gulph of death, which has already absorbed our fellow-labourers in the vineyard ; I confess I feel an irresistible impulse to embrace this, perhaps the last and only opportunity I shall ever have, of publicly commemorating, as far as the feeble efforts of an humble individual will be allowed to extend, our joint exertions in the same great cause ; and of testifying the sincere pleasure with which I at all times recur to the early intimacy and long-continued friendship, which has formed one of the unfeigned sources of the comfort and happiness of my life.

With growing and well-merited esteem, Sir, I witnessed your successful exertions in behalf of the Society, at its earliest institution : Often have I felt the influence acknowledged by all who have heard the eloquent and impressive Discourses which you have delivered from the pulpit, in recommendation of the objects embraced by this Charity ; and never, whilst I am permitted to retain the power of memory, can the gratifying recollection be effaced, of the glow of surprize and pleasure, which beamed from every countenance around you, upon the receipt of ONE HUNDRED POUNDS * sent by a then unknown, though eminent advocate for suffering humanity ; no more than can the impression of that active zeal with which you personally assisted, to search out the objects of misery, who were relieved from the deepest affliction by its timely application.

The leading share you took in forming the plan, which has afforded such permanent benefit to this enlarged and improving establishment, bespeaks the soundness of your judgment, while it pourtrays the natural goodness of your heart. It has left those impressions of gratitude and respect on the Society, and upon the mind of your humble and faithful friend, which cannot be described ; and can only be felt by a due appreciation of the manifold benefits which the publick derive from the establishment of the institution itself.

The happy effects produced on society by the exemplary conduct of a good and virtuous man, has been often the subject-matter of your pathetic and convincing discourses. But in no instance, Reverend Sir, under the grace of God, does the doctrine appear more manifestly established, than in the general character of the offspring with which you are blessed ; and whose superior excellence, at the same time that it reflects splendour on themselves, distinctly emanates from the virtuous example of the parent. And here, suffer me, Sir, without disparagement to the rest of your family, who have equal claims to your commendation, most sincerely to congratulate you on the promotion of your son Doctor Butler to the eminent situation he fills; the reward of his virtues; of those early advances which your tuition enabled him to make in literature; and which can only be surpassed by the modesty of his deportment, the liberality of his sentiments, and the purity of his Christian principles *.

* George Butler, born 1774, and educated solely at his father's seminary, till 1790; when he was admitted a scholar on the foundation of Sidney-Sussex College, Cambridge, and in that capacity obtained, repeatedly, exhibitions and prizes, classical and mathematical. In 1794 he took the degree of B.A. when, after a public examination, he was named the SENIOR WRANGLER and SENIOR PRIZEMAN of his year; and being, thereupon, chosen Mathematical Lecturer of his own College, became soon afterwards a fellow of that Society. In 1797, he took the degree of M.A. and was soon after appointed Classical Tutor. In 1804, he took the degree of B.D. with great credit, and was elected a PUBLIC EXAMINER in the University. In 1805 he was nominated one of the eight Honorary University PREACHERS, and in April of the same year, chosen HEAD MASTER of Harrow: after exhibiting to the Governors of the School, and to his Grace the Archbishop of Canterbury, such honourable testimonials of character, from the chief dignitaries and school-men of Cambridge, as perhaps were never before bestowed on any member of that learned body. He received the degree of D.D. by ROYAL MANDATE, bearing date 27th April, 1805.

That

That you may both, with the rest of your children, long continue reciprocally to reflect honour on each other, on your households, and our common nature, is the sincere and earnest wish of,

Reverend Sir,

Your faithful Friend,

JAMES NEILD.

If to any of my present readers the above tribute of esteem appear irrelevant, and unnecessary to the end proposed by the publication of the work, it is upon the candour of those readers, and of posterity, who may hereafter deem these sheets deserving of their consideration, that I am willing to throw myself: indulging the hope, that the same regard for mankind which induces them to the perusal of the work, will not be denied to its frail author; who fondly imagines, that his humble record of an unreserved attachment which, through all the vicissitudes of human life, has continued with unabated zeal for forty years, will not be read without some of those emotions of pleasure which glow in his bosom when he recurs to them.

CURSORY HINTS

I. THAT there should be a general and total abolition of Fees and Room-rent ; and a proper salary, in lieu thereof, allowed to the Gaoler by the County.

Because, “ no man should derive emolument from misery ;” and, as the practice now prevails, even though a poor debtor may obtain his right to be discharged by superseas, or through the lenity of a merciful creditor, he is yet liable to be detained at the arbitrary will of a Gaoler for his Fees, or till an Act of Insolvency is passed for general relief : And thus the Gaoler is allowed to be both Judge and Jury, and to inflict a punishment for enforcing his own demand.

II.

II. THAT in all cases of pauper-debtors, the prisoner should be suffered to verify his condition on oath before a Magistrate; who may thereupon make an order for a weekly allowance to be paid the prisoner out of the County-rate.

Because, in some gaols the county allowance is two shillings weekly; in others eighteen pence; and in others one shilling per week; whilst in many prisons there is no allowance at all; to the great hazard, not of health only, but of life.

III. THAT encouragement should be afforded to debtors for working at some manufacture, to be provided by the county, by giving them two thirds at least of the estimated value of their daily labour*.

IV. THAT a Chaplain be appointed to every Gaol, and the debtors indispensably required to attend divine service, except in case of illness duly certified.

V. THAT a proper Medical Assistant be assigned for every Gaol, to afford relief to those indigent prisoners, who are afflicted with sickness.

VI. That there should be an entire separation of the debtors from the felons.

Because

Because (to adopt the language of a great moral writer,) "From such an association springs every corruption which poverty and wickedness can generate, with all the shameless and profligate enormities that can be produced by the impudence of ignominy, the rage of want, and the malignity of despair. In a prison, the awe of the public eye is lost, and the power of the law is spent: there are few fears, there are no blushes: the lewd inflame the lewd; the audacious harden the audacious. Every one fortifies himself as he can, against his own sensibility; endeavours to practise on others the arts which are practised on himself; and gains the kindness of his associates by similitude of manners. Thus some sink amidst their misery, and others survive, only to propagate villainy †."

VII. THAT salutary provisions, for the internal government of prisons throughout the kingdom, be generally prescribed and enacted by the Legislature. That, in the mean time, a Committee of Visiting Magistrates be appointed at the Quarter Sessions of every district, to frame proper RULES and REGULATIONS for their several gaols, according to their locality and peculiar circumstances ; to be afterwards confirmed at the Sessions, and duly approved by the honourable Judges of Assize : That, for better accomplishing the important end proposed, a Journal of occurrences be punctually kept by the gaoler, for the inspection of the worshipful Committee, and all other Magistrates of the county immediately concerned : And, lastly, that such Rules and Regulations (equally extending their view to the deportment of the Gaoler, or Keeper, and of the prisoners, of every description, under his charge) be conspicuously printed, and placed in various parts of every prison ; so as that all parties alike may know the clear lines of duty by which to regulate their respective conduct.

OBSERVATIONS

ON

ARRESTS UPON MESNE PROCESS,

THE prisons, notwithstanding the recent Act of Insolvency, are already crowded with debtors on mesne process, for sums under 30*l.* About four fifths of the debtors sent to prison are for debts under 20*l.* and of this class, on the 4th May 1807, there were forty-eight in Newgate.

As to a farther restriction of the law of arrests on mesne process, we are not left without a guide: our ancestors, above eighty years ago, restrained the law of arrests, on process from the superior courts at Westminster, by preventing them for sums under ten pounds *.

By this law, thousands of debtors have been saved from imprisonment; and, if revised, it might be the means of avoiding the enlargement of prisons, or of passing more frequent Acts of Insolvency. As money decreased in value, the benefits intended by this law gradually diminished. We may remember, that, above 30 years ago, Newgate, the King's-Bench, the Fleet, and other prisons, were considerably enlarged; but their future dimensions must depend upon how long it shall please the wisdom of Parliament to keep this law stationary; on the increase of poverty and population; or, on a speedier recurrence to Insolvent Acts, to make room for fresh prisoners.

The pressure of the times urges many to run in debt, without a reasonable prospect of payment; but, whatever may occasion Insolvency, the means of payment are not increased by arrests for small debts: it will, therefore, excite no surprize that the poor debtor cannot escape imprisonment.

It has been argued, that arrests, even for small debts, were useful, as a stimulus to settle the action, and prevent much expensive litigation. Thus the evils, though great, are supposed to be productive of more than a counterbalance of good; but the evils are certain, while the advantages proposed are doubtful, and refuted by experience *. The number of actions settled is less, and the executions more, in bailable actions, than in actions not bailable; a clear proof, that an arrest (particularly for small debts) cannot be the chief motive to a compromise of the action, much less to payment, in the event of Insolvency; and in that case, the process is severe; the speculation must fail: no stimulus can work an impossibility. In the case of disability, from indigence, the man arrested, and destitute of friends, cannot find bail: The produce of the arrest, therefore, is a fruitless imprisonment.

If ten pounds seventy years ago were equal in value to thirty pounds at this day, the letter of the statute may remain, while its benevolent intentions, founded in legislative wisdom, may be defeated. To shew the policy of a further restriction, proportioned to a decrease in the value of money since that period, suppose the law against arrests under ten pounds repealed: the number of prisoners would be increased, by embracing a still larger class of poor debtors, and prisons would soon overflow.

By a statute of the present reign, to check such arrests in the inferior courts *, perhaps more than 200,000 arrests have been prevented, within the last 20 years; but it never has been contended that the credit and commerce of the country have thereby been in the least impaired: on the contrary, during this period they have attained to the highest pitch of prosperity.

Every creditor shares in the speculation of an arrest (whilst the chance of success is clearly diminished, when the party has neither money nor friends); but the practice is pursued from habit, although often with reluctance, lest one lenient creditor should lose an advantage, which another gains by severity. It is but too common to find in the sheriff's hands several writs against the same man, at the same time, for trifling debts, from 10*l.* to 12*l.* ; so that by the expence of the remedy upon this class of debtors, their means of payment are reduced in proportion. If, therefore, only for small sums the speculation were destroyed (which, from experience, can serve no other purpose than to encourage desperate games of chance); the debtor, left at his liberty, before he could be reached by an execution, and freed from the expence of such arrest, might be able to compromise the action; from which he is now totally prevented, by incurring costs, that eat up inevitably all his funds.

The evils of an indiscriminate system must, in many cases, bear hard. The extension of the Law of Arrests to simple-contract debts (although, as a general rule, wise and just) was an innovation on the antient law of the land; and yet, for the security of creditors in a commercial country, it is universally admitted as necessary. Principally, however, it affects the inferior class, the most helpless and numerous, by a continuance of imprisonment, for want of bail, (consequent on practice, different from the course originally pursued;) and stands in need of legislative correction.

The

The true question is, Can the evils be diminished, without lessening the security of creditors? If so, necessity requires the interference of the Legislature; and, if lessening those evils would tend to augment such security, Justice seems to require a law so perfectly consistent with humanity.

The Law of Arrest may remain general, for the protection of creditors, that every one may enjoy its advantages; but when it is seen to fail of that effect, (as it will in all cases of poverty, which may still abound), the Law should interpose in favour of the honest, though unfortunate Debtor, by limiting the time of imprisonment, under certain restrictions.

For general security, therefore, Let an imprisoned debtor be considered as a party in delicto, suffering a punishment occasioned by his own misconduct; but let provisions be made to check the severity of the general rule, so as to connect the Law with humanity and substantial justice. See the preceding "Observations on the Law of Civil Imprisonment," p. 34—37.

Let the Law of Arrest be open to every class of creditors, when the debt is of a certain amount*: and when the object of the Law, so far as respects coercion of payment, evidently fails, let the Law (allowing an attack on personal liberty for that particular purpose) rescue the debtor from imprisonment, by wholesome provisions, not counteracting, but operating as exceptions to the general rule.

Let the debtor's person be discharged, on evidence of insolvency, within a limited time,—the future property to remain liable : and let these exceptions operate only in favour of the honest and unfortunate. For this end, the creditor should make out a case of fraud, or of gross misconduct, to authorize a continuance of the imprisonment, at the discretion of the Court, or of some tribunal authorized to take cognizance of the charge ; and aided, if necessary, by a Jury *.

Thus, while the Law of Arrest is allowed without limitation, for the security of creditors, as a means to enforce payment, when it fails in that object, it will, in the event of a continuance beyond the time limited by general rule, be deemed a punishment for misconduct. Humanity will thus be reconciled to Justice, and the Innocent will be separated from the Fraudulent ; not by chance or caprice, but by the sure Operation and Effect of Law.

* Suppose Three Commissioners.

THE

THE Average for Debts of the before-mentioned 24,094 Debtors, is £.2. 14s. 10½*d.* each; and for every Individual 16s. 7½*d.*

* * * These Averages include every incidental Expenditure attending the Management and Distributions of the Charity.

It is probable, that the public Benevolence has been dispensed to double the Number of real Objects; because the Families of many Creditors being themselves in very necessitous Circumstances, were all essentially benefited by the Composition which they accepted instead of the Debts due to them.

The Society never pay the whole Debt; yet, to prevent future Litigation, the Creditors are required to give Receipts in full for Debt and Costs.

From the great Number of Debtors discharged, compared with the small Sums paid for each, it is manifest, that those poor Manufacturers, Seamen, and Servants, who have been the peculiar Objects of the Society's Attention, are in the humblest Rank of Society. Their Debts were too small and too few to entitle them to the Benefits derived from any of the Acts hitherto calculated to relieve Insolvent Debtors; the Society have therefore generally compounded their Debts, and paid their Fees, after a Writ of Execution had issued.

The Time of Imprisonment may be Months, or even Years, before such Objects can have Relief from from Insolvent Acts of Parliament : It follows, therefore, that so long a Confinement from their Families and Employments, would be attended with Consequences very fatal to those Families, injurious to their Employers, and particularly burthensome to their several Parishes ; who, whilst the Husband is in Prison, must relieve, and often maintain, the unhappy Wife and Offspring.

In some Prisons, the distressed Debtor is obliged to associate with Felons ; the Depravity of whose Morals, in every view, but too frequently influences those Dispositions of the Debtors with whom they converse ; and who, until such destructive, fascinating connections, were not abandoned to Vice, though perhaps imprudent.

To such Debtors the Society have ever shewn a fraternal regard, by rescuing them as soon as possible from an Imprisonment infectious both to Body and Mind : thus preserving their Families from becoming Vagrants, or chargeable to the Parish, and restoring to Manufacturers, to Agriculture and Trade, many laborious Hands ; who, with regard to their Exertions in Society, are ultimately the Nerves and Strength, and Riches of a Nation ; inasmuch as their Labour efficiently, though almost imperceptibly, contributes to the welfare of every Individual in the superior Orders of Life.

Influenced

Influenced by these clear principles, founded, not only upon sound Policy, and true Philanthropy, but, above all, upon the benevolent principles of genuine Christianity, the Society hope, by the Bounty of the Public, to be enabled to persevere in relieving those Debtors, who may be found worthy, distressed, and friendless: Men, whose Earnings, even when in Employment, can often afford but a bare Subsistence; but who, unemployed, must either contract Debts, or fly with Despondency to illicit Means, as the only Resource from Starving!

It is a very material Wish of the Society for Debtors, to diffuse the public Liberality so far, as to extend to all the Country Gaols; where a Prisoner is frequently confined at a Distance of 18 or 20 Miles from his Place of Abode; the Creditor, for want of Importunity, forgets him; and the miserable Being himself can receive no temporary Relief from his Family or his Friends.

The Mode of Application is by printed Petition, to be had of the respective Keepers, gratis, which the Petitioner is directed to send, Post-paid, to Craven-Street: full Information for filling up the Blanks is therein contained in the marginal Notes.

To obtain Benefit from this Charity, each Petitioner is obliged to name two reputable Housekeepers, as Vouchers for his Integrity, Sobriety, and Industry; to whom the Society constantly refer their

their Inquiries, and by this Means preclude almost the Possibility of Imposition.

No Debtor can be relieved a second Time, unless it be evidently made appear that his Confinement arises not from his own Fault.

It is a fixed Rule of the Society, never to pay more than a Composition for any Debts, wherein the Lawyers' Bills are not included.

Plaintiffs must always be Losers by Prosecution for Debt, though more or less so, according to their Circumstances. This the Society ever take into Consideration: and it is a principal Object of their Attention, to demonstrate to the lower Class of People the exceeding Folly of being so stimulated by their Passions, as to go to Law with Fellow-Creatures, poor and miserable as themselves!

 Every annual Benefactor of Two Guineas is eligible to be on the Committee.—The Sum of Twenty Guineas constitutes a Life-Governor.

Persons disposed to contribute to the Support of this Charity, may see the Books of the Society's Transactions, and receive any further Information, by inquiring of the Secretary, at No. 7, Cruwen-Street, Strand.
